Delegates by dozens join Carter camp

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

It's all over but the counting. Delegates by the dozens are joining the Jimmy Carter juggernaut, making it nearly certain the Georgia peanut farmer will be the Democratic presidential nominee.

Carter saw his delegate totals climb Wednesday to all but assure his first-ballot convention nomination, and a legion of big-name Democrats added their endorsements in a show of party unity.

Many of his primary opponents — George Wallace, Henry Jackson, Frank Church and Morris Udall — proclaimed Carter a certain winner. The scorecard at the Democratic National Committee showed Carter with 1,514 delegates, nine more than needed for a convention victory in July.

A landslide victory in the Ohio primary Tuesday, and second-place finishes in New Jersey and California, catapulted Carter to the fabled tipping point; by today the opposing field had dwindled away.

As dozens of uncommitted delegates pledged support for Carter, he was within grasp of hundreds more now officially committed elsewhere or still uncommitted.

While the delegate roundup continued, Carter's tasks became the selection of a running mate, solidifying party unity, and planning a general election campaign against either Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan.

According to the Associated Press survey of publicly committed delegates, Carter already can claim a definite 1,206, with enough more to bring him the nomination expected to join the bandwagon in the weeks before the mid-July Democratic national convention in New York.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, barred from the 1972 Democratic convention, studied the Ohio results and said he'd vote for Carter. Adlai Stevenson III released the bloc of 86 Illinois delegates committed to him and most were likely to go to the former Georgia governor.

George Wallace, crippled by a gunman while seeking the nomination four years ago and routed in the early Southern primaries by Carter, endorsed Carter and asked his 168 delegates to follow suit. It ended the Alabama governor's fourth and final try for the White House.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, seeker of the presidency since 1960 who hoped the party would come to him this year, refused to authorize a campaign in his behalf, saying Carter was "virtually certain" to be nominated.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, well financed as the campaign began but badly drubbed by Carter in the Pennsylvania primary, told supporters he will endorse Carter and try to deliver his 248 delegates.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, who also challenged Carter, as much as acknowledged the race was over.

Liberal party leaders, such as Sens. George McGovern and Edward Kennedy, also noted Carter's victory and pledged support.

Wallace, cool to previous party nominees, said all he asked of Carter was "to try to make all the people of his country one of the finest presidents we've ever had."

The Republican chase was neck-and-neck, and was not likely to end before the party's national convention in August.

Bernie to vote on bond issue

BERNIE — Voters will go to the polls Tuesday to determine the fate of a proposed $200,000 bond issue to finance an addition to the city's energy supply.

If approved by a simple majority, the money will be used to finance a gas peak-shaving system.

In simple terms, the system uses propane gas mixed with the natural gas supply to ensure a sufficient supply of gas.

Last winter, the city used up its quota of natural gas provided by Texas Eastern Co. even though it was a relatively mild winter. During a more severe winter the quota could be used up and the city would be cut off.

If the bond issue is passed, it will not increase taxes but will be paid off by revenue generated by the project.

A public hearing was held Monday night, but only five persons showed up.

City Clerk Maxine Foster said no opposition to the plan was voiced.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday, and the polling sites will be: ward one, Bernie Farmer's Gin; ward two, National Guard Armory; and ward three, fire station.

Mayor to ride in July 4 game

NEW MADRID — Mayor James H. Cravens has consented to attempt to ride a trick donkey named Olive Oyl at a donkey baseball game scheduled at 7 p.m. July 4 at the Little League Ball Park, according to Beth Henry, chairman, who said the donkey is billed as having never been ridden.

One of the many Fourth of July Bicentennial activities planned at the city park, the game is sponsored by the Community Betterment Committee.

Advance tickets are now on sale at a reduced price over the gate admission, and may be obtained at the City Museum, Bank of New Madrid or from the staff members.

Staff members, in charge of arrangements for the game, include:

Dixie Kay Lloyd, co-chairman; Dot Halstead, treasurer and advance ticket sales; Joe Hunter, chairman, and Lewie Recker and Mark Norrid, beer concession; Bill French and members of Pi Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, gate tickets; Mike Andrew, Dick St. Mary, Leland Phillips and Peter Rost, umpires; Tommy Hall, scorekeeper and equipment; Don Lloyd, grounds.

Jim Stoffer, Mildred Copeland and Shirley Nowell, prize committee; Calvin Broughton and Ben Ashley, announcers; Leroy Nunn, L. H. Recker, Jack Long and Howard Crisler, photographers; Bob Donze, sound effects; Eddie Harris, public address system; Bobby Daniels, poster chairman; Carolyn Fowler and Nancy Hatley, program advertising; Girl Scouts, flag ceremony; and Carol St. Mary, National Anthem.

Dexter school board increases tax rate

DEXTER — A tax rate of $3.95 per $100 assessed valuation was set for the 1976-77 school year Tuesday night by the Dexter School District Board of Education, representing a 26-cent increase over the present rate of $3.69.

The board also rehired all non-certified personnel and sold a house built by the building trades class to Harold Barber of Dexter.

Barber submitted a high bid of $32,000 for the house.

Supt. Thurston Hill reported the district received $1,012,584 in state funds during the past school year.

Fireworks stolen

KEWANEE — Fireworks valued between $70 and $80 were stolen sometime after midnight Wednesday from Stuckey's Pecan Shoppe, located east of town at the Interstate 55 interchange with Routes Y and P.

New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo said a window had been broken and the thieves had reached inside and took seven bundles of firecrackers and an undetermined number of Roman candles.

Teen killed in crash

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A St. Charles teen-ager was killed and four other members in the family received minor injuries in a car-truck collision early this morning, according to the highway patrol.

The death raised the fatalities to 48 on area roads this year, compared to 40 at the same time last year.

The accident occurred at 3:55 a.m. today on Interstate 55, one-half mile north of town.

A car headed south had been stopped in the south bound lane by Eugene A. Vandeven, 41, of Cape Girardeau and was struck from behind by a southbound pickup truck driven by Ronald Wayne Kennedy, 25, of St. Charles. The patrol said Kennedy attempted to avoid the car, which did not have any lights on, but could not and the truck overturned on impact.

John Raymond Kennedy, 13, of St. Charles, who was riding in the back of the truck, was killed. The driver sustained minor injuries and passengers in the truck who received minor injuries included Sona Kennedy, 22, Tommy Shane Kennedy, 5, and Jason Duane Kennedy, 2. The injured were taken to St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

The body of the victim was taken to Ford and Son Funeral Home in Cape Girardeau.

Chase nets stolen cycle

Dan Carlos Wilson, 519 William St., has been charged with receiving stolen property, following a high speed chase in the Southwest part of Sikeston Tuesday morning.

Detective Lt. Jack Patterson said he and Sgt. Dan Hinton saw Wilson riding a freshly painted motorbike on South West Street and decided to check to see if the bike was stolen.

Wilson tried to flee and the detectives pursued the bike down Delmar Street to Daniel Street and onto Murray Lane. Wilson finally flipped the bike in a garden at the end of Ann Drive.

Patterson said Wilson tried to flee on foot and the detectives had to chase him down.

The bike was stolen May 10 in Bertrand from Danny Marshall. Patterson said Wilson did not steal it, but he did purchase the bike.

Symington opposes zoning laws halting rural growth

Second District Rep. Jim Symington, D-St. Louis, said Wednesday he is not in favor of strict federal zoning laws which would halt industrial development in rural areas in an attempt to keep rural air clean.

Symington made the statement during an interview while he was on a two-day campaign tour of Southeast Missouri. He is seeking the U.S. Senate seat being relinquished by his father, Stuart Symington, who is retiring.

Symington was talking about a proposed amendment to the federal Clean Air Act which would prevent development of rural areas. Much of southeast Missouri would fall in an area in which most industrial development would be prohibited.

Area business leaders and public officials have expressed concern over the proposal.

Symington said he is not in favor of the proposal which he said would require that all growth and production come to a halt because the law would not allow deterioration of the air.

Symington said he does not want to see rural areas hampered by strict federal zoning laws.

Symington said he has co-sponsored amendments to the Rural Development Act of 1972 which will require appointment of a new assistant secretary of agriculture for rural development. The amendments also require the department to make "more reasonable progress" in implementing the goals of the Rural Development Act.

Symington said the amendments are necessary because the administration has failed to carry out the provisions of the act.

"They don't even provide the reports they are supposed to," Symington said. "The first and second reports on goals issued by the secretary of agriculture were months late. The third was due in September 1975 and we still haven't seen it."

The amendments would include several functions omitted in the original legislation, such as transportation, financial resources, credit requirements, energy, health and education, Symington said.

Symington said the amendments would direct more agriculture department research money into the small family farm instead of the giant corporate farms, where he said most of the money goes now.

Federal and private financing of basic research has slipped in recent years, and Symington said that has him worried.

"Basic research is the soil

Carter surge begins to show effects on Missouri's uncommitted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The surge of support behind the presidential candidacy of Democrat Jimmy Carter has already begun to have an effect on previously uncommitted Missouri delegates to the party's national convention, an Associated Press survey shows.

And state party officials now predict that as many as 64 of the state's 71 convention delegates will vote for Carter on the first ballot.

When polled by the AP, two previously uncommitted delegates declared for the former Georgia governor and four others said that while they remained uncommitted they preferred Carter over the other candidates.

"I will probably go with Carter on the first ballot," one of those said in a telephone interview, and another added, "I don't believe there's any doubt but that the man has it now."

Four uncommitted delegates could not be reached.

In addition, one delegate each for Congressman Morris Udall and Sen. Henry Jackson expressed support for Carter should their candidates fail to gain the nomination. Those two delegates had previously said they had no candidate preference other than their first choices. Jackson has dropped out of contention and is expected to release his delegates next week.

Following the final primary balloting Tuesday in which Carter drew to within 380 delegates of the 1,505 needed for nomination, three of the front-runner's political rivals threw their support behind Carter and recommended their delegates vote for him at the July convention. Should all those delegates go over to Carter, it would give him well over the number needed for the nomination.

The moves toward Carter by some of the 54 Missouri delegates selected so far boosts his total in the state to 29 firm delegate votes. Earlier switches from the uncommitted ranks gave anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack three delegates, her largest number in any state. Udall has three and Jackson one while 18 delegates remain uncommitted. But that apparently is due in part to dissatisfaction over the way state party leaders, led by U.S. Sen Thomas Eagleton, handled a switch in mid-May from urging selection of uncommitted delegates to backing Carter.

"I don't think it's any indication that they don't like Gov. Carter," said state party chairman John McIlroy of the continuing uncommitted delegates. "I think many of them favor Gov. Carter."

Since that change in strategy on May 13, Carter has picked up increasing support from the Missouri delegation. Selection of the remaining 17 convention delegates comes Saturday when Missouri Democrats meet in their state convention in Jefferson City.

"I had been predicting 10 Carter delegates out of the state convention," said state Treasurer James Spainhower, "but in view of this, I'd say it will be at least 13 of the 17. And no matter how they wind up now, I would say the Missouri delegation will be at least 90 per cent for Carter on the first ballot."

Eagleton had been contacting a number of the uncommitted delegates this week, according to some who talked with the senator, but they said he did not tell them to get behind Carter.

"He just said that the way it looks this thing is kind of rolling toward Carter," one of those delegates contacted said.

Art show set June 20

EAST PRAIRIE— Final plans for the 11th annual Community Art Exhibit, sponsored by the East Prairie Art Guild, are being made and the show is scheduled to open with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. June 20 in First Bank of East Prairie.

The guest artist for this year's show is Tommy D. Ferrell of Springfield, a former East Prairie resident. A commercial artist, Ferrell will feature several water color paintings in the local show, and he and his wife will also serve as judges for the event.

The work will be judged before the show opens, and guests at the show will find award certificates attached to the winning paintings.

Approximately 20 local artists, showing about 50 paintings, are expected by the local art guild. In addition to the local artists, who have shown work previously, several items by beginners, who have painted less than a year, are expected. The beginners' works will bear special identification.

All paintings will be labeled with the title, name of artist and the price if the item is for sale. A bargain bin for unframed and unmounted surplus paintings for sale by exhibitors will also be available.

The only artists permitted to exhibit work in the show will be residents of the East Prairie trade area over 18 years old. All paintings submitted must have been completed within the past year.

Prizes and award certificates to be given by local busines firms includes: purchase prize awards; first place, First Bank of East Prairie, $100; second place, Mississippi County avings & Loan Association, $65; third place, Shelby's, $50; fourth place, East Prairie Lumber Co., $40. Two honorable mention certificates and a most popular certificate will be given by the art guild, with another certificate going to the best painting in the beginner class.

All of the paintings will remain on exhibit in the bank's lobby throughout the week of June 20-26.

PROFIT PINCH IN PANAMA

Whatever else it may be, including fighting words to many Americans, the Panama Canal has not lately been a money-maker.

For only the second time in the 62-year history of the waterway, but for the second time in the past two years, the Panama Canal Company has announced it will raise tolls an average of 19 per cent. The increase in 1974 was about 19.7 per cent.

According to a spokesman for the company, an independent federal agency which operates the canal, the toll hikes have been made necessary because of the worldwide recession and competition from the reopened Suez Canal.

Federal law requires that the canal be self-sufficient, but despite manpower reductions and other cost-cutting measures it has been operating at a loss, with about 1,200 fewer ships expected to pass through it this year than last.

Maybe we ought to unload it while we can.

TIME TO FLY YOUR FLAG!

Americans throughout the land will have the opportunity, this year, to participate personally in a mammoth salute to the 4th of July.

Bicentennial celebration leaders are encouraging communities, businesses, organizations and individuals to fly the United States Flag continuously for 21 days from Flag Day (June 14) through Independence Day (July 4). Participation by people in villages, cities and towns throughout the United States of America will produce a nationwide display of the colors never before equaled in our history.

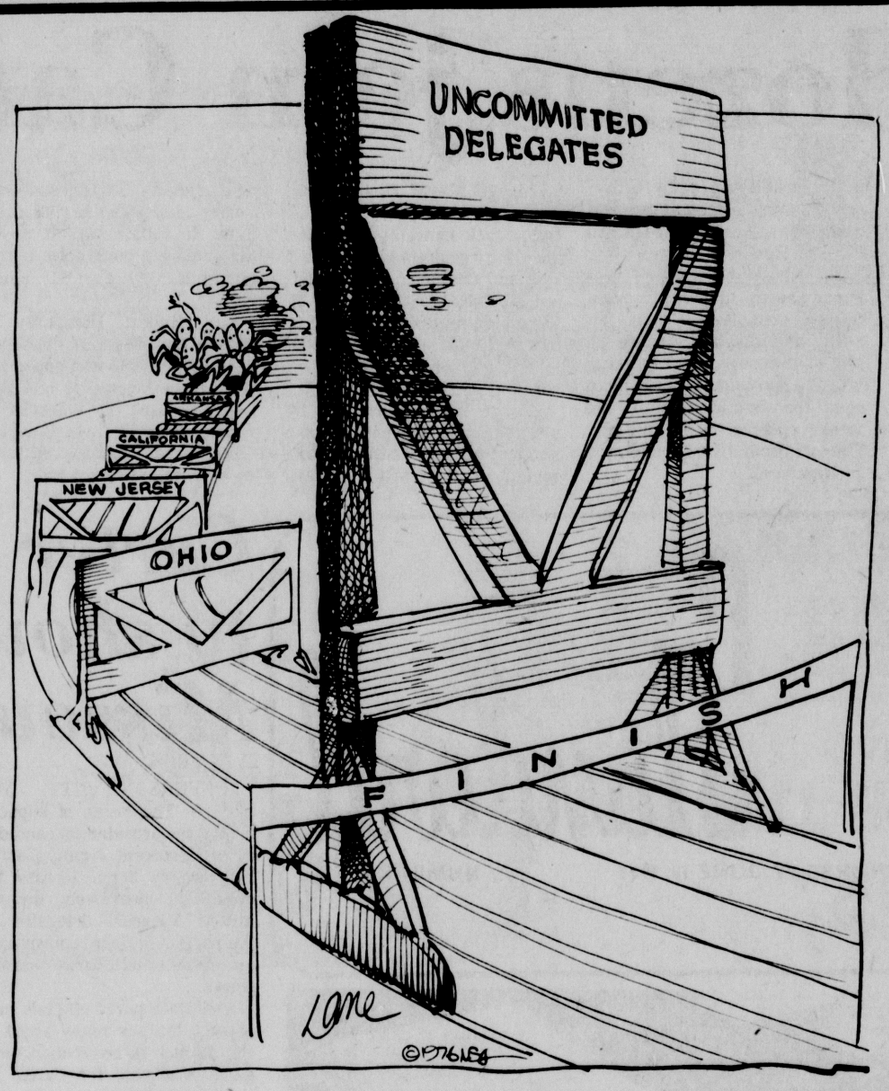

In addition, a simultaneous nationwide ringing of bells for two minutes on July 4th will herald the signing of our Declaration of Independence. Communities, churches, schools and individuals will toll bells and carillons in conjunction with the ringing of the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time. The time selected is exactly 200 years from the precise moment that the Liberty Bell proclaimed the independence of our Nation.

The time to get your flag, pole, halyard, bell, etc. ready is now. We urge every person within reach of this newspaper to join enthusiastically in this great and wonderful celebration.

CIA CHARTER NEVER MEANT CARTE BLANCHE

The Senate Intelligence Committee has made its report on the nation's intelligence system, and painfully many are the excesses, abuses and mistakes charged thereto. Whether or not Congress and the administration now move to adopt reforms the committee recommends depends greatly on whether or not the American people really want reform.

Thanks to repeated leaks of testimony and documents during the course of the committee's 15-month investigation, the report contains no new revelations to jar the public. We have grown accustomed to the CIA's loss of face.

In sum, the investigators found that the Central Intelligence Agency had mounted 900 "major covert actions" since 1961, many of which were given little oversight by outside authorities and the value of which was at best questionable.

These ranged from assassination plots against unfriendly foreign leaders and covert financial and other support of friendly ones, to drug experiments on unsuspecting people to secret operation of business ventures in competition with private companies, plus a host of violations of the CIA's charter prohibiting domestic spying.

All or most of these activities have apparently been stopped or abandoned, which may explain the public's seeming indifference to erecting controls designed to ensure that they are not repeated in the future.

Although there is little evidence that any of the 900 covert actions served America's long-range interests—indeed, the preponderance of evidence points to the contrary—the reaction of many Americans seems to be that any kind of espionage is better than no espionage at all and that if there have been abuses, it is better not to know about them than to expose our soiled linen in full view of the world.

Such a see-no-evil attitude could ultimately prove fatal to American democracy, however, thinks historian Henry Steele Commager, who argues that the United States got along very well from 1789 to 1941 without reliance on so much official secrecy and its companion, official lying.

"It's the business of our people to embarrass our government, that's what democracy is," he says. "Although the dangers of revelation are there, they are not serious and can never endanger the survival of the nation.

"But the dangers of secrecy may destroy the nation, and even mankind."

One aspect of official secrecy the Senate committee would end is that surrounding the total budget of the intelligence community. The people, it believes, should be permitted to make judgments on the nature and extent of the governnent's commitment to intelligence activities. The Ford administration is opposed to this, as well as to sharing oversight of intelligence activities with Congress.

Commager would go further and scrap the CIA and related organizations entirely because they are beyond reform. He suggests we start over again with the "comparatively innocuous" agencies that handled intelligence gathering before World War II.

Few Americans would probably go along with that, if only because the world has changed greatly since 1941 and the threats to democracy are far more sinister than they were in the first 160 or so years of the nation's history.

But certainly, if we do nothing else, we must return the intelligence community to its original purpose for existence. That is, to gather the hard data on which the country's elected leaders can base sound policy judgments and wise decisions—not to engage in ventures which amount to policy-making of its own, ventures that we have seen have been not only foolish and counterproductive but at variance with American ideals.

ASSOCIATION HEAD URGES BUSINESS TO SHOW HIGHEST ETHICAL STANDARDS

"A determined and continuing effort to remove doubts about the moral commitment of American business is of paramount importance," the head of the nation's leading manufacturing group said in an open letter on business ethics and morality.

R.C. Kautz, chairman, National Association of Manufacturers and chairman, Grain Processing Co., Muscatine, Ia., who signed the letter appearing on the front page of a recent issue of the Association's magazine, NAM Reports, called on executives of 13,000 member companies to set the "finest example we can attain within our firms." The text of the letter said in part:

"The decline in public confidence that has affected virtually all American institutions in recent years has recently been intensified in regard to the business community through press disclosures of questionable practices here and abroad.

"I address this message to you because I share your concern over the gravity of this problem and seek your help in dealing forthrightly and promptly with the issue in all aspects of your individual business operations.

"While bribery, kickbacks, illegal political contributions and similar practices are abhorrent to most businessmen, the business community generally has been stigmatized by public disclosures of violations of certain U.S. laws and other practices that may be acceptable in many places abroad but which are morally unacceptable here at home.

"I realize that this latter problem is an especially difficult one to deal with because of the highly competitive international marketing environment—but perhaps this is all the more reason why businessmen must face up squarely to its challenges. Business leaders, as the focal point of large numbers of employes, stockholders, supplies and customers, as well as of the public generally, occupy a unique position of trust and responsibility in our society. They must, therefore, set exemplary, high standards throughout their business operations—and maintain vigilance in helping assure that their associates also live up to these principles.

"The need for this renewed dedication is overriding not just to set a better tone in the society we live in but for many practical reasons. I believe that the declines we suffer in public confidence severely handicap business in making an effective contribution to public policies. Yet, we all know that if America is to resume solid, long-term economic growth, effective business participation is crucial. The views of knowledgeable business leaders must be respected and acted upon if the nation is to succeed in combating inflation, high unemployment and other economic ills.

"We've all expended great effort in trying to persuade government to lighten the burden imposed on business operations by excessive regulations and outmoded tax policies. To get relief from such impediments and play our needed role in creating an improved climate for economic growth, we in business must demonstrate to the public that we are worthy of confidence and support.

"A determined and continuing effort to remove doubts about the moral commitment of American business is of paramount importance—and never more so than at this time in history. The task is up to you, me and other business leaders to implement, company by company.

"The American public looks to—and depends on—all business manaagements for guidance and leadership in setting the finest example we can attain within our own firms. We must not fail in this historic undertaking and opportunity."

LAW AND ORDER OR JUSTICE?

No criminal has been executed in the United States since 1967. Nevertheless, we do have a form of capital punishment which is likely to continue, no matter what the Supreme Court finally decides.

Between 1960 and 1970, 561 policemen and 2,846 civilians met with violent death, according to a study by University of Washington psychotherapist Dr. Arthur L. Kobler, as reported in Human Behavior magazine.

Of 1,500 incidents where police killed civilians during the 1960s, only three resulted in the punishment of the officers involved, even though, says Kobler, 60 per cent of the killings were deemed to be of questionable or unjustifiable necessity.

The law specifies that police are justified in using "deadly force" only when they or others are in danger of grave bodily harm, or to prevent the escape of a felon. But the police and the legal system have pushed the limits much farther, Kobler charges.

He found that almost 30 per cent of police victims were either involved in a misdemeanor such as a traffic violation or were doing nothing at all wrong. Another 27 per cent were stealing a car or committing some other property crime. The rest were either involved in a dangerous felony, were threatening others or had already assaulted others. A quarter of the victims had no weapons, and a quarter were shot in the back.

If the authorities, or juries in the few cases that have gone to trial, are reluctant to punish officers involved in deadly incidents, public opinion polls show less concern over police abuse of firearms that concern that the media are too critical of police action.

Most people believe that if a policeman shoots a criminal, or suspected criminal, in the course of duty, the killing is justified. After all, no honest person will run away if ordered to stop by a policeman, and if the police ever become afraid to use their weapons for fear of prosecution—there goes law and order.

But the result, says Kobler, may be that we have law an order in lieu of justice.

REGULATORY OVERKILL

Nearly 300 federal agencies or bureaus, 35 congressional committees and 450 state agencies have some jurisdiction over energy matters, according to Rep. Bill Archer.

The Texas Republican said, "It has been estimated that regulations promulgated by the Federal Energy Administration alone have added bureaucratic costs of some $10 billion a year to the nation's expenditures for petroleum products. The real question is whether these and other regulations have been effective in providing long-term solutions to the nation's energy shortage. Overregulation clearly has made the situation worse."

GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER?

WASHINGTON— Everyone is doing something about the Bicentennial. The Diner's Club is running an informal survey amongst Americans asking them who in history they would like to celebrate the Fourth of July with and why. Where would they take them for dinner and, finally, what would they order in the way of food and drink?

The answers have included such varied people as Thomas Jefferson, Teddy Roosevelt, Al Capone and Richard Nixon -- NECESSARILY in that order.

Although I hate questionnaires, the survey is rather intriguing and I've been mulling over my answer for days. I've finally decided the only person I want to have dinner with is "Deep Throat," the one of Watergate fame, not the lady from the X-rated film. (I have nothing against her, but on the 200th anniversary of our country I believe an American should abstain from sex in tribute to the founders of our country, because if it hadn't been for them there might not have been any sex in America as we know it today. (Even after 200 years the British still don't know how to do it right or so I've been told.)

In any case I think "Deep Throat" would be fun to have dinner with. I would like to take him to the Sans Souci, but knowing his proclivity for wanting to stay out of the limelight I would select the C level of a garage somewhere on the outskirts of Washington.

First, I would stop off at a Kentucky Fried Chicken place and pick up a bucket of chicken and French fries and a six-pack of beer.

I'd find a nice quiet place in the garage where we wouldn't get run over, and I'd spread out The Washington Post on the floor so we wouldn't get our clothes and food dirty.

The first question I would ask him, which I've always been curious about, would be "What was Bob Woodward really like? Did he look anything like Robert Redford, or was Woodward much better looking?

Once we got over the amenities I'd get down to business. I would question him about his role in the Nixon Administration. Did he blow the White House cover story about Watergate because he had been mistreated by Haldeman, Ehrlichman or Colson, or was he mad at Nixon personally because he had never been invited to Sunday morning church services at the White House?

Then I'd ask him about his personal life. Was he married? If so, how did he explain his absences at night to his wife? Did she believe he was really meeting with a reporter from The Washington Post, or did she accuse him, when he came home at those early hours in the morning, of being up to no-good with some secretary on Capitol Hill?

In the book and the movie, "All the President's Men," "Deep Throat" told Woodward to fly a red flag from the potted plant on his apartment balcony when the reporter wanted to see him, and then "Deep Throat" would mark the hour of appointment on page 20 of Woodward's New York Times. I would ask him if Woodward ever got mad at him for messing up his New York Times before he had a chance to read it?

Finally, I would ask "Deep Throat" after we finished the six-pack of beer, if he ever thought about writing his own book about Watergate. I would point out that there were publishers in this country willing to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars for it and I would offer to collaborate with him on the project. He could keep half the royalties, which is 50 percent more than he got from Woodward and Bernstein. I would also guarantee him that if we sold it to the movies I would make sure Robert Redford played him, and Hal Holbrook would get the minor role of Bob Woodward.

The thought may have occurred to you, as it has to me, that "Deep Throat" could easily have been a woman -- perhaps a disenchanted wife of one of the people involved in Watergate. For my sake I hope it isn't true, because I would have a helluva time explaining to my wife what I was doing in a garage eating fried chicken and drinking beer with another woman on the 200th anniversary of the United States at three o'clock in the morning.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Torture Ship Salutes Bicentennial
with LES SHITTEN

WASHINGTON— Chile's military dictatorship is sending a torture ship to participate in the U.S. Bicentennial.

The "Esmeralda" will be one of over 200 handsome vessels from 35 nations that will participate in "Operation Sail," a seagoing salute in New York Harbor on the Fourth of July.

President Ford may even be among the 3,000 dignitaries who will review the waterborne parade from the deck of the U.S. aircraft carrier Forrestal.

Hundreds of Chilean men and women were mercilessly tortured aboard the Esmeralda following the military coup of September 1973, which overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Spokesmen for the dictatorship denied to us that the Esmeralda was a torture ship. The evidence to the contrary, however, is overwhelming.

In the fall of 1974, for example, the Organization of American States sent a team to Chile to investigate the status of human rights there. They were not permitted to see the Esmeralda, according to the OAS report, on the grounds that it was a "military area." They interrogated many prisoners, however, who testified with "significant unanimity" that the Esmeralda was a torture site.

"I was stripped to my shorts and my hands were handcuffed behind me," swore one prisoner who was aboard the ship. "They applied electric shock on my skin, on my testicles, on my chest and back. Also the officers who were interrogating me hit me 50 times ... with their fists. All of this left me black and blue, as the Red Cross verified when they came ..."

Another man testified that he was beaten with a rifle butt until "I began to urinate blood." One prisoner was taken on the Esmeralda to an island concentration camp and "arrived with a piece burned out of his tongue."

Luis Vega Contreras, a Chilean lawyer now living in Israel, has signed a sworn statement attesting to his treatment aboard the Esmeralda. Contreras, once an attorney for the Chilean Ministry of the Interior, said he was beaten with a rifle, kicked, put under a high pressure jet of sea water, and given electric shocks on his tooth fillings.

At one point, said Contreras, he was told to stand over a prisoner who had been shocked and whose back was raw with wounds. "He had salt on his wounds, sea salt. I was forced ... to grind the salt with my feet so that it would seep into the wounds... I had to do this under the pressure of blows and machine guns."

The ship, Contretras concluded, "had been for me and for 10,000,000 Chileans, the White Lady, the National Pride," he wrote in his statement. "It represented Chilean democracy, manhood, the chivalry of Chilean officers and sailors. Today it is a torture chamber, a floating jail of horror, death, and fear to Chilean men and women under the hands of soldiers and officers who ... belong to an occupation army..."

On the Fourth of July, ironically, this ship of horrors will sail in honor of America's freedom.

Footnote: Frank O. Braynard, general manager for Operation Sail, told us he was aware of Esmeralda's reputation and was "very concerned." But, he said, he was trying to make Operation Sail a "people-to-people effort" which avioded "the political."

G.I. SERVANTS: Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf recently registered a mild complaint that our stories about the pampering of the military brass were unfair.

We have now reviewed our findings. We have spoken to enlisted aides and have inspected some of their actual work schedules.

We have concluded that the brass hats are driving around less in chauffeured cars and are cutting down on the domestic duties of their enlisted aides.

But we found aides still cleaning bathrooms, scrubbing kitchen floors, baking cookie for their commanding officers' children, sweeping ceilings, cleaning up after pets, tending gardens, making beds and doing laundry.

These chores appear to violate Defense Department directives which state that aides should help officers only in the preformance of official duties. But it is the officers' wives, we found, more than the officers who use enlisted aides as domestic servants.

We have seen work schedules, prepared by the wives, ordering the enlisted aides to scrub bathroom and basement floors, to "wash venetian blinds, clean windows and stoves," to vacuum rugs and "clean under the bed."

Other GI servants pull weeds, trim hedges and spread fertilizer in their commanding officers' gardens. Others serve as butlers, waiters and bus boys at the military wives' luncheons.

Some wives get restless when their servants run out of things to do. One wife, for example, summoned a weary aide in from the garden and ordered him to bake cookies and cakes so her childen would have enough munchies for the weekend. He was rushed into the kitchen before he could even wash his hands.

Footnote: In recent years, Congress has reduced the number of authorized enlisted aides from 1,722 to 378. Each of the military chiefs is entitled to four servants who receive annual salaries of $10,000 plus benefits. This means the taxpayers are doling out more than $40,000 for each chief's housecleaning and errand-running. A Pentagon spokesman said that commanding officers are complying with departmental directives which regulate the preformance of enlisted aides.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Blacks Demand It:
Big presidential issue will be $30 billion annual make-work law

WASHINGTON— When thousands of delegates come marching into the Democrats' Madison Square Garden there'll be mighty few blacks among them. Perhaps some 225 -- about half those who roared for George McGovern in Miami.

That's strange after all the desperate infighting over affirmative political action in the precincts. Not to mention a set of delegate selection rules so intricate they'd confound a Copernicus.

But mistake this not for black weakness. For months now their leaders, elected officials from offices high and low across the land, have been meeting in big and small caucuses in New York, Washington, Atlanta, Charlotte and points west.

And they've hammered their message home: the nation's black communities produce 25 per cent of the Democrats' national vote in a presidential year. Thus, the black bloc expects input and impact in the Garden. They are demanding a quid pro quo.

Nothing as romantic, some of them tell me, as expecting one of them to be a vice-presidential candidate. (No black or any woman can expect second slot this year, Vince Clephas, Democratic National Committee director of communications tells me, the reasoning being no black or woman has yet had the time to develop the visibility.)

What the black community's national leaders insist on is congressional passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins job bill (or Hawkins-Humphrey bill, depending where you discuss it) in the next 90 days.

In effect, some members of the Congressional Black Caucus want this H.R. 50, the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976, on President Ford's desk long enough before November to make it the national issue.

Few observers realize how swiftly this bill is hurtling at the Oval Office. It passed overwhelmingly through the House Labor Committee. Soon it will hit the floor. Not too long afterward, the full Senate will have it. Yet most primary-groggy newspeople have overlooked the full significance of the full employment movement.

The odds are 99.9 per cent to .1 that President Ford will veto it. Already he has dubbed it a "vast, election-year boondoggle."

Skillfully averting an early showdown, Secretary of Labor Bill Usery hasn't hit it head-on because his former colleagues in the AFL-CIO have given the bill husky support. But Assistant Secretary of Labor William Kolberg has testified the act would cost the nation some $30 billion annually. Not much argument over this. The Humphrey-Hawkins bill handlers estimate the cost at $25 billion. But add that the "fully employed" would pay sufficient taxes to cut this outlay in half.

Point isn't what Jerry Ford will do with it. Point is what a possible Democratic administration will do if it's in office in January 1977. All Democratic presidential hopefuls (with possible exception of George Wallace) have endorsed H.R. 50.

Thus, unless a possible Democratic successor to Jerry Ford wants to chop the black bloc off the Democratic party, he will sign the bill once it's rushed through the new Congress.

What really is this act? It does far more than call for the expenditure of $25 to $30 billion a year to make work for all jobless over 16 years of age. It sets up the goal of a maximum of 3 per cent joblessness by 1980. Less if possible.

This, the act's champions say, can be done by creating a permanent job guarantee office. If the President of the U.S. can't develop a successful program to achieve this, then the federal government becomes the employer of last resort -- at minimum or prevailing wages. Four little words, for a drastic socio-political shift in America's economy.

Under this bill, pushed by Minnesota's very own Hamlet, Hubert Humphrey, and California's black representative from the Los Angeles region, Gus Hawkins, the President must submit to Congress a full employment and balanced growth statement. This would "serve as the nation's economic blueprint" says the Congressional Black Caucus.

The presidential message would contain target goals for employment, production and purchasing power, as well as the President's methods for achieving them.

Thus -- here you have another few words with sufficient power imbedded in them to change over much of America's commerce and industry. To achieve this the President, the Congress an the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board are directed to work it all out by coordinately developing new fiscal, monetary and other economic policies. Meaning heavy federal spending.

Insiders are counting on this becoming one of the big talk-it-up issues at Madison Square Garden -- and later. Obviously, this political campaign won't be just a beauty contest between Messrs. Ford, Reagan, Carter, et al. This could change the face of America.

Gallaghers to aid Bird campaign

Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher

G. David Bird, Democratic candidate for 159th District state representative, has appointed Mr. and Mrs. John D. Gallagher, 121 Linda Drive, campaign co-chairmen of the Bird for Representative Committee.

Gallagher, a native of Sikeston, is a member of First United Methodist Church, the Sikeston Jaycees and various other civic and church groups. He is a supervisor for Mid-Delta Agency Inc.

Mrs. Gallagher, the former Judy Matthews of Bloomfield, is a member of the Sikeston Junior Women's Club and First United Methodist Church. She is employed as an instructor at Models, Unlimited.

Bird stated that Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will be responsible for coordinating all campaign activities through the Aug. 3 primary election.

Rats, lambs to aid scientists with the Parkinson's disease

COLUMBIA — Rats and lambs can be used as "models" to study the biochemistry of Parkinson's disease in humans, University of Missouri-Columbia scientists reported today.

Both of the animals, when suffering from copper deficiencies, show a decrease in the brain neurotransmitter, dopamine, as is found in Parkinson's disease. That means researchers can use them as "guinea pigs" to learn about the mechanisms involved – information that could help prevent or cure the disease.

Speaking at the 10th annual conference on Trace Substances in Environmental Health, R. F. Morgan, P. G. Reeves and Boyd O'Dell, UMC biochemists, reported findings with rates which substantiated O'Dell's earlier research with lambs.

"We conducted the extended study to investigate copper-zinc relationships because commonly in human disease sinc in blood goes down and copper goes up," said O'Dell.

"This happens in people with cancer or some liver disease. It also occurs during pregnancy and with oral contraceptives which contain the hormone, progesterone."

The UMC researchers noted that whenever rats were fed zinc deficient diets, the copper level in their blood plasma went up.

Rats fed no zinc in their diet had no weight gains, while those fed as little as 10 parts per million (ppm) of zinc gained 40 grams in 19 days.

Those fed no zinc had six times as much copper as zinc in their blood plasma, compared to a one to one ratio in those getting normal diets.

"After two to three weeks, the rats had a rough hair coat and began to look pretty sad," noted O'Dell.

"Since copper levels go up when zinc is down, you might expect zinc to go up when copper goes down. But that wasn't the way it worked in our study.

"When we fed a low copper diet, copper was low all right; but it didn't change the amount of zinc in the blood plasma at all. Ditto for the liver and brain.

"Zinc concentrations in most tissues remained constant when copper is low and tended to remain constant even when zinc is low. Still animals do poorly on a copper deficient diet because they need copper to grow.

"With a copper deficient diet, only three of the 13 rats survived to seven weeks of age, and none of them gained weight.

"Besides, copper deficiency caused obvious brain damage with symptoms similar to Parkinson's disease. Both neurotransmitters, dopamine andnorepinephrine, were decreased in the brain of the copper deficient animals.

"We saw the same thing in earlier studies with lambs.

"Since these transmitters control motor skills, the animals behaved much the same as humans afflicted with Parkinson's disease. The lambs, for example, suffered from ataxia or a stumbling gait.

"Next we would like to find out why this decrease in nerve transmitter substances occurs. What is the mechanism that causes it? If scientists learn that, it would certainly have some implications for helping cope with Parkinson's disease."

Corps of Engineers to start crackdown on lake litterers

WAPPAPELLO— The Corps of Engineers will begin a crackdown this weekend against violators of the new regulations at People's Creek at Lake Wappapello.

Mike McClendon, lake manager for the Corps, said the Corps will start giving citations and refer the violators to the U.S. Magistrate Court in Salem. Persons could be fined up to $25.

The regulations against food, drinks or pets being allowed at People's Creek started a couple of weeks ago after the Corps decided something had to be done about the litter problem. The regulations apply only to People's Creek since more than $5,000 worth of improvements have been made.

McClendon said the other beaches will fall under the regulations after work has been done on them.

McClendon said, "The beach looks like a slum and we are not going to tolerate it any more. We are not trying to get smart, but trying to give the public a wholesome, quality recreational experience. He said the regulations are not new or unusual and pointed out this is common on all beaches in St. Louis.

Citations also will be given for illegal parking. McClendon said there is a problem with people parking in the middle of the road.

Miss Blue: from mop to mike

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Will success spoil Miss Blue?

Fat chance, say the 62-year-old clearning lady-turned-star and those who work around her at KMOX Radio. Miriam Blue is the same person today that she was before she was discovered by radio, television, newspaper and magazine reporters late last year.

"How can I change?" she asked with a wide smile that comes across even over the radio when she gives her 100,000-plus listeners her patented "All is well" at the beginning and end of her twice-weekly advice to the lovelorn segment of the Jack Carney show.

"When people change, the weight starts piling up on their spoulders," she said. "I'm a simple person and that keeps me going day-by-day, just the way I've always been."

Even so, Miss Blue will be the first to admit that a lot of things in her life have changed since the day Carney decided to put her on his show to give her sometimes serious, sometimes spoofing but always funny answers to questions sent in by listeners. Prior to that, Miriam Blue's sole responsibility at the radio station was cleaning windows, dumping ashtrays and wastecans and sweeping floors.

"I understand that people are talking about me even in New York, now," Miss Blues mused. "That's really strange to me, because I didn't even believe people would ever recognize me in my home town of East St. Louis, Ill.

"I love it, of course, because I love all the people out there. But I won't let it spoil me. I can't afford it."

Even though she continues with her duties seven days a week as a cleaning lady, Miss Blue is piling up an impressive list of accomplishments.

To date she has been featured in articles in the Wall Street Journal and hundreds of other newspapers in the U.S. and overseas and in People Weekly magazine. She has appeared on the television game show "To Tell the Truth" (where only one of four panelists guessed her identity) and on a segment of the David Susskind show on the east coast. Coming up is a 14-minute segment on CBS Magazine, the television network's daytime version of 60 Minuteds,and a feature article by the Washington Post.

American child stops growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — American children have stopped growing taller, thereby breaking a century-old trend of youngsters towering over their parents, the government reported Wednesday.

One medical expert speculated that the U.S. population had reached its maximum genetic growth potential.

The findings, if they hold up in future years, hold important implications for the transportation, housing, sports, clothing and furniture industries.

Professional basketball scouts, for example, could not be confident of finding even taller centers in future crops of superstars. The seats on modern-day buses and subways wouldn't be as uncomfortable in 20 years as the seats on pre-World War II buses are today. And the hotel-motel industry wouldn't have to bring in so many oversized beds.

But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the new set of child growth charts, the first update in more than 40 years, will prove most valuable to physicians. They will indicate poor nutrition or health problems if a young patient ranges at the low or high end of the national growth averages.

The charts are based on studies of more than 20,000 children across the country over the last 15 years. The charts were mathematically calculated and plotted by computers.

Sure-fire dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A sure-fire dessert, and easy to prepare.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¾ cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup commercial sour cream
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 pint strawberries, sliced and sweetened to taste

Stir together the gelatin and sugar; add the boiling water and stir until gelatin and sugar are dissolved — about 5 minutes of stirring. Stir in the cream; chill until slightly thickened; add sour cream and vanilla; beat until blended and bubbly. Pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill to have firm — at least 2 hours. Unmold onto serving plate and spoon the strawberries over the Cream. Makes 6 sevings.

IN THE KITCHEN: EASY UP-DATE AT LOW COST

If your kitchen is suffering from tired blood—don't panic. Worn kitchen cabinets and unsightly scarred counter tops can get an easy face lift to improve the kitchen's outlook as well as yours without putting a drain on your pocketbook. You can spruce up the appearance of your entire kitchen without having to spend oodles of money if you work with what you've got. If you've been thinking of a major kitchen renovation, you may save yourself time and money by making a few simple, less costly changes that can breathe new vitality into an old, overworked cooking area.

Kitchen cabinets, a major investment in any kitchen, are furniture items that must take a tremendous amount of wear and tear. Often the victims of grease stains, soot build-up, and even burn damage, cabinets must be sturdy, easy to clean, and most important, easily repaired. If your old cabinets are damaged and you feel it necessary to replace them, consider genuine hardwood cabinets of perhaps birch, oak, maple, mahogany or ash. These hardwood cabinets not only offer limitless decorative style potential, but they lend durability and easy maintenance as well. When making the decision to buy new cabinets, remember that a good kitchen cabinet is one which can survive normal everyday abuse. That's why plastic or printed wood grain cabinets are a poor investment in the long run. Once a printed grain surface is scratched, stained or damaged, it can never be restored to look like new.

If you have hardwood cabinets in your kitchen right now, you can easily refinish them to give them new life. By stripping off the old finish, hardwood cabinets can be restained a darker shade or bleached to a lighter color for a totally different, refreshing look. Good hardwood cabinets can also be restored to perfect condition by simply changing cabinet doors. Hardwood doors can be obtained at your local kitchen dealer, where you will find a wide selection of different styles

When you open a jar of homemade pickles and find there's less liquid in the jar than when you filled it, don't worry. The loss of liquid will not have caused the pickles to spoil, though the pickles at the top may have darkened.

Ann Landers

Is man in woman's clothes 'sick'?

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column about men who enjoy wearing women's clothing. You seem to have the idea they are "peculiar" or sick. Why?

Everywhere you look you see women wearing men's clothes -- trousers, vests, shirts, ties, coats, shoes, even hats. No one suggests that these women are strange. In fact, they are considered fashionable.

When did it become acceptable for women to dress like men, and why the discrimination against men who dress like women? We hear a lot about male chauvinism. What about the crass discrimination against men by members of the opposite sex?

How about bringing THIS out of the closet? -- The Time Is Now

Dear Now: Women started to dress like men during World War II when they were doing men's work on the assembly lines. Rosie the Riveter couldn't very well climb on beams and girders wearing a skirt and high heels. Pants and boots made a lot more sense.

Rosie grew to like pants because they were practical, comfortable, and different. She never gave them up.

Men who enjoy dressing like women do so not for any practical reason, but because they like to pretend they ARE women. Invariably, they start by wearing women's underwear in secret. This is sick. If a female got her jollies wearing jockey shorts, men's sox and garters, I'd say SHE was sick, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I found the letter by "Blemished" interesting. Why didn't you tell her the problem isn't on her face but in her head?

I have three birthmarks on my right cheek. All my life people have been asking, "What are those?" Some have said, "When are you going to have those things removed?" My answer is, "What is it to YOU? It's MY face." That stops them cold.

For anyone who has kinky hair, crooked teeth, or an oversized nose, I have a message. It's what's inside that counts. My mother taught me this when I was a young child. One of her favorite sayings was, "You can't judge a book by its cover." -- I'm O.K.

Dear O.K.: It's good to think well of one's self but I don't agree with your philosophy.

One who judges a book by its cover may be misled -- but it's dumb to settle for an unattractive cover on a good book. These days no one has to go through life with kinky hair, crooked teeth or an oversized nose -- unless they want to.

Your answer to people who mention your birthmarks smacks of belligerence, almost as if you are keeping them to show people you don't care what they think. If, however, you insist on hanging onto it, for whatever reason, it's your business.

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters about relatives who tickle children "all in fun." May I comment?

As a student of Oriental history and Far Eastern culture I can tell you that tickling was a form of torture several centuries back. Any pediatrician will verify the fact that prolonged tickling of children can cause hysterics and even convulsions. The expression "tickled to death" is more than just a phrase.

I hope your advice to "cut it out" does some good. -- Vallejo, Cal.

Dear V.: If my advice doesn't persuade them, perhaps your letter will. Thanks for writing.

EYES WERE OPEN

PUTNAM, Tex. (AP) — Ruel Reynolds, who runs an antique store here in an old 70,000-barrel oil storage tank, always has his eye open for a profit.

On the Monday after Christmas he was on his way to Anson to pick up some items he had purchased at an auction.

He saw lying on the road the body of a coyote that had been killed by a passing motorist.

Thinking that it was a traffic hazard — and that the J and L Packing Co. a mile ahead offered to buy pelts or unskinned animals, Reynolds loaded the body into his car. His reward at the packing company was $7.

Howard receives degree

Educators focus priorities on basic economic education

JEFFERSON CITY — Economic education, one of the basic skills which is now a top priority of the State Board of Education, was the major instructional topic at a recent board meeting at Kirksville.

The state board adopted the basic skills as its top priority for Missouri's public schools at its April meeting.

A cooperative plan to expand and improve economic education for the state's more than one million public school students was presented to the board at Kirksville by staff members from the State Department of Education and the Missouri Council on Economic Education.

Under this program, students would receive economic instruction in two separate but related areas: practices which an individual can use in daily life and the principles and workings of the American economic system.

The instruction, for grades kindergarten through high school, in most schools, would be part of the social studies curriculum. It also could be integrated into mathematics, home economics and business education courses.

Presently, the thrust in economic education is teacher oriented, with training workshops for teachers planned on a statewide basis. Within four years, according to current plans, Centers for Economic Education will be operational at eight of the teacher-training universities and colleges in Missouri. The council hopes to sponsor at least 10 summer teacher workshops of two to five weeks by 1979.

Within a year, the State Department of Education also will make available to the schools economic education materials through a series of programs developed for instructional television. The series is now being produced by the national Agency for Instructional Television.

Members of the Missouri Council on Economic Education represent business, labor, agriculture, finance and education.

Other actions by the State Board of Education included:

Approved a program which continues special, supplementary educational services for children of migrant agricultural workers. It is estimated that about 3,600 children would receive the services, primarily in the Bootheel area and the extreme southwest region of the state.

Reappointed Edwin D. Bihr of Columbia to the Public School Retirement System's board of trustees for a four-year term, beginning July 1.

Adopted a resolution of appreciation of W.C. Banta's service on the State Board of Education. Banta, a resident of Charleston, was a member of the board for seven years and served as its president in 1972-73. He resigned from the board May 7 to become judge of the probate court and ex-officio magistrate of Mississippi County.

Appointed 18 boards of arbitration to resolve local school district boundary line questions. Each of the boards has three members, none of whom are residents of the districts involved.

The next meeting of the State Board of Education is scheduled June 24-25 at Kansas City.

The Bath White Butterfly was named in England in 1702 because of its resemblance to a piece of embroidery created in Bath.

"HEALTH TIPS"

EXTRAS

A proper diet is necessary to good health. The four main groups of food essential to a good diet are: 1) milk and other dairy foods; 2) meat, fish, poultry, eggs, beans and nuts; 3) fruit and vegetables; 4) cereals and bread. Those who require a low-fat diet should drink skim milk, which still retains the healthful nutrients and vitamins in milk.

Glass-like material are suitable for bones

WASHINGTON (AP) — A glass-like material that fuses directly into bone could lead to saving thousands of limbs now amputated because they aren't suitable for artificial bone implants, a researcher says.

Dr. Larry L. Hench reported Monday that artificial bone attached to the real thing with a substance called bioglass has been successfully tested in animals and the results show "great promise" for human use.

Hench, director of the Biomedical Engineering Program at the University of Florida and the inventor of bioglass, said human trials are under way in Europe and are likely to start in the United States within two years.

Addressing a symposium sponsored by the American Chemical Society and 12 other scientific organizations, Hench said bioglass was used successfully to install hip joints in sheep, artificial leg bones in dogs and parts of jawbones in baboons.

One of the most exciting possibilities for bioglass is to bind replacement sections to long bones, as in legs and arms, when a seriously damaged section has been removed, Hench said.

It is extremely difficult to replace such sections because the forces they must withstand in use were too much for normal attachment methods, he said. As a result, otherwise healthy limbs often must be amputated.

The bioglass bond is strong enough to overcome such difficulties, he added.

Bioglass is similar to window glass, but contains carefully formulated amounts of certain elements — chiefly calcium and phosphorus — which make it resemble hydroxyapatite, the principal mineral in bone.

WINCHESTER STATION

NBC program functioning for second year in the red

NEW YORK (AP) — Come June 18, NBC Radio's "News and Information Service" starts its second year on the air, still in the red, still costing $10 million a year to operate and still trying to persuade prospective station clients that all-news radio is the only way to go.

NBC executives initially hoped to have 75 stations in the nation's top 100 markets signd for NIS' 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week news service when it began. It only began with 27 stations in major and minor markets.

Too optimistic?

"No, I wasn't too optimstic," says Jack G. Thayer, head of NBC's radio division, adding that NIS now serves 62 all-news stations with another 11 scheduled to start the service in the next three months.

"What happened was simply this: This happens to be the best year radio has ever had. And as a consequence, stations that normally don't do too well are doing fantastic business."

He said even though the nation's economic recession was at its worst last year, sponsors planning their 1976 budgets poured more money than ever before into radio because (a) TV time was scarce, and (b) they cut back on their more costly-to-make TV ads, opting for more advertising for the same dollar on radio.

"So, many of the clients we'd talked to before, the guys who'd made certain commitments to us, said, 'Jack, just let us go through this year (1976) because it's going to be just so much gravy'," he said.

"They said, 'Nobody's asking what our (ratings) numbers are. They're just calling up and placing business.' As a result, some stations we thought would be on line this year probably won't be on until next year."

COINS

If you have any of the coins listed it will pay you to read these few words:

Questions And Answers

QUESTION: Is it true that the older my coins, the more valuable they are?

ANSWER: This is not true. For example — a 1950 D nickel is worth much more than the oldest nickel minted and dated 1866. A 1955 P half dollar is worth more than 1855 P. An 1893 S Silver dollar is worth more than an 1840 dollar. These are just a few examples. There are many, many more. The value of a coin can be determined by low mintage popularity, ect.

QUESTION: Should I sell my coins now? I do not need the money.

ANSWER: It is always easier to sell to a known buyer than to try to find a buyer when you need the money. And if you never foresee needing the cash your coins will bring, it is still wiser to have the cash working than laying idle.

QUESTION: I've thought of giving my old coins to my children and grandchildren. What's wrong with this?

ANSWER: Nothing — If you can divide them equitably. This is extremely hard to do as the value of one may go up while down on another. Selling the coins while you control them and dividing the money into even savings accounts is always safe. And at today's interest this money should double in 13 years.

Our Business Is Buying Coins

The prices quoted in this ad are what we will pay for U.S. coins on which all features, date, lettering are clear and sharp. Lower prices are paid for coins that are worn and higher prices for those that are in new mint condition. No coins wanted that are bent, corroded, or have holes through them. PLEASE DO NOT CLEAN YOUR COINS. We hope you will bring yours in to us during our short stay — whether you have 50c worth or several thousands, you can be certain of a courteous CASH offer.

Route 66 soon to be 'fading lady'

LITCHFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Route 66. They called her the Main Street of America. She was more.

She was the stuff of adventure, of promise, of romance, even of song. She was the nation bending in a stream of westward expansion, reaching again for opportunity's brass ring shining just within reach on California's sunny shore.

She was the queen of our automotive dreams, the quickest, the longest, the busiest, the proudest, the best continuous east-west highway in the country. From the corner of Jackson Boulevard and Michigan Avenue in Chicago to Santa Monica Boulevard in Santa Monica, Calif, she rolled 2,255 miles, beckoning generations.

And now she's a fading lady, a gentle, worn-out, seedy sort of underemployed madam, to whom fathers take their sons for their first turn at the wheel.

Soon — before year's end — she'll be mostly a memory in Illinois and across the Mississipi in Missouri. And time is running out on her everywhere.

Through city and village, past suburb and backwater, along pasture and prairie, she ribboned across Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. Assembled from a collection of local roads and cow paths, she was freighted with expectations even before her dedication by Congress in 1932.

Tom Joad and his family made their way out of the old Dust Bowl to the Grapes of Wrath on 66. So did all too many, all too nonfictional down-and-outers, Okies and Arkies. In those days they sometimes referred to her as the Will Rogers Highway. Woody Guthrie wrote a ballad about her.

On the return trip she hauled West Coast harvests to the heartland. Oranges in Feburary! When war came she led workers to the Pacific's defense plants, and took the hitchiking GI home for Christmas.

In better days the vacationers came with their dollars. Why, a family could spend a month just seeing the sights along the way. The steady stream of tourists fostered the roadside restaurants, the last-chance filling stations, the billboards and the BurmaShave signs, the tourist traps and the motor court.

Perhaps as much as anywhere else, the culture of mobility, of rubber-tired transience, hit its stride on Route 66.

Some gas station maps don't mark her anymore. Those that do tack the emblematic double sixes onto the signs of the superhighways built along her pathway: Interstates 55, 44, 40, 15 and 10.

The U.S. 66 signs are coming down on I-55 and I-44, which comprise the 576 miles of her northern leg. Order of the state highway departments.

Much of what once was Route 66 long since been reduced to service roads for the new freeways. In some places she's just a county lane or simply sits abandoned, her flanks festering with deserted eyesores.

When they built the interstates they left her roadbed but took her number. It was a sop to sentiment. People were used to following 66. They'd be lost without her. She couldn't just disappear overnight. To make the transition, officials moved her number out to the interstates, temporarily.

"There certainly is a lot of sentiment," a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Transportation said. "We are concerned about this. We proceeded with our plan with some reservation. Once you take that interim step you kind of lose the significance. There just isn't any point, really, in having two routes on the same highway."

In Litchfield, what has happened to Route 66 is plain.

"It's just a local road now," said David Jackson, editor of the Litchfield News Herald. There is so little traffic on the old highway. Jackson taught his son there.

North of town a swatch of the old route survives — a twisting, weedy, two-lane concrete road full of tar patches and cracks. Before the city limits it sideswipes a four-lane highway, the second version of 66. Cresting a rise you glimpse the third, a two-year-old shiny I-55, bustling with traffic between Chicago and St. Louis.

Follow the original road and it leads you inside the edge of town to the 66 Motel Court, four brick cube bungalows and an office built in 1948.

"It was one of the first," said Dorothy Mansholt. "This was the main highway at the time, right out front." She and her husband, Lorman, bought the place in 1963, full of hope and a mail-order motel management course.

They've fixed it up quite a bit. But sitting in the parlor around the registration desk you get a feeling for what it must have been. It's a family business, friendly, no frills, run like it probably was in the old days.

There are no telephones in the rooms. No swimming pool, sauna or restaurant. No bar, no ice machines. Just decent, clean, quiet rooms with thick walls at economy rates — $16.80 for a family of four, $8.40 for a single. Including color television. That's about 10 bucks below what traffic will bear in most new-fangled motels.

The Mansholt's have built a steady trade, growing every year, relying on customers who've become friends and travelers who drop in figuring Litchfield is too small to get lost in.

There's an echo there, a hint of the common adventure of travelers on a cross-country jaunt in the '40s and '50s. Your father standing at the gas pumps swapping exaggerations of how many miles he covered yesterday. Someone's sensible aunt driving the whole way at 30 m.p.h. for saftey's sake and forgetting to advance the film in the camera at the Grand Canyon. Earnest advice about the best time, day or night, to dare the desert. Motorcycle cops lurking behind the billboards. A strange bed each night.

A lot of other motels on the old highway closed with the coming of the interstates. Ironically, many of the construction workers who built I-55 stayed with the Mansholts until the new freeway opened in 1974.

Jack Cutberth in Clinton, Okla., has devoted 30 of his 76 years to Route 66.

In 1946 the raspy-voiced barber joined the Main Street of America Highway Association. He's the current executive secretary of the 3,000-member group. It was formed in 1920, under the name of the National U.S. Highway 66 Association to promote tourism, get the road paved and win the 66 designation from Washington.

"It was kind of fence post to fence post in those days," Cutberth said. The idea was to put motorists on a road that bore a single number, a good road that they needn't leave.

An automotive supply house completely stocked will be opened Saturday in a North Kingshighway room formerly occupied by the Langley Motor Co. Leonard Cohen of Akron, Ohio, will manage the store.

A machine that gathers hay from windows and bales it as it moved over a field is being operated successfully on farms near here. Clint Kindred of McMullin made the machine by placing on an old Ely baler a pickup he had used on a combine last year. He assembled it one day while he was not working at the McMullin store and he now goes about with it to superintend its operation. On Theodore Hopper's farm, just north of town, the machine baled 1,500 bales of hay in a 35-acre field of red clover with almost no loss.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

May 31, 1976

Dear Editor:

It was refreshing to learn there is still a spark of democracy in the operation of our New Madrid R-1 Enlarged School District. Through its recent response to local school (Portageville) parents and patrons our R-1 school board demonstrated that someone other than a handful of self-appointed politicians and administrators can have something to do with the operation of our school system.

The issue involved-- the board's renewing of a local teacher's contract after he had been rather arbitrarily dismissed by school administrators for what many consider to be trivial infractions of rather meaningless rules that have no bearing on teaching ability or performance -- while important to persons directly concerned was not of any major significance in itself. The really important consideration is the fact that at long last parents and patrons decided that they were going to have some input in local school opeations, and the board reacted in the only way a governing body of any public institution could be expected to react. Board members simply listened to the people who elected them, and acted accordingly. It would have been the height of arrogance and irresponsibility for the board to have done otherwise.

The dreary Watergate affair shows what happens when administrators and elected officials choose to make their own rules of conduct and ignore the rights of the people who elected them to office. Public office is a public trust. Unfortunately, we sometimes forget that 'public' means the people and not just some self-appointed politician. Any public official worthy of the name listens to the people who put him in office. If for some reason a person elected or named to public office is unwilling to listen to the people, the least he could do is resign and get out of the way.

Just as Watergate, as unpleasant as it has been, has opened up a new era of openness and responsiveness in our national government, the local school episode could bring the same long range benefits to our local school affairs. It could, for example, encourage parents and patrons to get involved. It could, in turn, encourage our administrators and school board to open up and actively encourage participation by parents and patrons. And, even more importantly it could encourage all of us to put aside personal bickering and to ignore the self-appointed politicians who continually try to dominate our school system, and concentrate on the rally important matter of quality education for our children.

Our school board has given us a chance to move forward in a positive way. We are indebted to the members who saw fit to do so.

Sincerely,
Hilton L. Bracey

DREAM

Darkness creeps over the country,
Quiet is the night,
Softly the wind blows thru the trees,
Slowly I close my eyes.

I find myself in a strange, strange land,
Where everything is bright,
I slowly take a young man's hand,
With him I feel no fright.

He leads me down a pathway,
Of roses and bright sunshine,
I turn to him and then I say,
"This is how the world should be.
Will there ever come a time?"

"Perhaps someday the wars will end,
And all will be right in the world,
But we'll have to keep working and dreaming until then,
Dream. Dream on little girl."

I awake in reality,
To this dreary, dark, cold world,
And these words keep haunting me,
Dream. Dream on little girl.

LIFE

You're born
Daddy's pride and joy
You love them
They love you
You strive tobelike them
In every way
This is life.

You become an outdoor nut
You and your parents really click
You have fun with them
They have fun with you
This is life.

You become a teen-ager
You like rock music
They like country
You try to communicate with them
They try to communicate with you
You hurt; you want and need to be loved
So do they
This is life.

You grow into an adult
Your parents see you
As nothing less than equal
You get married
And have children of your own
This is life
And the cycle of life
Begins once again.

Wives' tales about wine

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several of my friends insist they have read that a small glass of wine with meals will help lose weight as well as get more nutrition from your food intake. Is there any truth to this?

DEAR READER — None. This sounds like one of the innumerable reasons people who like wine or other alcoholic beverages offer to justify their habit.

I can't say your friends haven't read such a ridiculous statement. There are so many "untruths" and misinformation circulated that you can find fantastic statements in print: The fact that something is printed does not make it so. I only need remember the "drinking man's diet" to think of one of the many unsound ideas presented to the public.

Wine contains calories, mostly in accordance to the amount of alcohol it contains. The alcohol stimulates most people's appetite while decreasing their inhibitions or will power. The common result then is eating more calories than you need and you know what that leads to.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer, so you can have figures on alcohol and calorie contents and the effects of alcohol. Others who want this information can forward 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a mastectomy nine months ago. I am 62. What bothers me is my arm and hand swell so badly. They get sore from the swelling. My doctor said it is natural that this happens. But I don't think they should swell so much, almost twice the size. I thought if I got some information from someone else about it I would feel better. I was told the removal of the glands from under my arm caused it. Also would eating sweets cause it?

DEAR READER — Your doctor has told you the truth. Most people think of the circulation as the arteries and veins filled with blood but there is still another type of circulation, the lymphatic system.

The lymphatic system is widespread throughout the body and is connected to all those lymph glands called nodes. These are under the arm, in the neck (which swell when you have a sore throat), in the groin and inside the body.

There is a clear fluid material circulated inside the lymph vessels that connect the lymph glands. This fluid, called lymph, helps to drain fluid from your tissues. Finally, all of the lymph vessels connect to one large vessel that empties into one of the large veins leading to the heart.

When you have breast surgery and the surgeon must remove lymph glands under the arm the small lymph vessels are tied off and cannot drain normally. This causes the swelling. It is similar to blocking a vein and causing swelling. Because lymph contains no red blood cells this does not cause the same marked discoloration.

In time, as the blocked lymph vessels establish new drainage the swelling of the arm diminishes. The swelling has no relation to eating sweets.

What's the law?

The case of the hairy disguise

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Roscoe was suspected of supporting his local merchants by holding them up. By the time the district attorney got around to requiring him to appear in a lineup to see if the merchants could identify him as the abductor of their hard-earned cash, Roscoe had grown thick whiskers.

Perplexed, the district attorney sought a court order directing Roscoe to shave off his facial shrubbery before appearing in the lineup.

"I won't do it," protested Roscoe. "My whiskers are my pride and joy. I'd rather cut off my right arm."

"I don't blame him," responded the district attorney, "because, clean-shaven, I believe the merchants will identify him immediately. Under the circumstances, he shouldn't be allowed to foil an identification with his facial foliage."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require Roscoe to submit to a razor?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that, since Roscoe was only a suspect and had not been arrested, he could not be deprived of his constitutional right to determine his own facial appearance. To require him to shave off his whiskers, concluded the judge, would deny him the right to an immediate return to his former appearance after the lineup.

Nevada court says rural school needed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A small high school in the Nevada desert has been brought back to life by a court ruling which puts greater emphasis on the closeness between school and home than on budget figures.

A budget-minded school board closed Lund High School this school year, forcing its 30 students to ride a bus 80 miles a day to and from a high school in Ely.

But the Nevada Supreme Court unanimously ruled Monday that rural schools are worth saving. The court said the close relationship between a school and the home is "something very precious to American education, which has been deteriorating in large communities."

The court rejected the argument that students from Lund would get a better education in Ely. An 80-mile round-trip bus ride impairs a student's performance and participation in school events, the court said.

The ruling means the 50-year-old school will reopen next fall.

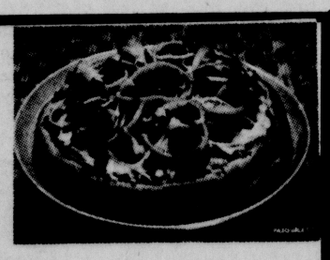

Residents of Lund greeted the decision enthusiastically.

Phil Carter, a resident of Lund and a member of the school board, called the decision "the greatest thing that has ever happened in the White River Valley."

Louise Reid, who helped organize a drive to reopen the school, said, "I'm so overwhelmed I don't know what to say. You'd have to quote the tears of happiness which were shed."

Karla McKenzie, 16, who made that 80-mile trip during the closure, said she's happy her upcoming senior year will be in her hometown of Lund.

"I didn't like Ely very well. Mostly I didn't like riding back and forth," she said. "And I think I learned more in Lund. I got the same grades in Ely but I didn't have to work as hard."

Washington Fringe Benefit

Ray's book to describe the sex scandal in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Ray's book, "The Washington Fringe Benefit," has begun rolling off the presses and should be on the bookstands this week. The main character is described as "the playmate of some of the country's most powerful men ..."

The Washington Star reported today that the fictionalized, first person account names some real names, but only innocuously, never in detailed descriptions of the main character's love affairs.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who has acknowledged having a personal relationship with Miss Ray, is included only as a House member who helps the books protagonist obtain a parking spot on Capitol Hill.

The Star said the first printing of the 172-page book from Dell Publishing Co. will run to 600,000 copies. The book jacket promises to "blow the cover off the steamy secrets of Washington's mightiest."

According to the Star, the book describes congressional employers who forced the main character to have sex with other men or lose her job.

She is also kept on a congressional payroll while attending acting school, allowed extended periods of doing no work, offered a Caribbean junket in retur for silence, asked to find other women willing to perform sexual favors and persuaded to sleep with a senator to guarantee his vote on a key offshore oil drilling bill.

"Not only was I the playmate of some of the country's most powerful men, but I often played a pivotal role in getting through some bills that are national monuments today," Miss Ray says through the book's principal character.

One major character is Sen. Otis Battle, described as "the most vengeful man in Washington," her "peppery, powerful nemesis," with whom she had the "most flamboyant love-hate affair in the scandalous annals of our nation's Capital."

Another character is Rep. Billy Bob Blank, who owns a limousine, a houseboat and a helicopter and has a dispute with columnist Jack Anderson.

Miss Ray once worked for former Rep. Ken Gray, D-Ill., who owns a houseboat and had a helicopter and a go-around with Anderson while in office.

A number of well-known Washington figures are listed as persons whom the main character once met. Among them are Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., former Sens. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and Joseph Tydings, D-Md., House members Thomas P. O'Neil, D-Mass. and Peter Rodino, D-N.J.; U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica and former White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler.

The narrative takes the principal character from her job in a hotel cocktail lounge where she meets a lobbyist named Elan Bright who offers her an $8,700 job. With that, she "joined the political life never dreaming that I would have the biggest impact on Capitol Hill since the British burned it down."

The book, which Miss Ray says she began long before her current notoriety, was ghost-written by Yvonne Dunleavy.

Bicentennial aids business at bell foundry

LONDON (AP) — The American Bicentennial is booming business at the 550-year-old Whitechapel Bell Foundry which cast the Liberty Bell in 1752.

"You couldn't say we're swamped," says Douglas Hughes, one of the partners in the foundry, "but orders have suddenly pepped up because of the Bicentennial. It will keep us going for part of this year anyway."

Besides the six-ton Bicentennial Bell delivered in Philadelphia last week as a gift from Britain, the foundry is turning out two dozen replicas of the Liberty Bell and thousands of scale models in various sizes.

It has completed 14 full-size, one-ton replicas and has 10 more on order for states, cities and organizations. Each takes two weeks to cast, finish and tune to the E above middle C, Hughes said.

Made of copper and tin with the original mould-making gauge, they are exact duplicates of the Liberty Bell "as it left here in 1752," Hughes said.

He stresses "as it left here" because, he says, the 18th century Yanks rather fouled up the original bell.

"People do not realize how brittle bell metal is," he said. "You can break a piece of it with a hammer in your hand because your hand prevents it from vibrating.

"There is no record of precisely what happened, but probably it was hung wrong because it cracked when it was struck."

It was recast, but "they didn't do a very good job. The two people who recast it were not bell founders; they were brass founders. They put too much brass into the new bell and it was too soft. It wouldn't ring."

A second recasting restored the proper brittleness, but still something wasn't just right. The bell cracked again in 1835.

The six-ton Bicentennial Bell booms a ponderous G below middle C.

If Roger Bollen believes the old saw about "laugh and the world laughs with you," he must be picking up titters all the way from Hong Kong. Roger has plenty to be happy about.

He's young, good looking and he owns a beautiful, tailormade home nestled in the woods at the outskirts of a sublime Cleveland suburb named Chagrin Falls. He is surrounded by playthings such as a billiards loft overhanging the living room and a piano overlooking the co-op tennis court which is a short jog from the private lake. It is at least consistent, if not a little unfair, that his wife and daughter are also lovely and charming. And, oh yes, he has three successful comic features.

That last fact should hit with the impact of having your weatherman be right three days in a row.

In the competitive world of comics, having three strips — or in Roger's case two strips and the NEA Funny Business panel — is a very rare and rewarding circumstance. In addition to Funny Business, Bollen's original cartoon feature, he also collaborates with writer Gary Peterman on Catfish and writes and draws Animal Crackers.

Q: When did cartooning enter your life?

A: I was one of those kids who couldn't leave a pencil alone. I think I was constantly doodling. But in high school I was a sleeper. A close friend of mine was considered the 'class cartoonist' which left no room for me, so I was a closet cartoonist through high school.

I did some cartooning in college. I once was given my own page in a campus magazine called The Obese Toad. It was supposed to be the campus humor magazine but it only came out once. In that one issue they ran my name in big letters — B-O-L-L-E-N- — over my cartoons. But they forgot to run the captions. I could see people reading my page on the day it came out. They'd look at the drawings without the gags and say "I don't get it." It was really embarrassing.

Roger Bollen

Q: What came between college and professional cartooning?

A: I was an illustrator, worked in advertising art and design. I still enjoy doing a little advertising art now and then. But all along, I think I knew I wanted to be a comic artist. Eventually I worked up a strip called Ripple Falls and submitted it to NEA. They, and everyone else I submitted it to, rejected it. But I got a lot of encouragement from quite a few different people.

Then one day I was called in by NEA — along with three or four other cartoonists — to take a crack at doing a business page comic. They told me they already had their title, Funny Business, and would select the best submission. I was a little ill at ease over the whole thing because I didn't know very much about business. I was afraid it would have to be a daily stock market joke. They calmed me down and told me it simply had to relate to business or a profession in some way. That's how it started out. Now it's expanded to where I can do a gag about nearly anything. The guy on the job can be an organ grinder or a balloon salesman or whatever. It's now more an entertainment strip than anything closely tied to business. I think I've done only three stock market jokes in the more than 10 years I've been doing it.

Q: In the old one-column, two-panel format and often in the new two-column Funny Business size, your cartoons have a straightman-punchline structure. Is that easier or harder than a typical humor strip?

A: At first the one-two shot was a little difficult, but now that I'm used to working that way I find it's a real clean way to deliver a gag. In a strip, there's often an element of the throwaway, a block that's really unnecessary in setting up the joke. With Funny Business you could analyze most of the cartoons this way: Here's the problem — bam! here's the answer. The 'bam!" may be a surprise ending or an abrupt thought, something to resolve the gag.

Q: How do you get your ideas?

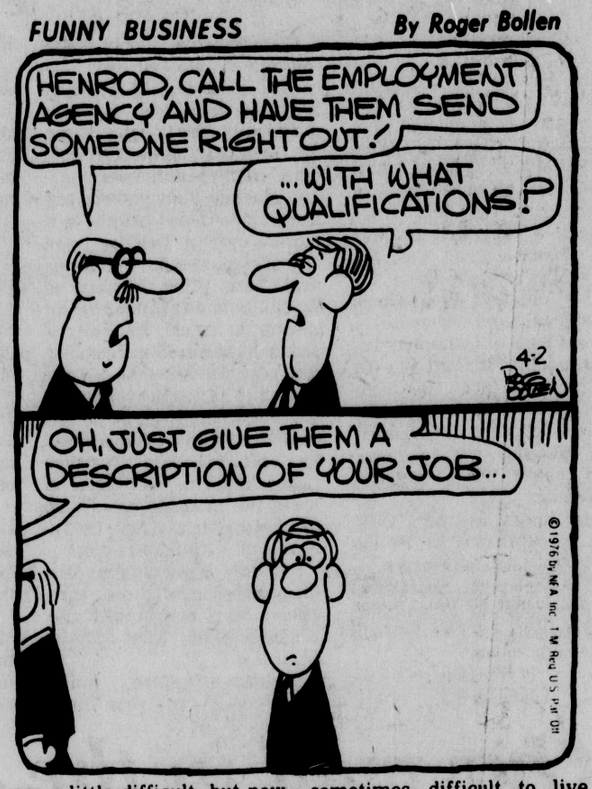

A: I think most cartoonists have to draw inspiration for cartoons from people around them. I find that many times people will literally do my work for me unwittingly. They might as well have a cartoon speech balloon floating over their heads. When people talk about themselves and particularly about their jobs, they tend to exaggerate. They either make things worse than they are or better, with the exaggeration providing the humor. Unfortunately, though, that only covers some gags. Most of the ideas come from just plain straining.

Q: Is the drawing easier than the writing?

A: Definitely. I'm sometimes difficult to live with when I'm thinking up gags. But when I'm drawing, the house could fall in and I wouldn't notice. I've been known to be a problem while I'm writing — complaining to my wife that she's ironing too loud. But the writing is as important as it can be difficult, it makes or breaks a comic strip or panel. Of course, the drawing has to have some style to it, but it is more the inflection for the dialog.

Q: What are your feelings about being a comic artist?

A: I feel both proud and privileged to be a comic artist. With all the stark realities around today, too many people feel as though they have no voice, no chance to state their opinion. I feel fortunate to be in the position of having a certain amount on white space in quite a few newspapers to express ideas — my humor — on a daily basis. I'll never take that for granted.

Won't buy U.S. series

British TV refuses to return favor

NEW YORK (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. from time to time sells its prestige shows to American public TV. So what happens when it gets the chance to buy "The Adams Chronicles" and return the fiscal favor?

It has said no dice — at least, not now — according to Robert Kotlowitz, a program executive at New York's WNET, which produced the 13-part bicentennial drama series with a whopping $6.7 million budget.

Variety magazine, the showbiz bible, last week said the BBC had a "long-running option" to buy the series about the historic Adams family of Massachusetts, "but dropped out after viewing the product.

"The BBC rebuff was a blow to WNET production prestige," it added.

T'aint so, insists Kotlowitz. He says the BBC had no option to buy the series and "they haven't bought it for a number of reasons, none of them having to deal with the program itself.

"They have a very complicated set of problems over there," he explained, citing a severe budget crisis currently afflicting the BBC as one of three reasons the Adams series rang up a no-sale there.

"Number two is that there are severe problems in terms of English performing unions in terms of importing American-made production," he said.

He meant that the unions gripe to the BBC and the government that American-made, American-acted shows on British TV take away English jobs, a gripe American unions make about English shows on public TV here.

The third reason the BBC cited for a no-sale, he said, "is a quota system that allows the BBC to import only a very limited amount of American production" for showing on its airwaves.

The BBC here had no immediate estimate of what percentage of American programming is allowed on TV in Britain.

"The Adams Chronicles" originally was budgeted at $5.2 million. The money came from the Andrew Mellon Foundation, the Atlantic Richfield Co. and the National Endowment for the Humanities. But it went $1.5 million over budget, WNET says, because of a seven-week delay caused by a writers' strike and by script revisions made to insure historical accuracy.

Kotlowitz said he didn't know exactly how much the BBC was asked to pay for the series, but insisted "there was not an enormous amount of money involved.

No more foremen

Plant experiments with worker 'teams'

ADDY, Wash. (AP) — "I don't think I'll ever get to the point of hating to come to work in the morning," says Chuck Taylor, who works in a magnesium plant — one where there are no bosses breathing down workers' necks.

Taylor, who taught junior high school for 12 years, is one of 280 employes involved in an Aluminum Company of America experiment in worker self-government. The new Northwest Alloys, Inc., plant here has no foremen, no unions, and is run by worker "teams" who decide what has to be done and do it.

"My father-in-law worked at Kaiser. It was the same thing every day. Here, if you have any ability at all you can use it," Taylor said.

Social conscience was not necessarily what prompted the experiment, which is also being tried in a Pennsylvania coal mine, a Tennessee auto-parts plant and by West German companies.

"It's for the primary purpose of improving production," Carl Hudson, the Addy plant's personnel manager, said.

In its first five months of operation, the plant's turnover rate has been low and absenteeism is running a low 1 per cent. But it's too soon to tell if the experiment is working.

"I'd say three to five years is the shakedown period," Hudson said.

The plant's managers caution that the method might not work everywhere. Workers were hand-picked from about 5,000 applicants — only those willing to rotate assignments, doing both skilled and menial work, were hired.

"We were looking for people who would feel comfortable in an unstructured situation, in small groups," said Hudson. "We turned down highly skilled electricians, with 30 years' experience, who weren't interested in learning to be mechanics."

The 7-to 12-member teams hash out work assignments and deal with personality problems, right down to hiring and firing, all on company time.

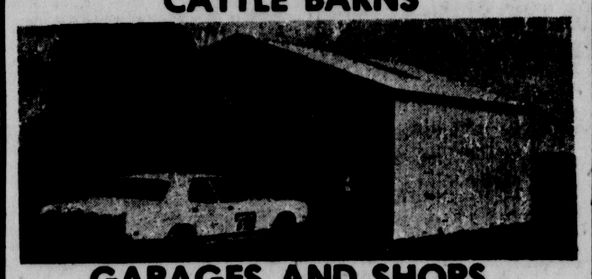

Darla Ferry, whose seven male teammates elected her team coordinator, has been trained in group problem-solving.

"If there is a problem, you get it straightened out before it gets serious. So it's really relaxing," she said.

Perhaps the system is hardest on the bosses.

Bill Kelly, supervisor of mining and crushing operations, said it has taken him months to realize that worker teams make some decisions better than he would, some worse, but "on the balance the result is about the same."

Baker pledges aid to county prosecutors

FESTUS — State Rep. James G. Baker, Democratic candidate for attorney general, pledged Tuesday to give county prosecutors the full support and cooperation of his office in the handling of all criminal matters.

Speaking in Festus and Crystal City, Baker suggested that the attorney general "should provide local prosecutors with all the help that they need. There is no reason to see further convictions overturned in this state due to errors by police or prosecutors in the handling of criminal suspects. It is the responsibility of the attorney general to provide local authorities with the information necessary to avoid those errors."

Baker's speech was made during 16-day whistelstop tour of the state. Baker said the tour was a way of bringing his campaign directly to the people. The tour started from Baker's home district in Kansas City and will take the candidate and his wife through 57 counties and over 70 cities.

Baker proposed a specific program of assistance to prosecutors to help assure that criminal convictions will not be overturned due to procedural mistakes. "I believe the attorney general should send a periodic bulletin to county prosecutors analyzing the most recent court opinions and pointing out the pitfalls which must be avoided by local law enforcement officials. I also believe the attorney general should be active in sponsoring seminars and training programs for new prosecutors," Baker said.

Baker concluded by stressing that "local law enforcement officials are leading the fight against crime. The state of Missouri must do a better job of helping them."

Bond signs bill that excempts farm implements from sales taxes

JEFFRSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond signed into law today a bill exempting farm implements from local sales taxes.

The measure, passed during the recent session of the state legislature, will go into effect Aug. 13 and does not exempt farm machinery from the general 3 per cent state sales tax.

Backers of the proposal claimed the exemption is necessary to halt the exodus of farm implement sales outlets from municipalities in the rural parts of the state. They claimed such businesses have been moving outside city limits to avoid charging the local sales taxes.

Unemployment could still be above 7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment still could be above 7 per cent by the end of the year, despite the recent dramatic improvements in the economy, Ford administration economists say in their mid-year review.

They believe there is a good chance the jobless rate, which was 7.3 per cent last month, will dip below 7 per cent but they cite too many uncertainties to make an official prediction.

"We see very little pay-off in trying to reset the target," said one administration economist. The administration is sticking with its official forecast of a 7 to 7.5 per cent jobless rate by year's end.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Pesident's Council of Economic Advisers planned to present the administration's mid-year review of the economy to the congressional Joint Economic Committee today.

Greenspan was expected to forecast a slight improvement in the council's outlook for inflation and the Gross National Product. The council had said in January that consumer prices would increase 5.9 per cent and the GNP would rise 6.2 per cent this year.

The improvement in inflation, employment and economic output all have exceeded expectations so far this year. However, administration economists say the pace of improvement may not be sustained, and the improvement will not look so dramatic by the end of this year.

If they are correct, it could take away some of the advantage that President Ford has had in citing the improvement in the economy as a reason he should be nominated for the presidency.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments:

—The owners of two exclusive women's stores, I. Magnin and Saks Fifth Avenue, were fined $50,000 each after pleading no contest in federal court in San Francisco to charges of price fixing.

The two companies had been indicted for allegedly fixing prices on retail women's clothing from 1963 to 1974 and were charged with agreeing on retail price markups.

—The U.S. Labor Department rejected claims for special unemployment benefits filed in behalf of 68,000 General Motors workers in 10 states.

The department said the workers were not eligible for special assistance under the Trade Act of 1974 because imports of foreign-made autos were not a major cause of their layoffs.

—General Motors Corp. says that base prices on 1977 trucks may go up by an average of 6 per cent over current models. Auto executives have said there will be price boosts on cars and trucks this fall because of rising material costs and expected increases in labor costs but they have not said previously how much prices would rise.

—The 1976 U.S. winter wheat crop now being harvested is estimated at about 1.42 billion bushels, 14 per cent smaller than last year's record crop and 3 per cent less than forecast a month ago, the Agriculture Department said.

Despite the smaller crop, it will be the second largest on record and will provide ample wheat for American consumers and foreign buyers in the coming year, department officials said.

Announces May expenditures

EAST PRAIRIE — Expenditures by the Division of Family Services during May in Mississippi County totaled $111,725, according to figures released by Agnes Cunningham, county director.

Aid to dependent children totaled $105,496 in 754 cases, including 1,792 children. General relief to 95 cases amounted to $6,229.

Mississippi County has 641 supplemental security income and Missouri supplemental cases with total expenditures of $18,306. There were 387 supplemental security income only cases, for which medical benefits and social services were provided. Another 229 persons received medical assistance only.

The county has 122 recipients in professional nursing homes.

Missouri has shortage of nurses

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri is experiencing a shortage of nurses with sufficient training to hold supervisory posts in hospitals and other health care facilities, the state Office of Comprehensive Health Planning reported Wednesday.

The agency's study said, however, that the needs of the state as far as general nursing care is concerned are being met and that with nearly 70 nursing schools in Missouri, the state is assured of a constant influx of new nurses.

To solve the shortage of nurses with supervisory qualifications, the study recommended development of a "career ladder" concept to provide already-licensed nurses an opportunity to further their education.

Nurse's aides to graduate

Nurse's Aide Class No. 59 will graduate eight students Friday from a Sikeston Public School eight-week training course. Graduates and instructors, from left, are Betty Bratcher; Willie Mae Ransom; Marilyn Monroe; Clare Eisenbach, supervisor of health occupations; Patty Harris; Murlee Mitchell; Maria Rapert, instructor; Irean Mitchell; Carolyn Randle; and Frankie Glaspie, all of Sikeston. The class was sponsored by Sikeston Public Schools, in cooperation with Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, Missouri Division of Employment Security, Missouri Delta Community Hospital and Sikeston Convalescent Center.

Humphrey's dream has vanished

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert Humphrey's presidential dream has all but vanished in the dust left by Jimmy Carter's speeding bandwagon.

As declared candidates and favorite sons were embracing Carter as the peoples' choice, the Happy Warrior conceded Wednesday that the grueling primary race for the Democratic nomination had brought Carter almost certain victory.

But Humphrey couldn't quite bring himself to abandon his quest for the presidency without some qualification.

In a statement Wednesday, Humphrey said Carter "is virtually certain to be our party's nominee. I, therefore, will not authorize any presidential activity on my behalf."

It was not likely to rank with General Sherman's declaration that he would not seek the nomination and if nominated would not run.

For 26 years, Humphrey has dreamed of becoming president. Twice he has been at the brink, as vice president for four years under Lyndon Johnson, and as his party's nominee after Johnson withdrew in 1968, when he lost by a narrow margin to Richard Nixon.

Even this year, when the 65-year-old Minnesota senator chose to sit out the five-month primary campaigns, he left no doubt about his desire to be president.

"I'm available," Humphrey would frequently admit, saying he was prepared to run if the Democratic convention turned to him. Humphrey pointedly omitted that rejoinder from Tuesday's statement.

Rather than bow out Sherman-style, Humphrey simply pointed out the reality of the situation.

"For many months I have said that I would wait the end of the primary election period before deciding whether I would enter the race or be available for the Democratic presidential nomination," Humphrey said.

"I have stated that I would seek the nomination only in the event that there was no clear front runner following the final three primaries in California New Jersey and Ohio.

"The primaries now are over and Gov. Carter has a commanding lead. He is virtually certain to be our party's nominee."

from which growth springs," Symington said. Sometimes it is cut because no one can see an immediate payoff, he said. That is the wrong attitude, he added, because we are denying ourselves something five or 10 years from now.

The congressman has been widely quoted as suggesting that free drugs be given to addicts, but he said his proposal is to establish a pilot program to find ways of treating addicts.

He said he would lure the addicts into the program by giving them the drug of their choice.

Today's drug programs are not working, he said. Drug-related crime in urban areas is overwhelming, he added.

An addict with a $70 habit must steal over $700 worth of goods a day to finance the habit. There are 600,000 addicts in the United States, he said.

The drug pushers should be given life imprisonment, but the users need treatment, he said.

He suggested an experiment be conducted in which 50 or 60 drug users are lured into the treatment center by giving them the drug of their choice.

The treatment center staff would be there to find ways of keeping them off their habit, Symington said. It would be better if they came for treatment every day instead of robbing a store every day.

But he said he would not be willing to go beyond the experiment until the results are known. Who should control the drug problems, the Mafia or the government? he asked.

Symington also said he will hold hearings in the House subcommittee on science, research and technology this month on how to reduce hazards from earthquakes.

Symington is chairman of the subcommittee. He said success in predicting earthquakes in other countries and a recent prediction by a California seismologist that a major earthquake will occur there in April 1977 make these hearings timely.

Southeast Missouri is on a fault which is considered a likely candidate for an earthquake. The potential for a quake causing heavy damage in this area is statistically good, he said.

Symington also said he has co-sponsored the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act, which is designed to eliminate the possibility of fraud and abuse in laboratory services in the Medicaid and Medicare programs.

"The stricter standards and changes in the criminal liability of this bill should go a long way to ensure the integrity of federal health care programs and the quality of clinical laboratory staffs," he said.

Postmaster general is under investigation for cut-rate dealing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating allegations that Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar got a cut-rate deal on rare stamps in return for awarding $7 million in postal contracts, according to an informed department official.

However, the staff director for a House subcommittee says he already has investigated the same allegations and found no evidence that they are true. The Justice Department official says he has not yet determined whether there is any truth to the allegations.

The investigation involves charges that Bailar purchased rare stamps at a fraction of their real value from Jack Taub, chairman of Scott Publishing Co., a New York-based firm which has sold $7 million worth of philatelic materials to the Postal Service.

In an interview Wednesday night, Taub flatly denied there was any payoff involved and offered to take a lie detector test to support his denial. Bailar was out of town, but a Postal Service spokesman said "this allegation was looked into in 1974 and nothing untoward was found."

Taub said he never sold any stamps to Bailar although he served as an adviser in helping the postal official build up a stamp collection worth an estimated $20,000.

Taub also acknowledged that in 1973, when Bailar was senior assistant postmaster general, he delivered a packet of stamps to Bailar's office. Bailar had bought the stamps from Taub's brother, Bertram, who runs a stamp store in New York, Taub said. He added that he had no financial interest in his brother's business, and had delivered the stamps to Bailar as a means of gaining an introduction.

George Gould, staff director for the House Post Office subcommittee which originally investigated the allegation, said he had been "unable to confirm any of the allegations" and found "no evidence that Taub and Bailar had made an exchange of any stamps."

Gould said the investigation was prompted by statements made by Conrad Trayhern, a former postal procurement official who "had an axe to grind" because he was fired from his job.

Houston beats Cardinals again, 5-2

Virdon gets birthday gift

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros helped Manager Bill Virdon celebrate his 45th birthday in style.

Riding the seven-hit pitching of J.R. Richard and Greg Gross' four-hit performance, the Astros clipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 Wednesday night for their seventh victory in the last eight games.

"It was a good win," said Virdon. "The pitching has been real good and we've been getting just enough runs."

The Cards took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off Richard on a walk, a stolen base and Lou Brock's double down the left field line.

Houston came back to score three times in the bottom of the inning against loser Lynn McGlothen, 5-5.

Rob Andrews' single, a walk to Cesar Cedeno and Jose Cruz' RBI single tied the score. After Ed Herrmann walked, Enos Cabell laced a two-run single to center, giving Houston a 3-1 advantage.

The Astros added a run in the second on a pair of singles, a walk and Bob Watson's double play ball. Cardinals reliefer Mike Wallace wild-pitched the final Astros run home in the eighth.

St. Louis scored its other run in the ninth on a double by Reggie Smith and Willie Crawford's single.

"We could have made it a lot easier," said Virdon, in reference to Houston's 13 men left on base. "Even though we're playing .500 ball I don't think you're ever satisfied."

Gross, who collected three singles and a triple in five times at bat, believes that pitching has been the key to Houston's recent surge.

"Good pitching makes winning an awful lot easier," Gross said. "You just can't argue with the success we've been having."

"The pitching has come on pretty good," echoed Richard, 7-5. "You can relax after you get a lead like that and that helps."

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Owensboro High School's pitching star, Mark King, signed a contract early Wednesday with the Cincinnati Reds, getting an undisclosed but "substantial bonus."

King, 18, was drafted Tuesday by the world champions in the first round of the draft.

King will report to Billings, Montana, on June 17.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Trainer M.W. Gross said Wednesday he is pointing 3-year-old colt On The Sly toward the $125,000 Ohio Derby at Thistledown Race Track on Sunday, June 27.

NBA names All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second straight year, forward Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors is the leading vote collector for the National Basketball Association All-Star team.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced today that Barry, who led the Warriors to the best regular-season record in the league, received 16.002 of a possible 18 points in the All-Star team voting by sports writers and broadcasters in each of the 18 franchise cities.

Joining Barry on the first team were forward George McGinnis of the Philadelphia 76ers, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers, and guards Nate Archibald of the Kansas City Kings and Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz.

Majors are goal for draftees

NEW YORK (AP) — The major leagues, the dream of every kid who ever took fantasy swings as a Willie Mays or made pretend pitches as a Sandy Koufax, is not really a realistic goal for the 721 players selected the past two days in baseball's summer free agent draft.

The draft was to end today with 11 teams still picking players.

On the average, 50 per cent of the players selected in the draft sign contracts. Then, as a rule of thumb, only 10-15 per cent of those who sign make it to the major leagues for one game.

The percentage for those who will stick in the majors leagues is less, and much less for those who will reach stardom.

The major leagues are glamorous, full of national exposure, deluxe hotels and first-class airfare, but there is no glory in the long, hard road up to the majors.

That cracked pavement is filled with bus rides, too many meals in hamburger joints and too many games when the players on the field outnumber the fans in the stands.

It's great to be a major leaguer, earn an average salary of $46,000 and play in New York, Los Angeles or Montreal.

Gary Roenicke just beat the odds and made it to the Montreal Expos in his fourth year of professional baseball. He played Tuesday night in his first big-league game, against the Giants in San Francisco. He was hitless in five at bats, but it was an achievement, nevertheless.

If he never plays again for the Expos, Roenicke will know he was one of the best baseball players in the world. For one day. Of the 600 active major leaguers Tuesday, he was one of them.

Only Roenicke can decide whether it was worth the three-plus years he spent in the minors.

"Gary told me it was pretty rough in the minors," said his brother, Ron, who was drafted by the Atlanta Braves Wednesday on the second round of the secondary phase of the summer free agent draft.

"I know he didn't like Jamestown (N.Y — his first minor league club), "but then he went to West Palm Beach (Fla.) and he liked the minors a lot more."

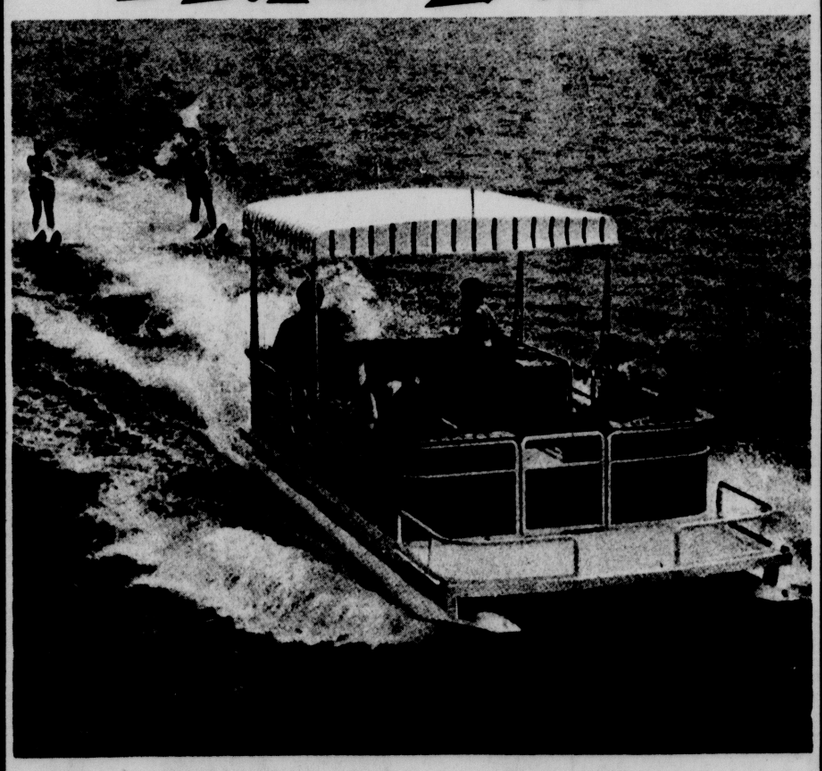

In 1974, Gary Roenicke, an outfielder, was elevated to the club's top farm club, Quebec. He played there in 1975 and even sat on the Montreal bench — but did not play — in the month of September.

"I spoke to him three days ago," said Ron, a switch-hitting center fielder, who batted .356 as a sophomore at Mt. San Antonio Junior College this season. "He was really happy, but he was a little down because he said he wasn't hitting real well."

Ron, who is 19, was drafted three times before — the last time by Detroit last January — but never signed. "I really didn't think they offered me much," he said. "I've thought about going to UCLA" (where he's signed a letter of intent.)

"If I sign, I hope to make it in 2 or 3 years. I really don't know. I just want to make it up there."

Vanduser takes over first place in SFPSL

The Vanduser Comets took over first place in the Southeast Missouri Fast Pitch Softball League for the first time since the league's beginning last night as they swept a doubleheader from previously undefeated Scott City. Vanduser won the first contest 9-3, then came back to take the nightcap 12-5.

Gary Owens pitched Vanduser to victory in the first game. Wayne Limbaugh had three hits for the winners, while teammate Les Schatzley clubbed a two-run homer in the second inning.

In the second game, Scott City had taken an early 5-2 lead, but Vanduser struck back for four runs in the fifth and four more in the seventh. Bob Blair got the win for the Comets. The loss dropped Scott City's league record to 6-2, while Vanduser is now 8-1.

Oran, which had been near the top of the league standings, lost to Kelly Transport of Cape 6-4 in eight innings. Kelly scored twice in the top of the eighth to get the win. Wayne Smith was the winning hurler, with Jerry Tenkhoff being the Oran loser. Don Metz smacked three hits for Oran, and Jerry Hahn had a homer in the first.

Oran had lost to Kelso 4-3 Monday night in the championship game of the Oran Fast Pitch Tournament. Kelso's Kenny Russell was the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Cal-Poly wins NCAA Division II Series

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The new NCAA Division II baseball champion is California Poly of Pomona, which beat Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville 17 to 3 late Wednesday.

Until a loss to California Poly Tuesday night, SIU-E had been undefeated in the double-elimination tournament.

Cal Poly scored nine runs against four Cougar pitchers in the seventh inning. Two of the runs were made by Cal Poly's Dennis Sarow. Sarow opened the inning with a triple, scored on an infield error, followed the batting order around, singled and scored again on a home run by Clay Harris.

The nine-run inning set an NCAA Division II single-inning record.

The game also marked the first time that a team—California Poly—has lost its first game in tournament play and come back to win the championship.

Sarow, a second-round draft choice Wednesday for the Montreal Expos, set a Division II tournament record for the most hits in a game with a double, a triple and four singles.

Mike Regus, who pitched the first eight innings, gave up only two hits and one run before being replaced in the ninth by Tom Rosenstein, who gave up two runs, one of them a homer off the bat of SIU-E player Bill Lee, son of SIU-E coach Roy Lee.

Most valuable player in the tournament was Cal-Poly's Ken Hellyer.

Black Hawks take gamble in signing weak-kneed Orr

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Orr's on-ice future is in the hands of his doctors once again. His all-but-signed unconditional contract is in the hands of the Chicago Black Hawks.

"Bobby Orr has agreed to terms with the Chicago Black Hawks," said attorney Alan Eagleson Wednesday after completing a frenzied week of negotiations for his client, who became a free agent from the Boston Bruins on June 1. "It's for several years, and there's no deferred compensation. It's cash on the barrelhead."

Eagleson wouldn't say how much cash, though published reports have placed the offer at $3 million for five years of work from the star rearguard whose battered left knee may have to submit to surgery for the sixth time since Aug. 21, 1967.

"We're gambling on his playing," said Chicago General Manager Tommy Ivan. "If he doesn't play, we still pay — and we lose. We are committed all the way as far as I'm concered."

That the Hawks have spent their money on damaged goods is certain; whether Orr ever will play again is not. The 28-year-old defenseman, called by many the greatest ever to play the game, entered Toronto General Hospital Wednesday for tests that will decide if the sixth operation is needed.

Eagleson said he expected a report from Dr. John Palmer "Friday or early next week," and that the contract would be signed within two weeks. But the decision on what compensation the Hawks will have to pay the Bruins may not be certain for some months to come.

SNB defeats 76'ers

Security National Bank stopped the 76'ers 11-6 last night in the only Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball League game played.

Security National rallied for five runs in the sixth to come from behind and take the victory. Sonny Heacox outhurled Tom Stinnett for the victory. Kenny Spittler homered for the winners.

Home runs mark Little League play Wednesday night

Home runs highlighted an evening of high- scoring games in all three Sikeston Little Leagues Wednesday night at the Sikeston Recreational Complex. Four round-trippers were hit in all as pitchers took their lumps all over the circuit.

MUSIAL LEAGUE

Scott Carmody ripped four of his team's five hits, including two triples and a home run, as Harts Bread blasted Flower Basket 21-4. Carmody has a leadoff homer to begin the game as his team struck for four, four, five and eight runs in the first four innings. Jimmie Cowell was the winner on the mound, while Chuck Simpson absorbed the loss.

In the other game, Kingsway Plaza downed Rotary 12-6. Michael Price had three basehits, including a double, to pace a fourteen- hit attack. Mullin was the winning pitcher, while Stan Templeton was the loser.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

One-run games were the rule in the American League Wednesday evening as Ryan downed Bridger 9-8 and First National nipped Nunnelee 15-14. Marty Allen outpitched Robert Merrill for the victory. Chris Steward had a pair of doubles to pace the Ryan attack.

Lloyd Brewer was the winning hurler in the second contest and had two doubles to spark First National's attack. Kenneth Deal had a pair of two-baggers for the losers.

Because of incorrect scorebooks, American League box scores are not available.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Nick Garner fired a two-hitter for Kiwanis as they downed Security National 11-1. Garner also had three hits, including a fifth- inning homerun that ended the game by the ten-run rule. Gary Wolferding had two hits for Security National.

A & B Leasing trounced the Jaycees 18-5 in the second game. A big nine-run second inning was the big frame for A & B and was highlighted by Todd Griffen's homer. Jeff Brashears smacked one over the fence in the third. Mike Kirchoffer got credit for the victory, while Tom Chasteen was the loser.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan basketball team, runner-up in 1976 National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney, will take on three defending conference titlists in the first six weeks of its 1976-77 season.

The Wolverines' 27-game schedule, released this week, opens Nov. 27 with Western Kentucky, last season's winner of the Ohio Valley Conference championship. On Dec. 11, Michigan hosts Mid-American Conference kingpin Western Michigan.

Then on Jan. 2, the Wolverines entertain Big Ten and NCAA champion Indiana in the first of two regular season meetings.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Elbert Williams, 19, leading rusher for the Wichita State football team, was bound over Wednesday for trial on charges of burglay and theft.

Williams was ordered to appear June 23 in Sedgwick County District Court on the charges stemming from a March 25 incident at a liquor store near the WSU campus.

Two other Wichita State athletes, basketball star Robert Elmore and defensive back Carlos "Rocky" Garza, are scheduled for trial on similar charges June 28.

They are accused of smashing a liquor store window and stealing a case of beer. All three are free on bond.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Robert D. Brown was ousted Wednesday as president of the Richfield Coliseum, just one day after the announcement his longtime associate Nick Mileti had sold his interest in the $32 million building.

Neither Brown nor new Coliseum owner Sanford D. Greenberg of Washington could be reached for confirmation, but the Coliseum switchboard operator replied to callers: "Bob Brown is no longer with the company."

Brown, a former Ohio Bell public relations man, joined Mileti about 10 years ago when Mileti bought the Cleveland Barons minor league hockey team and the downtown Cleveland Arena.

Brown was reportedly earning $65,000 a year as chief of the huge building located midway between Cleveland and Akron.

Kiwanis rallies in 7th to win

Kiwanis held off a four-run, bottom of the seventh rally to beat Mid-Delta 14-12 in a Major Division Girl's Softball game at Puckett Field. First National Bank raced to a 21-7 decision in a Major Division game at Farris Field.

The lead had changed hands several times during Kiwanis' win, with the civic club finally building a 14-6 margin in the fifth. Four runs on three hits by Mid-Delta may have caused Kiwanis some concern, but the rally fell short. Janet Grant had a double and a triple for the losers. Paula Northern rapped two doubles. Kerri Rickenbrode and Charla McGill had doubles for the winners.

First National rapped 20 hits while winning the 21-7 decision that was shortened by the ten-run rule. Cindy Chappell hit a double for Sikeston IGA.

Two runaways high-lighted Senior Division action. Clinton Construction belted the Eagles 47-5 and Citizens Bank of Cairo did the same to First National 30-8. The scorebooks on both games were too messed up to use in the paper.

Home Materials & Harts post wins

A five-run sixth inning paved the way for an 8-2 Home Materials' win over IBEW in Jr. Babe Ruth action. Three walks and three hits, one a double by Kevin Roberts, accounteu for the winners' markers. Then, in the nightcap, Hart's Bread beat Elliott-Newton 12-8 in a game halted by the time-limit. Elliott had tied Hart's in the fourth with a five-run rally, but the winning squad pushed across two in the fifth and two more in the sixth before play was halted.

Kevin Self was the first-game winner for Home Materials. Catcher David Griffin was 3-for-5 with a double and five runs batted in. Allen Barborek ripped two triples for IBEW.

Winning pitcher Paul Murphy whanged a triple and Wade Nance had a double in the night-cap. Losing hurler Marc Alberts and shortstop Terry Lambert had two-base hits for Elliott-Newton.

SeMo U completes feasibility study

CAPE GIRARDEAU— Architect David Pearce of St. Louis will complete a feasibility study on a physical education complex for Southeast Missouri State University and present it to the university's Board of Regents in July.

Pearce gave a preliminary report on his work to date to the board on May 27.

Emphasizing that no decisions have been made, he said it appears that the "best basic expansion of the campus is to the north," in the area previously occupied by the University Farm. Farm operations are being moved to newly acquired land north of Cape Girardeau.

The architect also showed the regents two color-coded maps, each of which was labeled Land Use Circulation Plan.

The maps suggeted that most of the former farm be utilized for physical education purposes, student housing and parking. There would also be large undeveloped areas.

One of the maps included four circles identified as "possible sites" for a physical education comples. The sites are:

-- Immeiately west of Parker Physical Education Building on the main campus.

-- The area currently taken up by intramural fields and tennis courts on the northwest edge of the main campus.

-- The intersection of Sprigg and Bertling at the extreme northeast edge of the campus.

-- On Sprigg Street on the east boundary of the campus just north of New Madrid Street.

Pearce said the cost of a physical education complex currently ranges from $2 million to $8 million, depending upon what is included in the facility. He spoke highly of structures with air-support roofs as a means of holding costs down. He also noted that physical education complexes are often planned to be developed in phases, because the undertakings are so enormous.

Pearce's July report to the board will include a schematic drawing of the character of the complex which he envisions, suggest the facilities which he thinks ought to be included in the building, provide some cost estimates and suggest some ideas for financing the structure.

Dr. Robert Leestamper, Southeast Missouri State president, told the regents that the state might be willing to finance one part of the complex.

Southeast Missouri State has needed additional physical education facilities for more than a decade. Written records on what was then termed a multipurpose building go back to 1968, Dr. Leestamper said.

The Board of Regents recently authorized the university to purchase an air-supported structure which will be erected this summer as a partial temporary solution to the need for more physical education facilities. The site of the "bubble" has not been selected.

Orientation is set at Arkansas State

JONESBORO, Ark. — Five dates have been scheduled for orientation and registration for incoming freshmen at Arkansas State University, according to Dr. Jim McCluskey, vice president for student affairs.

The dates are June 21 and 28, July 15 and 22 and Aug. 9. "We urge incoming freshmen to select one of these dates to visit the campus. There will be an orientation session each morning at 8 a.m. in the ballroom of the Reng Center, and the students will register for fall classes in the afternoon," McCluskey said.

Students who do not attend an early session should report to Wilson Hall Aug. 24 at 8 a.m.

Freshmen who pre-register will return to campus either Aug. 23, 24 or 25 to activate registration packets, pick up housing cards and have yearbook pictures made. Classes begin Aug. 26.

HOSPITAL COSTS

NEW YORK (AP) — The average cost to the hospital per patient-day rose to more than $134 during the first nine months of 1975, says the Health Insurance Institute.

It says this was an increase of 17 per cent for the same period a year earlier.

Spirit Of 76

200 years we've come a long way
We've gained our freedom all the way
Many brave men have fought and died
Lets keep America free they all cried.
We've gone from slavery to E R A
We've even had some watergate.
We fly our flag with love and pride
We take our taxes in our stride.
We pray to God, we work, we play
200 years we've come a long way.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, June 10, the 162nd day of 1976. There are 204 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1610, the first Dutch settlers in America landed on Manhattan Island.

On this date:

In 1719, the Holy Roman Emperor, Charles the Sixth, expelled all Spaniards from the island of Sicily.

In 1898, U-S Marines invaded Cuba in the Spanish-American War.

In 1942, the Nazi Gestapo killed the 173 male residents of Lidice, Czechoslovakia to retaliate for the assassination of a German official.

In 1945, General Dwight Eisenhwoer received the Soviet Union's highest award, the Order of Victory.

In 1964, the U-Senate invoked cloture and choked off a 75-day filibuster against a civil rights bill.

In 1967, Israel was holding conquered territory four times its own size after agreeing to a U.N. cease-fire in the Six-Day War with Egypt.

Ten years ago: The U.S. refused to let a Cuban ship dock at San Juan, Puerto Rico for the Central American Games but said Cuban athletes could disembark in small boats.

Five years ago: The United States lifed a 21-year embargo on trade with mainland China.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives failed to override a veto by President Ford of a bill to control strip mining of coal.

Today's birthdays: Prince Philip Britain is 55 years old. Former astronaut James McDivitt is 47.

RESOLUTION

A RESOLUTION DECLARING THE NECESSITY FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF ONE AND ONE-HALF INCH HOTMIX ASPHALTIC PAVEMENT ON SIX INCH SOIL CEMENT BASE OR FOUR INCH COMPACTED GRANULAR BASE MEETING STATE HIGHWAY SPECIFICATIONS WITH CONCRETE CURB AND GUTTERS ON FUCHS STREET FROM THE NORTH SIDE OF OSAGE STREET TO THE SOUTH SIDE OF NORTH STREET IN THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI; STATING THE NATURE OF THE IMPROVEMENT; THE ESTIMATED COST AND PROVIDING THAT PAYMENT FOR ALL OF THE IMPROVEMENT SHALL BE MADE BY SPECIAL TAX BILLS LEVIED AND ASSESSED AGAINST THE ABUTTING PROPERTY.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIKESTON, STATE OF MISSOURI AS FOLLOWS—

Section 1—That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said improvement, in accordance with plans and specifications necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston.

Section 2—That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials, and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement.

Section 3—That the estimated cost of the improvement is $8.00 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement.

Section 4—That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the Statutes of the State of Missouri and the Ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council, the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement.

Section 5—That any work performed on constructionof the improvement shallbe in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri.

Section 6—That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 7th day of June, 1976.

Regina Eason is placed on presidents list

HENDERSON, Tenn. — Regina Kay Eason, daughter of Edward Elmo Eason of 307 Helen St., Sikeston, Mo., has been placed on the president's list at Freed-Hardeman College for the spring semester.

In order to become eligible for the president's list, a student must earn a 3.3 or above grade point average (based on the 4.0 scale).

Eason, a graduate of Sikeston High School, is majoring in education.

Freed-Hardeman College and its predecessors date back to 1884. Freed-Hardeman completed its transition from a junior to senior college by graduating its first senior class this year.

Receives doctrate of medicine

Dr. Richard Sargent

COLUMBIA — Richard Alden Sargent, son of Dr. and Mrs. Alden P. Sargent of 915 Taylor St., Sikeston, received this doctor of medicine degree from the University of Missouri-Columbia on May 8.

Dr. Sargent graduated from Sikeston High School and received his bachelor of science degree from Southeast Missouri University at Cape Girardeau.

He will begin serving his residency at Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., on July 1.

Chapman receives doctorate

NEW HAVEN, Conn.— Richard Norman Chapman, a former Sikeston, Mo., resident, received a doctor of philosophy degree in history during the 275th commencement May 17 at Yale University.

Chapman, a graduate of Sikeston High School, graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Washington University in St. Louis and was the recipient of a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. He received his master of arts degree from Yale University.

He has taught at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, Mo., Meramec Community College at St. Louis and Yale University. While teaching at Yale he was awarded a prize fellowship for excellence in teaching.

Chapman is assistant professor in the history department at Wells College in Aurora, N.Y. He is married to the former Marilyn Conrad of Sikeston, who teaches in the Southern Cayuga School District.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leon Chapman of 800 Courtney Drive, Sikeston.

OUR BOYS WITH THE COLORS

FT. BELVOIR, Va. — Army First Lieutenant Michael E. Gunther, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan J. Gunther, Lilbourn, Mo., completed on April 20 a 32-week engineer officer advanced course at the U.S. Army Engineer School, Ft. Belvior, Va.

The course prepares engineer officers for command and staff duties at battalion through brigade levels, with emphasis on command at battalion level. Training includes instruction in wholesale and producer logistics, personnel management, maintenance techniques and command responsibilities, and advanced military engineering subjects.

Lt. Gunther entered the Army in April 1971. He received his commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program at the University of Missouri, Columbia, where he received his B.S. degree in 1971.

He is a 1965 graduate of New Madrid (Mo.) High School.

The U.S. Marine Corps War Memorial, a bronze statue depicting the raising of the Flag on Iwo Jima during World War II, is located north of Arlington National Cemetery, Va.

Bank of Sikeston Celebrates The Bicentennial With This Gift For You.
A Commemorative Bicentennial Iron-On.
Just Follow The Instructions Below. Need More Than One? Just Come to Bank of Sikeston and Pick Up Another Free.

200 YEARS BICENTENNIAL

THE BANK WITH The Heart of Gold

Bank of Sikeston
Sikeston, Missouri

INSTRUCTION FOR IRON-ON:

1. For best results use permanent press materials of 50 per cent cotton, 50 per cent polyester. All (100 per cent) cotton materials do not hold color after several washings.
2. To protect your ironing board and items to be ironed from staining, place a cover of plain paper over the board. Notebook or bond typing paper is good. Do not use porous paper, such as paper towels or tissue, as they will allow ink to leak thru.
3. Slip your T-Shirt over the end of the ironing board so that the side you wish to print is directly over the protective paper.
4. Cut decal pattern along the dotted lines and place the design face down on the area you wish to decorate. Pin pattern securely to shirt along the top and bottom dotted lines so it can't slide as you iron. Place another piece of protective paper over the design to protect the iron--do not use heavy brown paper.
5. Set your iron on "cotton" (350 F.) and allow to heat to the proper temperature. Be sure to use a dry iron. When iron is hot, press along the design with firm even pressure for one minute. Be sure to cover the design area. Let T-shirt cool at least one minute before removing paper.

Caution: If you have never used an iron before, have an adult member of your family apply the heat transfer for you to be sure your T-shirt comes out just right.

Note on laundering:
Wash and dry with other permanent press clothes using proper settings and temperatures. Do not use chlorine bleach on any permanent press. Cotton will soften and fade slightly.

Delegates by dozens join Carter camp

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

It's all over but the counting. Delegates by the dozens are joining the Jimmy Carter juggernaut, making it nearly certain the Georgia peanut farmer will be the Democratic presidential nominee.

Carter saw his delegate totals climb Wednesday to all but assure his first-ballot convention nomination, and a legion of big-name Democrats added their endorsements in a show of party unity.

Many of his primary opponents — George Wallace, Henry Jackson, Frank Church and Morris Udall — proclaimed Carter a certain winner. The scorecard at the Democratic National Committee showed Carter with 1,514 delegates, nine more than needed for a convention victory in July.

A landslide victory in the Ohio primary Tuesday, and second-place finishes in New Jersey and California, catapulted Carter to the fabled tipping point; by today the opposing field had dwipdled away.

As dozens of uncommitted delegates pledged support for Carter, he was within grasp of hundreds more now officially committed elsewhere or still uncommitted.

While the delegate roundup continued, Carter's tasks became the selection of a running mate, solidifying party unity, and planning a general election campaign against either Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan.

According to the Associated Press survey of publicly committed delegates, Carter already can claim a definite 1,206, with enough more to bring him the nomination expected to join the bandwagon in the weeks before the mid-July Democratic national convention in New York.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, barred from the 1972 Democratic convention, studied the Ohio results and said he'd vote for Carter. Adlai Stevenson III released the bloc of 86 Illinois delegates committed to him and most were likely to go to the former Georgia governor.

George Wallace, crippled by a gunman while seeking the nomination four years ago and routed in the early Southern primaries by Carter, endorsed Carter and asked his 168 delegates to follow suit. It ended the Alabama governor's fourth and final try for the White House.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, seeker of the presidency since 1960 who hoped the party would come to him this year, refused to authorize a campaign in his behalf, saying Carter was "virtually certain" to be nominated.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, well financed as the campaign began but badly drubbed by Carter in the Pennsylvania primary, told supporters he will endorse Carter and try to deliver his 248 delegates.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, who also challenged Carter, as much as acknowledged the race was over.

Liberal party leaders, such as Sens. George McGovern and Edward Kennedy, also noted Carter's victory and pledged support.

Wallace, cool to previous party nominees, said all he asked of Carter was "to try to make all the people of his country one of the finest presidents we've ever had."

The Republican chase was neck-and-neck, and was not likely to end before the party's national convention in August.

Bernie to vote on bond issue

BERNIE — Voters will go to the polls Tuesday to determine the fate of a proposed $200,000 bond issue to finance an addition to the city's energy supply.

If approved by a simple majority, the money will be used to finance a gas peak-shaving system.

In simple terms, the system uses propane gas mixed with the natural gas supply to ensure a sufficient supply of gas.

Last winter, the city used up its quota of natural gas provided by Texas Eastern Co. even though it was a relatively mild winter. During a more severe winter the quota could be used up and the city would be cut off.

If the bond issue is passed, it will not increase taxes but will be paid off by revenue generated by the project.

A public hearing was held Monday night, but only five persons showed up.

City Clerk Maxine Foster said no opposition to the plan was voiced.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday, and the polling sites will be: ward one, Bernie Farmer's Gin; ward two, National Guard Armory; and ward three, fire station.

Mayor to ride in July 4 game

NEW MADRID — Mayor James H. Cravens has consented to attempt to ride a trick donkey named Olive Oyl at a donkey baseball game scheduled at 7 p.m. July 4 at the Little League Ball Park, according to Beth Henry, chairman, who said the donkey is billed as having never been ridden.

One of the many Fourth of July Bicentennial activities planned at the city park, the game is sponsored by the Community Betterment Committee.

Advance tickets are now on sale at a reduced price over the gate admission, and may be obtained at the City Museum, Bank of New Madrid or from the staff members.

Staff members, in charge of arrangements for the game, include:

Dixie Kay Lloyd, co-chairman; Dot Halstead, treasurer and advance ticket sales; Joe Hunter, chairman, and Lewie Recker and Mark Norrid, beer concession; Bill French and members of Pi Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, gate tickets; Mike Andrew, Dick St. Mary, Leland Phillips andPeter Rost, umpires; Tommy Hall, scorekeeper and equipment; Don Lloyd, grounds.

Jim Stoffer, Mildred Copeland and Shirley Nowell, prize committee; Calvin Broughton and Ben Ashley, announcers; Leroy Nunn, L. H. Recker, Jack Long and Howard Crisler, photographers; Bob Donze, sound effects; Eddie Harris, public address system; Bobby Daniels, poster chairman; Carolyn Fowler and Nancy Hatley, program advertising; Girl Scouts, flag ceremony; and Carol St. Mary, National Anthem.

Dexter school board increases tax rate

DEXTER — A tax rate of $3.95 per $100 assessed valuation was set for the 1976-77 school year Tuesday night by the Dexter School District Board of Education, representing a 26-cent increase over the present rate of $3.69.

The board also rehired all non-certified personnel and sold a house built by the building trades class to Harold Barber of Dexter.

Barber submitted a high bid of $32,000 for the house.

Supt. Thurston Hill reported the district received $1,012,584 in state funds during the past school year.

Fireworks stolen

KEWANEE — Fireworks valued between $70 and $80 were stolen sometime after midnight Wednesday from Stuckey's Pecan Shoppe, located east of town at the Interstate 55 interchange with Routes Y and P.

New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo said a window had been broken and the thieves had reached inside and took seven bundles of firecrackers and an undetermined number of Roman candles.

Thieves take gun and shells

DEXTER — A 12-gauge shotgun, shells and cigarettes were stolen sometime between 7:30 and 10 p.m. Wednesday at the J. B. Summers home on Star Route.

The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said the home was entered by breaking open the back door.

Jim Symington

Symington opposes zoning laws halting rural growth

Second District Rep. Jim Symington, D-St. Louis, said Wednesday he is not in favor of strict federal zoning laws which would halt industrial development in rural areas in an attempt to keep rural air clean.

Symington made the statement during an interview while he was on a two-day campaign tour of Southeast Missouri. He is seeking the U.S. Senate seat being relinquished by his father, Stuart Symington, who is retiring.

Symington was talking about a proposed amendment to the federal Clean Air Act which would prevent development of rural areas. Much of southeast Missouri would fall in an area in which most industrial development would be prohibited.

Area business leaders and public officials have expressed concern over the proposal.

Symington said he is not in favor of the proposal which he said would require that all growth and production come to a halt because the law would not allow deterioration of the air.

Symington said he does not want to see rural areas hampered by strict federal zoning laws.

Symington said he has co-sponsored amendments to the Rural Development Act of 1972 which will require appointment of a new assistant secretary of agriculture for rural development. The amendments also require the department to make "more reasonable progress" in implementing the goals of the Rural Development Act.

Symington said the amendments are necessary because the administration has failed to carry out the provisions of the act.

"They don't even provide the reports they are supposed to," Symington said. "The first and second reports on goals issued by the secretary of agriculture were months late. The third was due in September 1975 and we still haven't seen it."

The amendments would include several functions omitted in the original legislation, such as transportation, financial resources, credit requirements, energy, health and education, Symington said.

Symington said the amendments would direct more agriculture department research money into the small family farm instead of the giant corporate farms, where he said most of the money goes now.

Federal and private financing of basic research has slipped in recent years, and Symington said that has him worried.

"Basic research is the soil

Teen killed in crash

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A St. Charles teen-ager was killed and four other members in the family received minor injuries in a car-truck collision early this morning, according to the highway patrol.

The death raised the fatalities to 48 on area roads this year, compared to 40 at the same time last year.

The accident occurred at 3:55 a.m. today on Interstate 55, one-half mile north of town.

A car headed south had been stopped in the south bound lane by Eugene A. Vandeven, 41, of Cape Girardeau and was struck from behind by a southbound pickup truck driven by Ronald Wayne Kennedy, 25, of St. Charles. The patrol said Kennedy attempted to avoid the car, which did not have any lights on, but could not and the truck overturned on impact.

John Raymond Kennedy, 13, of St. Charles, who was riding in the back of the truck, was killed. The driver sustained minor injuries and passengers in the truck who received minor injuries included Sona Kennedy, 22, Tommy Shane Kennedy, 5, and Jason Duane Kennedy, 2. The injured were taken to St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

The body of the victim was taken to Ford and Son Funeral Home in Cape Girardeau.

Chase nets stolen cycle

Dan Carlos Wilson, 519 William St., has been charged with receiving stolen property, following a high speed chase in the Southwest part of Sikeston Tuesday morning.

Detective Lt. Jack Patterson said he and Sgt. Dan Hinton saw Wilson riding a freshly painted motorbike on South West Street and decided to check to see if the bike was stolen.

Wilson tried to flee and the detectives pursued the bike down Delmar Street to Daniel Street and onto Murray Lane. Wilson finally flipped the bike in a garden at the end of Ann Drive.

Patterson said Wilson tried to flee on foot and the detectives had to chase him down.

The bike was stolen May 10 in Bertrand from Danny Marshall. Patterson said Wilson did not steal it, but he did purchase the bike.

Carter surge begins to show effects on Missouri's uncommitted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The surge of support behind the presidential candidacy of Democrat Jimmy Carter has already begun to have an effect on previously uncommitted Missouri delegates to the party's national convention, an Associated Press survey shows.

And state party officials now predict that as many as 64 of the state's 71 convention delegates will vote for Carter on the first ballot.

When polled by the AP, two previously uncommitted delegates declared for the former Georgia governor and four others said that while they remained uncommitted they preferred Carter over the other candidates.

"I will probably go with Carter on the first ballot," one of those said in a telephone interview, and another added, "I don't believe there's any doubt but that the man has it now."

Four uncommitted delegates could not be reached.

In addition, one delegate each for Congressman Morris Udall and Sen. Henry Jackson expressed support for Carter should their candidates fail to gain the nomination. Those two delegates had previously said they had no candidate preference other than their first choices. Jackson has dropped out of contention and is expected to release his delegates next week.

Following the final primary balloting Tuesday in which Carter drew to within 380 delegates of the 1,505 needed for nomination, three of the front-runner's political rivals threw their support behind Carter and recommended their delegates vote for him at the July convention. Should all those delegates go over to Carter, it would give him well over the number needed for the nomination.

The moves toward Carter by some of the 54 Missouri delegates selected so far boosts his total in the state to 29 firm delegate votes. Earlier switches from the uncommitted ranks gave anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack three delegates, her largest number in any state. Udall has three and Jackson one while 18 delegates remain uncommitted. But that apparently is due in part to dissatisfaction over the way state party leaders, led by U.S. Sen Thomas Eagleton, handled a switch in mid-May from urging selection of uncommitted delegates to backing Carter.

"I don't think it's any indication that they don't like Gov. Carter," said state party chairman John McIlroy of the continuing uncommitted delegates. "I think many of them favor Gov. Carter."

Since that change in strategy on May 13, Carter has picked up increasing support from the Missouri delegation. Selection of the remaining 17 convention delegates comes Saturday when Missouri Democrats meet in their state convention in Jefferson City.

"I had been predicting 10 Carter delegates out of the state convention," said state Treasurer James Spainhower, "but in view of this, I'd say it will be at least 13 of the 17. And no matter how they wind up now, I would say the Missouri delegation will be at least 90 per cent for Carter on the first ballot."

Eagleton had been contacting a number of the uncommitted delegates this week, according to some who talked with the senator, but they said he did not tell them to get behind Carter.

"He just said that the way it looks this thing is kind of rolling toward Carter," one of those delegates contacted said.

Art show set June 20

EAST PRAIRIE— Final plans for the 11th annual Community Art Exhibit, sponsored by the East Prairie Art Guild, are being made and the show is scheduled to open with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. June 20 in First Bank of East Prairie.

The guest artist for this year's show is Tommy D. Ferrell of Springfield, a former East Prairie resident. A commercial artist, Ferrell will feature several water color paintings in the local show, and he and his wife will also serve as judges for the event.

The work will be judged before the show opens, and guests at the show will find award certificates attached to the winning paintings.

Approximately 20 local artists, showing about 50 paintings, are expected by the local art guild. In addition to the local artists, who have shown work previously, several items by beginners, who have painted less than a year, are expected. The beginners' works will bear special identification.

All paintings will be labeled with the title, name of artist and the price if the item is for sale. A bargain bin for unframed and unmounted surplus paintings for sale by exhibitors will also be available.

The only artists permitted to exhibit work in the show will be residents of the East Prairie trade area over 18 years old. All paintings submitted must have been completed within the past year.

Prizes and award certificates to be given by local busines firms includes: purchase prize awards; first place, First Bank of East Prairie, $100; second place, Mississippi County avings & Loan Association, $65; third place, Shelby's, $50; fourth place, East Prairie Lumber Co., $40. Two honorable mention certificates and a most popular certificate will be given by the art guild, with another certificate going to the best painting in the beginner class.

All of the paintings will remain on exhibit in the bank's lobby throughout the week of June 20-26.

PROFIT PINCH IN PANAMA

Whatever else it may be, including fighting words to many Americans, the Panama Canal has not lately been a money-maker.

For only the second time in the 62-year history of the waterway, but for the second time in the past two years, the Panama Canal Company has announced it will raise tolls an average of 19 per cent. The increase in 1974 was about 19.7 per cent.

According to a spokesman for the company, an independent federal agency which operates the canal, the toll hikes have been made necessary because of the worldwide recession and competition from the reopened Suez Canal.

Federal law requires that the canal be self-sufficient, but despite manpower reductions and other cost-cutting measures it has been operating at a loss, with about 1,200 fewer ships expected to pass through it this year than last.

Maybe we ought to unload it while we can.

TIME TO FLY YOUR FLAG!

Americans throughout the land will have the opportunity, this year, to participate personally in a mammoth salute to the 4th of July.

Bicentennial celebration leaders are encouraging communities, businesses, organizations and individuals to fly the United States Flag continuously for 21 days from Flag Day (June 14) through Independence Day (July 4). Participation by people in villages, cities and towns throughout the United States of America will produce a nationwide display of the colors never before equaled in our history.

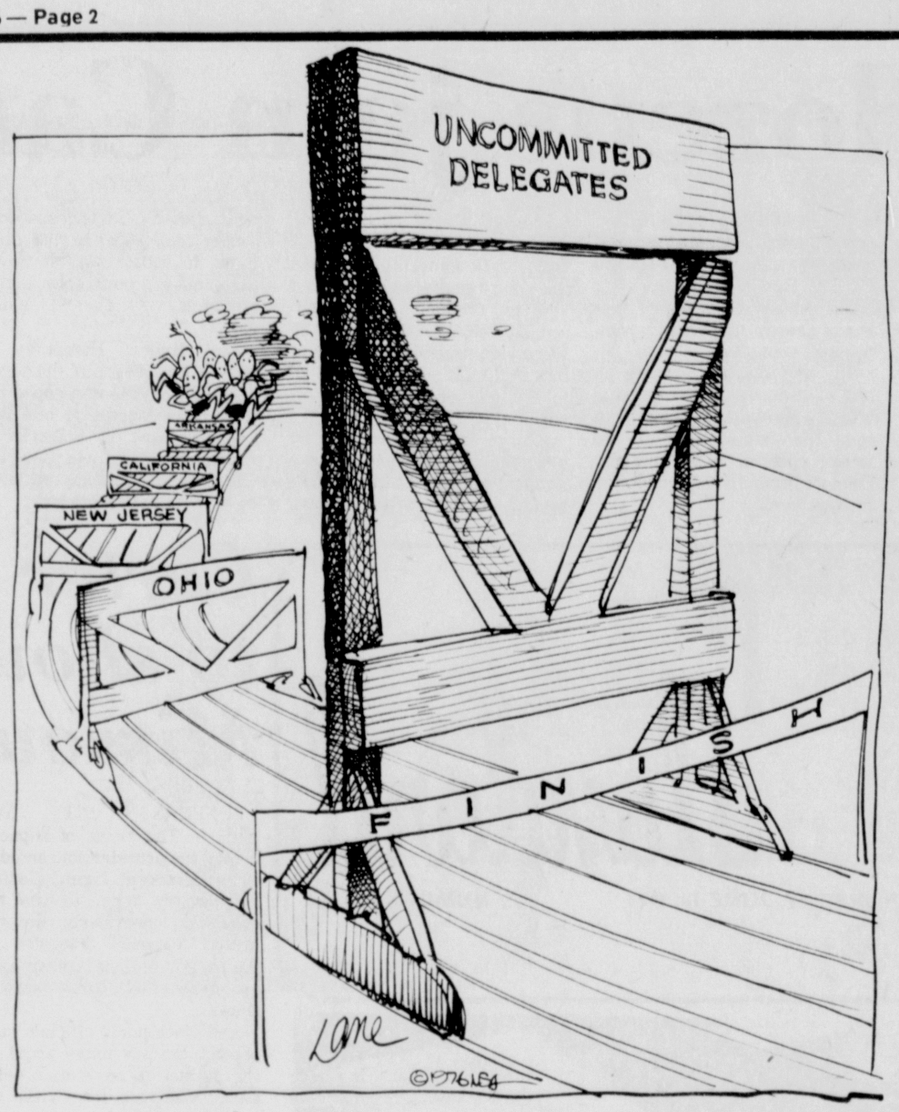

In addition, a simultaneous nationwide ringing of bells for two minutes on July 4th will herald the signing of our Declaration of Independence. Communities, churches, schools and individuals will toll bells and carillons in conjunction with the ringing of the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time. The time selected is exactly 200 years from the precise moment that the Liberty Bell proclaimed the independence of our Nation.

The time to get your flag, pole, halyard, bell, etc. ready is now. We urge every person within reach of this newspaper to join enthusiastically in this great and wonderful celebration.

CIA CHARTER NEVER MEANT CARTE BLANCHE

The Senate Intelligence Committee has made its report on the nation's intelligence system, and painfully many are the excesses, abuses and mistakes charged thereto. Whether or not Congress and the administration now move to adopt reforms the committee recommends depends greatly on whether or not the American people really want reform.

Thanks to repeated leaks of testimony and documents during the course of the committee's 15-month investigation, the report contains no new revelations to jar the public. We have grown accustomed to the CIA's loss of face.

In sum, the investigators found that the Central Intelligence Agency had mounted 900 "major covert actions" since 1961, many of which were given little oversight by outside authorities and the value of which was at best questionable.

These ranged from assassination plots against unfriendly foreign leaders and covert financial and other support of friendly ones, to drug experiments on unsuspecting people to secret operation of business ventures in competition with private companies, plus a host of violations of the CIA's charter prohibiting domestic spying.

All or most of these activities have apparently been stopped or abandoned, which may explain the public's seeming indifference to erecting controls designed to ensure that they are not repeated in the future.

Although there is little evidence that any of the 900 covert actions served America's long-range interests—indeed, the preponderance of evidence points to the contrary—the reaction of many Americans seems to be that any kind of espionage is better than no espionage at all and that if there have been abuses, it is better not to know about them than to expose our soiled linen in full view of the world.

Such a see-no-evil attitude could ultimately prove fatal to American democracy, however, thinks historian Henry Steele Commager, who argues that the United States got along very well from 1789 to 1941 without reliance on so much official secrecy and its companion, official lying.

"It's the business of our people to embarrass our government, that's what democracy is," he says. "Although the dangers of revelation are there, they are not serious and can never endanger the survival of the nation.

"But the dangers of secrecy may destroy the nation, and even mankind."

One aspect of official secrecy the Senate committee would end is that surrounding the total budget of the intelligence community. The people, it believes, should be permitted to make judgments on the nature and extent of the governnent's commitment to intelligence activities. The Ford administration is opposed to this, as well as to sharing oversight of intelligence activities with Congress.

Commager would go further and scrap the CIA and related organizations entirely because they are beyond reform. He suggests we start over again with the "comparatively innocuous" agencies that handled intelligence gathering before World War II.

Few Americans would probably go along with that, if only because the world has changed greatly since 1941 and the threats to democracy are far more sinister than they were in the first 160 or so years of the nation's history.

But certainly, if we do nothing else, we must return the intelligence community to its original purpose for existence. That is, to gather the hard data on which the country's elected leaders can base sound policy judgments and wise decisions—not to engage in ventures which amount to policy-making of its own, ventures that we have seen have been not only foolish and counterproductive but at variance with American ideals.

ASSOCIATION HEAD URGES BUSINESS TO SHOW HIGHEST ETHICAL STANDARDS

"A determined and continuing effort to remove doubts about the moral commitment of American business is of paramount importance," the head of the nation's leading manufacturing group said in an open letter on business ethics and morality.

R.C. Kautz, chairman, National Association of Manufacturers and chairman, Grain Processing Co., Muscatine, Ia., who signed the letter appearing on the front page of a recent issue of the Association's magazine, NAM Reports, called on executives of 13,000 member companies to set the "finest example we can attain within our firms." The text of the letter said in part:

"The decline in public confidence that has affected virtually all American institutions in recent years has recently been intensified in regard to the business community through press disclosures of questionable practices here and abroad.

"I address this message to you because I share your concern over the gravity of this problem and seek your help in dealing forthrightly and promptly with the issue in all aspects of your individual business operations.

"While bribery, kickbacks, illegal political contributions and similar practices are abhorrent to most businessmen, the business community generally has been stigmatized by public disclosures of violations of certain U.S. laws and other practices that may be acceptable in many places abroad but which are morally unacceptable here at home.

"I realize that this latter problem is an especially difficult one to deal with because of the highly competitive international marketing environment—but perhaps this is all the more reason why businessmen must face up squarely to its challenges. Business leaders, as the focal point of large numbers of employes, stockholders, supplies and customers, as well as of the public generally, occupy a unique position of trust and responsibility in our society. They must, therefore, set exemplary, high standards throughout their business operations—and maintain vigilance in helping assure that their associates also live up to these principles.

"The need for this renewed dedication is overriding not just to set a better tone in the society we live in but for many practical reasons. I believe that the declines we suffer in public confidence severely handicap business in making an effective contribution to public policies. Yet, we all know that if America is to resume solid, long-term economic growth, effective business participation is crucial. The views of knowledgeable business leaders must be respected and acted upon if the nation is to succeed in combating inflation, high unemployment and other economic ills.

"We've all expended great effort in trying to persuade government to lighten the burden imposed on business operations by excessive regulations and outmoded tax policies. To get relief from such impediments and play our needed role in creating an improved climate for economic growth, we in business must demonstrate to the public that we are worthy of confidence and support.

"A determined and continuing effort to remove doubts about the moral commitment of American business is of paramount importance—and never more so than at this time in history. The task is up to you, me and other business leaders to implement, company by company.

"The American public looks to—and depends on—all business manaagements for guidance and leadership in setting the finest example we can attain within our own firms. We must not fail in this historic undertaking and opportunity."

LAW AND ORDER OR JUSTICE?

No criminal has been executed in the United States since 1967. Nevertheless, we do have a form of capital punishment which is likely to continue, no matter what the Supreme Court finally decides.

Between 1960 and 1970, 561 policemen and 2,846 civilians met with violent death, according to a study by University of Washington psychotherapist Dr. Arthur L. Kobler, as reported in Human Behavior magazine.

Of 1,500 incidents where police killed civilians during the 1960s, only three resulted in the punishment of the officers involved, even though, says Kobler, 60 per cent of the killings were deemed to be of questionable or unjustifiable necessity.

The law specifies that police are justified in using "deadly force" only when they or others are in danger of grave bodily harm, or to prevent the escape of a felon. But the police and the legal system have pushed the limits much farther, Kobler charges.

He found that almost 30 per cent of police victims were either involved in a misdemeanor such as a traffic violation or were doing nothing at all wrong. Another 27 per cent were stealing a car or committing some other property crime. The rest were either involved in a dangerous felony, were threatening others or had already assaulted others. A quarter of the victims had no weapons, and a quarter were shot in the back.

If the authorities, or juries in the few cases that have gone to trial, are reluctant to punish officers involved in deadly incidents, public opinion polls show less concern over police abuse of firearms that concern that the media are too critical of police action.

Most people believe that if a policeman shoots a criminal, or suspected criminal, in the course of duty, the killing is justified. After all, no honest person will run away if ordered to stop by a policeman, and if the police ever become afraid to use their weapons for fear of prosecution—there goes law and order.

But the result, says Kobler, may be that we have law an order in lieu of justice.

REGULATORY OVERKILL

Nearly 300 federal agencies or bureaus, 35 congressional committees and 450 state agencies have some jurisdiction over energy matters, according to Rep. Bill Archer.

The Texas Republican said, "It has been estimated that regulations promulgated by the Federal Energy Administration alone have added bureaucratic costs of some $10 billion a year to the nation's expenditures for petroleum products. The real question is whether these and other regulations have been effective in providing long-term solutions to the nation's energy shortage. Overregulation clearly has made the situation worse."

GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER?

WASHINGTON— Everyone is doing something about the Bicentennial. The Diner's Club is running an informal survey amongst Americans asking them who in history they would like to celebrate the Fourth of July with and why. Where would they take them for dinner and, finally, what would they order in the way of food and drink?

The answers have included such varied people as Thomas Jefferson, Teddy Roosevelt, Al Capone and Richard Nixon -- NECESSARILY in that order.

Although I hate questionnaires, the survey is rather intriguing and I've been mulling over my answer for days. I've finally decided the only person I want to have dinner with is "Deep Throat," the one of Watergate fame, not the lady from the X-rated film. (I have nothing against her, but on the 200th anniversary of our country I believe an American should abstain from sex in tribute to the founders of our country, because if it hadn't been for them there might not have been any sex in America as we know it today. (Even after 200 years the British still don't know how to do it right or so I've been told.)

In any case I think "Deep Throat" would be fun to have dinner with. I would like to take him to the Sans Souci, but knowing his proclivity for wanting to stay out of the limelight I would select the C level of a garage somewhere on the outskirts of Washington.

First, I would stop off at a Kentucky Fried Chicken place and pick up a bucket of chicken and French fries and a six-pack of beer.

I'd find a nice quiet place in the garage where we wouldn't get run over, and I'd spread out The Washington Post on the floor so we wouldn't get our clothes and food dirty.

The first question I would ask him, which I've always been curious about, would be "What was Bob Woodward really like? Did he look anything like Robert Redford, or was Woodward much better looking?

Once we got over the amenities I'd get down to business. I would question him about his role in the Nixon Administration. Did he blow the White House cover story about Watergate because he had been mistreated by Haldeman, Ehrlichman or Colson, or was he mad at Nixon personally because he had never been invited to Sunday morning church services at the White House?

Then I'd ask him about his personal life. Was he married? If so, how did he explain his absences at night to his wife? Did she believe he was really meeting with a reporter from The Washington Post, or did she accuse him, when he came home at those early hours in the morning, of being up to no-good with some secretary on Capitol Hill?

In the book and the movie, "All the President's Men," "Deep Throat" told Woodward to fly a red flag from the potted plant on his apartment balcony when the reporter wanted to see him, and then "Deep Throat" would mark the hour of appointment on page 20 of Woodward's New York Times. I would ask him if Woodward ever got mad at him for messing up his New York Times before he had a chance to read it?

Finally, I would ask "Deep Throat" after we finished the six-pack of beer, if he ever thought about writing his own book about Watergate. I would point out that there were publishers in this country willing to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars for it and I would offer to collaborate with him on the project. He could keep half the royalties, which is 50 percent more than he got from Woodward and Bernstein. I would also guarantee him that if we sold it to the movies I would make sure Robert Redford played him, and Hal Holbrook would get the minor role of Bob Woodward.

The thought may have occurred to you, as it has to me, that "Deep Throat" could easily have been a woman -- perhaps a disenchanted wife of one of the people involved in Watergate. For my sake I hope it isn't true, because I would have a helluva time explaining to my wife what I was doing in a garage eating fried chicken and drinking beer with another woman on the 200th anniversary of the United States at three o'clock in the morning.

Inside Labor

Blacks Demand It:

Big presidential issue will be $30 billion annual make-work law

WASHINGTON— When thousands of delegates come marching into the Democrats' Madison Square Garden there'll be mighty few blacks among them. Perhaps some 225 -- about half those who roared for George McGovern in Miami.

That's strange after all the desperate infighting over affirmative political action in the precincts. Not to mention a set of delegate selection rules so intricate they'd confound a Copernicus.

But mistake this not for black weakness. For months now their leaders, elected officials from offices high and low across the land, have been meeting in big and small caucuses in New York, Washington, Atlanta, Charlotte and points west.

And they've hammered their message home: the nation's black communities produce 25 per cent of the Democrats' national vote in a presidential year. Thus, the black bloc expects input and impact in the Garden. They are demanding a quid pro quo.

Nothing as romantic, some of them tell me, as expecting one of them to be a vice-presidential candidate. (No black or any woman can expect second slot this year, Vince Clephas, Democratic National Committee director of communications tells me, the reasoning being no black or woman has yet had the time to develop the visibility.)

What the black community's national leaders insist on is congressional passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins job bill (or Hawkins-Humphrey bill, depending where you discuss it) in the next 90 days.

In effect, some members of the Congressional Black Caucus want this H.R. 50, the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976, on President Ford's desk long enough before November to make it the national issue.

Few observers realize how swiftly this bill is hurtling at the Oval Office. It passed overwhelmingly through the House Labor Committee. Soon it will hit the floor. Not too long afterward, the full Senate will have it. Yet most primary-groggy newspeople have overlooked the full significance of the full employment movement.

The odds are 99.9 per cent to .1 that President Ford will veto it. Already he has dubbed it a "vast, election-year boondoggle."

Skillfully averting an early showdown, Secretary of Labor Bill Usery hasn't hit it head-on because his former colleagues in the AFL-CIO have given the bill husky support. But Assistant Secretary of Labor William Kolberg has testified the act would cost the nation some $30 billion annually. Not much argument over this. The Humphrey-Hawkins bill handlers estimate the cost at $25 billion. But add that the "fully employed" would pay sufficient taxes to cut this outlay in half.

Point isn't what Jerry Ford will do with it. Point is what a possible Democratic administration will do if it's in office in January 1977. All Democratic presidential hopefuls (with possible exception of George Wallace) have endorsed H.R. 50.

Thus, unless a possible Democratic successor to Jerry Ford wants to chop the black bloc off the Democratic party, he will sign the bill once it's rushed through the new Congress.

What really is this act? It does far more than call for the expenditure of $25 to $30 billion a year to make work for all jobless over 16 years of age. It sets up the goal of a maximum of 3 per cent joblessness by 1980. Less if possible.

This, the act's champions say, can be done by creating a permanent job guarantee office. If the President of the U.S. can't develop a successful program to achieve this, then the federal government becomes the employer of last resort -- at minimum or prevailing wages. Four little words, for a drastic socio-political shift in America's economy.

Under this bill, pushed by Minnesota's very own Hamlet, Hubert Humphrey, and California's black representative from the Los Angeles region, Gus Hawkins, the President must submit to Congress a full employment and balanced growth statement. This would "serve as the nation's economic blueprint" says the Congressional Black Caucus.

The presidential message would contain target goals for employment, production and purchasing power, as well as the President's methods for achieving them.

Thus -- here you have another few words with sufficient power imbedded in them to change over much of America's commerce and industry. To achieve this the President, the Congress an the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board are directed to work it all out by coordinately developing new fiscal, monetary and other economic policies. Meaning heavy federal spending.

Insiders are counting on this becoming one of the big talk-it-up issues at Madison Square Garden -- and later. Obviously, this political campaign won't be just a beauty contest between Messrs. Ford, Reagan, Carter, et al. This could change the face of America.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Torture Ship Salutes Bicentennial
with LES SHITTEN

WASHINGTON— Chile's military dictatorship is sending a torture ship to participate in the U.S. Bicentennial.

The "Esmeralda" will be one of over 200 handsome vessels from 35 nations that will participate in "Operation Sail," a seagoing salute in New York Harbor on the Fourth of July.

President Ford may even be among the 3,000 dignitaries who will review the waterborne parade from the deck of the U.S. aircraft carrier Forrestal.

Hundreds of Chilean men and women were mercilessly tortured aboard the Esmeralda following the military coup of September 1973, which overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Spokesmen for the dictatorship denied to us that the Esmeralda was a torture ship. The evidence to the contrary, however, is overwhelming.

In the fall of 1974, for example, the Organization of American States sent a team to Chile to investigate the status of human rights there. They were not permitted to see the Esmeralda, according to the OAS report, on the grounds that it was a "military area." They interrogated many prisoners, however, who testified with "significant unanimity" that the Esmeralda was a torture site.

"I was stripped to my shorts and my hands were handcuffed behind me," swore one prisoner who was aboard the ship. "They applied electric shock on my skin, on my testicles, on my chest and back. Also the officers who were interrogating me hit me 50 times ... with their fists. All of this left me black and blue, as the Red Cross verified when they came ..."

Another man testified that he was beaten with a rifle butt until "I began to urinate blood." One prisoner was taken on the Esmeralda to an island concentration camp and "arrived with a piece burned out of his tongue."

Luis Vega Contreras, a Chilean lawyer now living in Israel, has signed a sworn statement attesting to his treatment aboard the Esmeralda. Contreras, once an attorney for the Chilean Ministry of the Interior, said he was beaten with a rifle, kicked, put under a high pressure jet of sea water, and given electric shocks on his tooth fillings.

At one point, said Contreras, he was told to stand over a prisoner who had been shocked and whose back was raw with wounds. "He had salt on his wounds, sea salt. I was forced ... to grind the salt with my feet so that it would seep into the wounds... I had to do this under the pressure of blows and machine guns."

The ship, Contretras concluded, "had been for me and for 10,000,000 Chileans, the White Lady, the National Pride," he wrote in his statement. "It represented Chilean democracy, manhood, the chivalry of Chilean officers and sailors. Today it is a torture chamber, a floating jail of horror, death, and fear to Chilean men and women under the hands of soldiers and officers who ... belong to an occupation army..."

On the Fourth of July, ironically, this ship of horrors will sail in honor of America's freedom.

Footnote: Frank O. Braynard, general manager for Operation Sail, told us he was aware of Esmeralda's reputation and was "very concerned." But, he said, he was trying to make Operation Sail a "people-to-people effort" which avioded "the political."

G.I. SERVANTS: Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf recently registered a mild complaint that our stories about the pampering of the military brass were unfair.

We have now reviewed our findings. We have spoken to enlisted aides and have inspected some of their actual work schedules.

We have concluded that the brass hats are driving around less in chauffeured cars and are cutting down on the domestic duties of their enlisted aides.

But we found aides still cleaning bathrooms, scrubbing kitchen floors, baking cookie for their commanding officers' children, sweeping ceilings, cleaning up after pets, tending gardens, making beds and doing laundry.

These chores appear to violate Defense Department directives which state that aides should help officers only in the preformance of official duties. But it is the officers' wives, we found, more than the officers who use enlisted aides as domestic servants.

We have seen work schedules, prepared by the wives, ordering the enlisted aides to scrub bathroom and basement floors, to "wash venetian blinds, clean windows and stoves," to vacuum rugs and "clean under the bed."

Other GI servants pull weeds, trim hedges and spread fertilizer in their commanding officers' gardens. Others serve as butlers, waiters and bus boys at the military wives' luncheons.

Some wives get restless when their servants run out of things to do. One wife, for example, summoned a weary aide in from the garden and ordered him to bake cookies and cakes so her childen would have enough munchies for the weekend. He was rushed into the kitchen before he could even wash his hands.

Footnote: In recent years, Congress has reduced the number of authorized enlisted aides from 1,722 to 378. Each of the military chiefs is entitled to four servants who receive annual salaries of $10,000 plus benefits. This means the taxpayers are doling out more than $40,000 for each chief's housecleaning and errand-running. A Pentagon spokesman said that commanding officers are complying with departmental directives which regulate the preformance of enlisted aides.

Gallaghers to aid Bird campaign

Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher

G. David Bird, Democratic candidate for 159th District state representative, has appointed Mr. and Mrs. John D. Gallagher, 121 Linda Drive, campaign co-chairmen of the Bird for Representative Committee.

Gallagher, a native of Sikeston, is a member of First United Methodist Church, the Sikeston Jaycees and various other civic and church groups. He is a supervisor for Mid-Delta Agency Inc.

Mrs. Gallagher, the former Judy Matthews of Bloomfield, is a member of the Sikeston Junior Women's Club and First United Methodist Church. She is employed as an instructor at Models, Unlimited.

Bird stated that Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will be responsible for coordinating all campaign activities through the Aug. 3 primary election.

Rats, lambs to aid scientists with the Parkinson's disease

COLUMBIA — Rats and lambs can be used as "models" to study the biochemistry of Parkinson's disease in humans, University of Missouri-Columbia scientists reported today.

Both of the animals, when suffering from copper deficiencies, show a decrease in the brain neurotransmitter, dopamine, as is found in Parkinson's disease. That means researchers can use them as "guinea pigs" to learn about the mechanisms involved -- information that could help prevent or cure the disease.

Speaking at the 10th annual conference on Trace Substances in Environmental Health, R. F. Morgan, P. G. Reeves and Boyd O'Dell, UMC biochemists, reported findings with rates which substantiated O'Dell's earlier research with lambs.

"We conducted the extended study to investigate copper- zinc relationships because commonly in human disease sinc in blood goes down and copper goes up," said O'Dell.

"This happens in people with cancer or some liver disease. It also occurs during pregnancy and with oral contraceptives which contain the hormone, progesterone."

The UMC researchers noted that whenever rats were fed zinc deficient diets, the copper level in their blood plasma went up.

Rats fed no zinc in their diet had no weight gains, while those fed as little as 10 parts per million (ppm) of zinc gained 40 grams in 19 days.

Those fed no zinc had six times as much copper as zinc in their blood plasma, compared to a one to one ratio in those getting normal diets.

"After two to three weeks, the rats had a rough hair coat and began to look pretty sad," noted O'Dell.

"Since copper levels go up when zinc is down, you might expect zinc to go up when copper goes down. But that wasn't the way it worked in our study.

"When we fed a low copper diet, copper was low all right; but it didn't change the amount of zinc in the blood plasma at all. Ditto for the liver and brain.

"Zinc concentrations in most tissues remained constant when copper is low and tended to remain constant even when zinc is low. Still animals do poorly on a copper deficient diet because they need copper to grow.

"With a copper deficient diet, only three of the 13 rats survived to seven weeks of age, and none of them gained weight.

"Besides, copper deficiency caused obvious brain damage with symptoms similar to Parkinson's disease. Both neurotransmitters, dopamine andnorepinephrine, were decreased in the brain of the copper deficient animals.

"We saw the same thing in earlier studies with lambs.

"Since these transmitters control motor skills, the animals behaved much the same as humans afflicted with Parkinson's disease. The lambs, for example, suffered from ataxia or a stumbling gait.

"Next we would like to find out why this decrease in nerve transmitter substances occurs. What is the mechanism that causes it? If scientists learn that, it would certainly have some implications for helping cope with Parkinson's disease."

Corps of Engineers to start crackdown on lake litterers

WAPPAPELLO— The Corps of Engineers will begin a crackdown this weekend against violators of the new regulations at People's Creek at Lake Wappapello.

Mike McClendon, lake manager for the Corps, said the Corps will start giving citations and refer the violators to the U.S. Magistrate Court in Salem. Persons could be fined up to $25.

The regulations against food, drinks or pets being allowed at People's Creek started a couple of weeks ago after the Corps decided something had to be done about the litter problem. The regulations apply only to People's Creek since more than $5,000 worth of improvements have been made.

McClendon said the other beaches will fall under the regulations after work has been done on them.

McClendon said, "The beach looks like a slum and we are not going to tolerate it any more. We are not trying to get smart, but trying to give the public a wholesome, quality recreational experience. He said the regulations are not new or unusual and pointed out this is common on all beaches in St. Louis.

Citations also will be given for illegal parking. McClendon said there is a problem with people parking in the middle of the road.

Weddings to come

Fowler-Clary

Pamela Fowler

Mrs. Eural C. Fowler, 701 Moore St., wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter Pamela Jean to Sgt. Edwin Bruce Clary, the son of Kenneth Clary of Woodbine, Ga.

Miss Fowler is a 1974 graduate of Sikeston Senior High School and is now employed by TG&Y Family Center in the Kingshighway Plaza Mall. Her fiance is stationed with the U.S. Army in Fort Knox, Ky.

The couple plans an Aug. 7 wedding at the United Pentecostal Church in Sikeston.

Day Camp begins Monday

NEW MADRID — Brownies and Girl Scouts from Lilbourn, Marston, New Madrid and Portageville will participate in a day camp program beginning Monday and continuing through Friday.

The camp will begin at 9 a.m. each day and will close at 3 p.m. The camp site will be in Shy's Pecan Orchard on Mitchell Street in New Madrid.

Camp director will be Mrs. Sarah Hunter of New Madrid, and Mrs. Ella LaValle and Mrs. Carolyn Cobb of New Madrid are camp nurse and camp shopper respectively.

There will be two Brownie units with Mrs. Paulette Chastain of Marston and Mrs. Pearl Hicks of Lilbourn as unit leaders. Their assistants will be Mrs. Betty Campbell and Mrs. Joy Hayes of Marston; Mrs. Pat Tilford and Miss Debra Stewart of Portageville; Mrs. Anna Jane Crockett, Mrs. Diane Compton and Mrs. Shirley Hall of New Madrid; and Miss Mattie Recker of Sikeston.

Mrs. Barbara Jacobs of New Madrid will be the leader for the one Junior unit. Her assistants are Mrs. Kay Schuerenberg and Mrs. Gloria Taylor of Lilbourn; Mrs. Shirley Savat and Mrs. Ann Cook of Marston; and Mrs. Phyllis Wescoat of New Madrid.

There will be one Cadette unit with Mrs. Pat Weaks of New Madrid as leader. Assisting Mrs. Weaks will be Mrs. Berniece Lewis of Marston and Mrs. Ann Harrell of New Madrid.

Consultants during camp will be Mrs. Carol Hunter of New Madrid, song leader; Miss Joanne Hunter of New Madrid, knit and stitch leader; Mrs. Libba Crisler of New Madrid and Mrs. Marshall Dial of Portageville, historians; and Mrs. Kathleen Bock of New Madrid, handwriting analysis.

Matthews couple notes 25th year

MATTHEWS — Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bewley of Matthews celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at the Hickory Log Restaurant in Dexter Tuesday. The couple's six children were present to help them celebrate.

The children are Bruce Bewley and Darlene Bewley, both of Wynne, Ark.; Farrell Bewley of Matthews; and Keith, Darin and Jennifer Bewley, all of the home.

Miss Blue: from mop to mike

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Will success spoil Miss Blue?

Fat chance, say the 62-year-old clearning lady-turned-star and those who work around her at KMOX Radio. Miriam Blue is the same person today that she was before she was discovered by radio, television, newspaper and magazine reporters late last year.

"How can I change?" she asked with a wide smile that comes across even over the radio when she gives her 100,000-plus listeners her patented "All is well" at the beginning and end of her twice-weekly advice to the lovelorn segment of the Jack Carney show.

"When people change, the weight starts piling up on their spoulders," she said. "I'm a simple person and that keeps me going day-by-day, just the way I've always been."

Even so, Miss Blue will be the first to admit that a lot of things in her life have changed since the day Carney decided to put her on his show to give her sometimes serious, sometimes spoofing but always funny answers to questions sent in by listeners. Prior to that, Miriam Blue's sole responsibility at the radio station was cleaning windows, dumping ashtrays and wastecans and sweeping floors.

"I understand that people are talking about me even in New York, now," Miss Blues mused. "That's really strange to me, because I didn't even believe people would ever recognize me in my home town of East St. Louis, Ill.

"I love it, of course, because I love all the people out there. But I won't let it spoil me. I can't afford it."

Even though she continues with her duties seven days a week as a cleaning lady, Miss Blue is piling up an impressive list of accomplishments.

To date she has been featured in articles in the Wall Street Journal and hundreds of other newspapers in the U.S. and overseas and in People Weekly magazine. She has appeared on the television game show "To Tell the Truth" (where only one of four panelists guessed her identity) and on a segment of the David Susskind show on the east coast. Coming up is a 14-minute segment on CBS Magazine, the television network's daytime version of 60 Minuteds,and a feature article by the Washington Post.

American child stops growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — American children have stopped growing taller, thereby breaking a century-old trend of youngsters towering over their parents, the government reported Wednesday.

One medical expert speculated that the U.S. population had reached its maximum genetic growth potential.

The findings, if they hold up in future years, hold important implications for the transportation, housing, sports, clothing and furniture industries.

Professional basketball scouts, for example, could not be confident of finding even taller centers in future crops of superstars. The seats on modern-day buses and subways wouldn't be as uncomfortable in 20 years as the seats on pre-World War II buses are today. And the hotel-motel industry wouldn't have to bring in so many oversized beds.

But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the new set of child growth charts, the first update in more than 40 years, will prove most valuable to physicians. They will indicate poor nutrition or health problems if a young patient ranges at the low or high end of the national growth averages.

The charts are based on studies of more than 20,000 children across the country over the last 15 years. The charts were mathematically calculated and plotted by computers.

Sure-fire dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A sure-fire dessert, and easy to prepare.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¾ cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup commercial sour cream
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 pint strawberries, sliced and sweetened to taste

Stir together the gelatin and sugar; add the boiling water and stir until gelatin and sugar are dissolved — about 5 minutes of stirring. Stir in the cream; chill until slightly thickened; add sour cream and vanilla; beat until blended and bubbly. Pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill to have firm — at least 2 hours. Unmold onto serving plate and spoon the strawberries over the Cream. Makes 6 sevings.

IN THE KITCHEN: EASY UP-DATE AT LOW COST

If your kitchen is suffering from tired blood—don't panic. Worn kitchen cabinets and unsightly scarred counter tops can get an easy face lift to improve the kitchen's outlook as well as yours without putting a drain on your pocketbook. You can spruce up the appearance of your entire kitchen without having to spend oodles of money if you work with what you've got. If you've been thinking of a major kitchen renovation, you may save yourself time and money by making a few simple, less costly changes that can breathe new vitality into an old, overworked cooking area.

Kitchen cabinets, a major investment in any kitchen, are furniture items that must take a tremendous amount of wear and tear. Often the victims of grease stains, soot build-up, and even burn damage, cabinets must be sturdy, easy to clean, and most important, easily repaired. If your old cabinets are damaged and you feel it necessary to replace them, consider genuine hardwood cabinets of perhaps birch, oak, maple, mahogany or ash. These hardwood cabinets not only offer limitless decorative style potential, but they lend durability and easy maintenance as well. When making the decision to buy new cabinets, remember that a good kitchen cabinet is one which can survive normal everyday abuse. That's why plastic or printed wood grain cabinets are a poor investment in the long run. Once a printed grain surface is scratched, stained or damaged, it can never be restored to look like new.

If you have hardwood cabinets in your kitchen right now, you can easily refinish them to give them new life. By stripping off the old finish, hardwood cabinets can be restained a darker shade or bleached to a lighter color for a totally different, refreshing look. Good hardwood cabinets can also be restored to perfect condition by simply changing cabinet doors. Hardwood doors can be obtained at your local kitchen dealer, where you will find a wide selection of different styles

Is man in woman's clothes 'sick'?

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column about men who enjoy wearing women's clothing. You seem to have the idea they are "peculiar" or sick. Why?

Everywhere you look you see women wearing men's clothes -- trousers, vests, shirts, ties, coats, shoes, even hats. No one suggests that these women are strange. In fact, they are considered fashionable.

When did it become acceptable for women to dress like men, and why the discrimination against men who dress like women? We hear a lot about male chauvinism. What about the crass discrimination against men by members of the opposite sex?

How about bringing THIS out of the closet? -- The Time Is Now

Dear Now: Women started to dress like men during World War II when they were doing men's work on the assembly lines. Rosie the Riveter couldn't very well climb on beams and girders wearing a skirt and high heels. Pants and boots made a lot more sense.

Rosie grew to like pants because they were practical, comfortable, and different. She never gave them up.

Men who enjoy dressing like women do so not for any practical reason, but because they like to pretend they ARE women. Invariably, they start by wearing women's underwear in secret. This is sick. If a female got her jollies wearing jockey shorts, men's sox and garters, I'd say SHE was sick, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I found the letter by "Blemished" interesting. Why didn't you tell her the problem isn't on her face but in her head?

I have three birthmarks on my right cheek. All my life people have been asking, "What are those?" Some have said, "When are you going to have those things removed?" My answer is, "What is it to YOU? It's MY face." That stops them cold.

For anyone who has kinky hair, crooked teeth, or an oversized nose, I have a message. It's what's inside that counts. My mother taught me this when I was a young child. One of her favorite sayings was, "You can't judge a book by its cover." – I'm O.K.

Dear O.K.: It's good to think well of one's self but I don't agree with your philosophy.

One who judges a book by its cover may be misled -- but it's dumb to settle for an unattractive cover on a good book. These days no one has to go through life with kinky hair, crooked teeth or an oversized nose -- unless they want to.

Your answer to people who mention your birthmarks smacks of belligerence, almost as if you are keeping them to show people you don't care what they think. If, however, you insist on hanging onto it, for whatever reason, it's your business.

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters about relatives who tickle children "all in fun." May I comment?

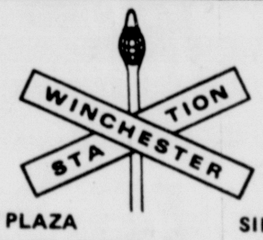

As a student of Oriental history and Far Eastern culture I can tell you that tickling was a form of torture several centuries back. Any pediatrician will verify the fact that prolonged tickling of children can cause hysterics and even convulsions. The expression "tickled to death" is more than just a phrase.

I hope your advice to "cut it out" does some good. -- Vallejo, Cal.

Dear V.: If my advice doesn't persuade them, perhaps your letter will. Thanks for writing.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious--lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

EYES WERE OPEN

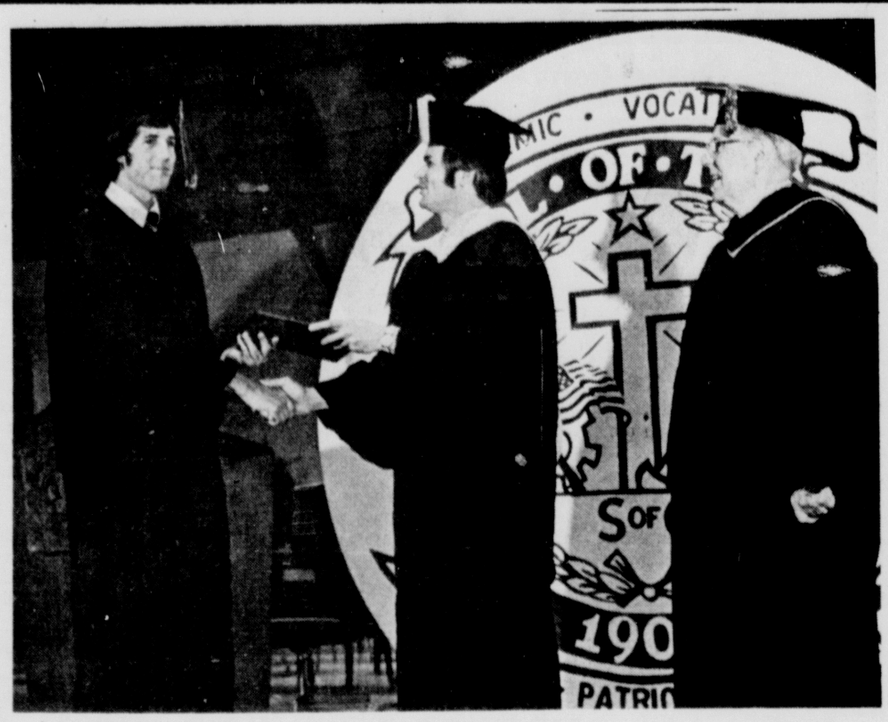

PUTNAM, Tex. (AP) — Ruel Reynolds, who runs an antique store here in an old 70,000-barrel oil storage tank, always has his eye open for a profit.

On the Monday after Christmas he was on his way to Anson to pick up some items he had purchased at an auction.

He saw lying on the road the body of a coyote that had been killed by a passing motorist.

Thinking that it was a traffic hazard — and that the J and L Packing Co. a mile ahead offered to buy pelts or unskinned animals, Reynolds loaded the body into his car. His reward at the packing company was $7.

Howard receives degree

Educators focus priorities on basic economic education

JEFFERSON CITY — Economic education, one of the basic skills which is now a top priority of the State Board of Education, was the major instructional topic at a recent board meeting at Kirksville.

The state board adopted the basic skills as its top priority for Missouri's public schools at its April meeting.

A cooperative plan to expand and improve economic education for the state's more than one million public school students was presented to the board at Kirksville by staff members from the State Department of Education and the Missouri Council on Economic Education.

Under this program, students would receive economic instruction in two separate but related areas: practices which an individual can use in daily life and the principles and workings of the American economic system.

The instruction, for grades kindergarten through high school, in most schools, would be part of the social studies curriculum. It also could be integrated into mathematics, home economics and business education courses.

Presently, the thrust in economic education is teacher oriented, with training workshops for teachers planned on a statewide basis. Within four years, according to current plans, Centers for Economic Education will be operational at eight of the teacher-training universities and colleges in Missouri. The council hopes to sponsor at least 10 summer teacher workshops of two to five weeks by 1979.

Within a year, the State Department of Education also will make available to the schools economic education materials through a series of programs developed for instructional television. The series is now being produced by the national Agency for Instructional Television.

Members of the Missouri Council on Economic Education represent business, labor, agriculture, finance and education.

Other actions by the State Board of Education included:

Approved a program which continues special, supplementary educational services for children of migrant agricultural workers. It is estimated that about 3,600 children would receive the services, primarily in the Bootheel area and the extreme southwest region of the state.

Reappointed Edwin D. Bihr of Columbia to the Public School Retirement System's board of trustees for a four-year term, beginning July 1.

Adopted a resolution of appreciation of W.C. Banta's service on the State Board of Education. Banta, a resident of Charleston, was a member of the board for seven years and served as its president in 1972-73. He resigned from the board May 7 to become judge of the probate court and ex-officio magistrate of Mississippi County.

Appointed 18 boards of arbitration to resolve local school district boundary line questions. Each of the boards has three members, none of whom are residents of the districts involved.

The next meeting of the State Board of Education is scheduled June 24-25 at Kansas City.

The Bath White Butterfly was named in England in 1702 because of its resemblance to a piece of embroidery created in Bath.

EXTRAS

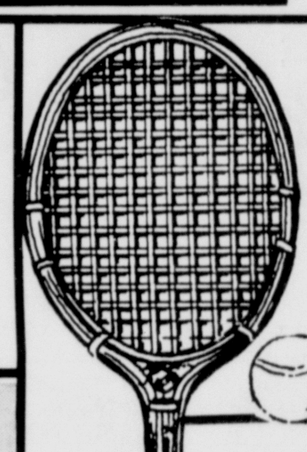

A proper diet is necessary to good health. The four main groups of food essential to a good diet are: 1) milk and other dairy foods; 2) meat, fish, poultry, eggs, beans and nuts; 3) fruit and vegetables; 4) cereals and bread. Those who require a low-fat diet should drink skim milk, which still retains the healthful nutrients and vitamins in milk.

Glass-like material are suitable for bones

WASHINGTON (AP) — A glass-like material that fuses directly into bone could lead to saving thousands of limbs now amputated because they aren't suitable for artificial bone implants, a researcher says.

Dr. Larry L. Hench reported Monday that artificial bone attached to the real thing with a substance called bioglass has been successfully tested in animals and the results show "great promise" for human use.

Hench, director of the Biomedical Engineering Program at the University of Florida and the inventor of bioglass, said human trials are under way in Europe and are likely to start in the United States within two years.

Addressing a symposium sponsored by the American Chemical Society and 12 other scientific organizations, Hench said bioglass was used successfully to install hip joints in sheep, artificial leg bones in dogs and parts of jawbones in baboons.

One of the most exciting possibilities for bioglass is to bind replacement sections to long bones, as in legs and arms, when a seriously damaged section has been removed, Hench said.

It is extremely difficult to replace such sections because the forces they must withstand in use were too much for normal attachment methods, he said. As a result, otherwise healthy limbs often must be amputated.

The bioglass bond is strong enough to overcome such difficulties, he added.

Bioglass is similar to window glass, but contains carefully formulated amounts of certain elements — chiefly calcium and phosphorus — which make it resemble hydroxyapatite, the principal mineral in bone.

NBC program functioning for second year in the red

NEW YORK (AP) — Come June 18, NBC Radio's "News and Information Service" starts its second year on the air, still in the red, still costing $10 million a year to operate and still trying to persuade prospective station clients that all-news radio is the only way to go.

NBC executives initially hoped to have 75 stations in the nation's top 100 markets signd for NIS' 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week news service when it began. It only began with 27 stations in major and minor markets.

Too optimistic?

"No, I wasn't too optimstic," says Jack G. Thayer, head of NBC's radio division, adding that NIS now serves 62 all-news stations with another 11 scheduled to start the service in the next three months.

"What happened was simply this: This happens to be the best year radio has ever had. And as a consequence, stations that normally don't do too well are doing fantastic business."

He said even though the nation's economic recession was at its worst last year, sponsors planning their 1976 budgets poured more money than ever before into radio because (a) TV time was scarce, and (b) they cut back on their more costly-to-make TV ads, opting for more advertising for the same dollar on radio.

"So, many of the clients we'd talked to before, the guys who'd made certain commitments to us, said, 'Jack, just let us go through this year (1976) because it's going to be just so much gravy'," he said.

"They said, 'Nobody's asking what our (ratings) numbers are. They're just calling up and placing business.' As a result, some stations we thought would be on line this year probably won't be on until next year."

COINS

If you have any of the coins listed it will pay you to read these few words:

Questions And Answers

QUESTION: Is it true that the older my coins, the more valuable they are?

ANSWER: This is not true. For example — a 1950 D nickel is worth much more than the oldest nickel minted and dated 1866. A 1955 P half dollar is worth more than 1855 P. An 1893 S Silver dollar is worth more than an 1840 dollar. These are just a few examples. There are many, many more. The value of a coin can be determined by low mintage popularity, ect.

QUESTION: Should I sell my coins now? I do not need the money.

ANSWER: It is always easier to sell to a known buyer than to try to find a buyer when you need the money. And if you never foresee needing the cash your coins will bring, it is still wiser to have the cash working than laying idle.

QUESTION: I've thought of giving my old coins to my children and grandchildren. What's wrong with this?

ANSWER: Nothing — If you can divide them equitably. This is extremely hard to do as the value of one may go up while down on another. Selling the coins while you control them and dividing the money into even savings accounts is always safe. And at today's interest this money should double in 13 years.

Our Business Is Buying Coins

The prices quoted in this ad are what we will pay for U.S. coins on which all features, date, lettering are clear and sharp. Lower prices are paid for coins that are worn and higher prices for those that are in new mint condition. No coins wanted that are bent, corroded, or have holes through them. PLEASE DO NOT CLEAN YOUR COINS. We hope you will bring yours in to us during our short stay — whether you have 50c worth or several thousands, you can be certain of a courteous CASH offer.

Route 66 soon to be 'fading lady'

LITCHFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Route 66. They called her the Main Street of America. She was more.

She was the stuff of adventure, of promise, of romance, even of song. She was the nation bending in a stream of westward expansion, reaching again for opportunity's brass ring shining just within reach on California's sunny shore.

She was the queen of our automotive dreams, the quickest, the longest, the busiest, the proudest, the best continuous east-west highway in the country. From the corner of Jackson Boulevard and Michigan Avenue in Chicago to Santa Monica Boulevard in Santa Monica, Calif, she rolled 2,255 miles, beckoning generations.

And now she's a fading lady, a gentle, worn-out, seedy sort of underemployed madam, to whom fathers take their sons for their first turn at the wheel.

Soon — before year's end — she'll be mostly a memory in Illinois and across the Mississipi in Missouri. And time is running out on her everywhere.

Through city and village, past suburb and backwater, along pasture and prairie, she ribboned across Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. Assembled from a collection of local roads and cow paths, she was freighted with expectations even before her dedication by Congress in 1932.

Tom Joad and his family made their way out of the old Dust Bowl to the Grapes of Wrath on 66. So did all too many, all too nonfictional down-and-outers, Okies and Arkies. In those days they sometimes referred to her as the Will Rogers Highway. Woody Guthrie wrote a ballad about her.

On the return trip she hauled West Coast harvests to the heartland. Oranges in Feburary! When war came she led workers to the Pacific's defense plants, and took the hitchiking GI home for Christmas.

In better days the vacationers came with their dollars. Why, a family could spend a month just seeing the sights along the way. The steady stream of tourists fostered the roadside restaurants, the last-chance filling stations, the billboards and the BurmaShave signs, the tourist traps and the motor court.

Perhaps as much as anywhere else, the culture of mobility, of rubber-tired transience, hit its stride on Route 66.

Some gas station maps don't mark her anymore. Those that do tack the emblematic double sixes onto the signs of the superhighways built along her pathway: Interstates 55, 44, 40, 15 and 10.

The U.S. 66 signs are coming down on I-55 and I-44, which comprise the 576 miles of her northern leg. Order of the state highway departments.

Much of what once was Route 66 long since been reduced to service roads for the new freeways. In some places she's just a county lane or simply sits abandoned, her flanks festering with deserted eyesores.

When they built the interstates they left her roadbed but took her number. It was a sop to sentiment. People were used to following 66. They'd be lost without her. She couldn't just disappear overnight. To make the transition, officials moved her number out to the interstates, temporarily.

"There certainly is a lot of sentiment," a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Transportation said. "We are concerned about this. We proceeded with our plan with some reservation. Once you take that interim step you kind of lose the significance. There just isn't any point, really, in having two routes on the same highway."

In Litchfield, what has happened to Route 66 is plain.

"It's just a local road now," said David Jackson, editor of the Litchfield News Herald. There is so little traffic on the old highway. Jackson taught his son there.

North of town a swatch of the old route survives — a twisting, weedy, two-lane concrete road full of tar patches and cracks. Before the city limits it sideswipes a four-lane highway, the second version of 66. Cresting a rise you glimpse the third, a two-year-old shiny I-55, bustling with traffic between Chicago and St. Louis.

Follow the original road and it leads you inside the edge of town to the 66 Motel Court, four brick cube bungalows and an office built in 1948.

"It was one of the first," said Dorothy Mansholt. "This was the main highway at the time, right out front." She and her husband, Lorman, bought the place in 1963, full of hope and a mail-order motel management course.

They've fixed it up quite a bit. But sitting in the parlor around the registration desk you get a feeling for what it must have been. It's a family business, friendly, no frills, run like it probably was in the old days.

There are no telephones in the rooms. No swimming pool, sauna or restaurant. No bar, no ice machines. Just decent, clean, quiet rooms with thick walls at economy rates — $16.80 for a family of four, $8.40 for a single. Including color television. That's about 1½ bucks below what traffic will bear in most new-fangled motels.

The Mansholt's have built a steady trade, growing every year, relying on customers who've become friends and travelers who drop in figuring Litchfield is too small to get lost in.

There's an echo there, a hint of the common adventure of travelers on a cross-country jaunt in the '40s and '50s. Your father standing at the gas pumps swapping exaggerations of how many miles he covered yesterday. Someone's sensible aunt driving the whole way at 30 m.p.h. for saftey's sake and forgetting to advance the film in the camera at the Grand Canyon. Earnest advice about the best time, day or night, to dare the desert. Motorcycle cops lurking behind the billboards. A strange bed each night.

A lot of other motels on the old highway closed with the coming of the interstates. Ironically, many of the construction workers who built I-55 stayed with the Mansholts until the new freeway opened in 1974.

Jack Cutberth in Clinton, Okla., has devoted 30 of his 76 years to Route 66.

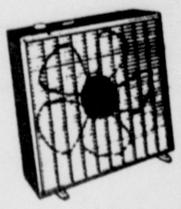

In 1946 the raspy-voiced barber joined the Main Street of America Highway Association. He's the current executive secretary of the 3,000-member group. It was formed in 1920, under the name of the National U.S. Highway 66 Association to promote tourism, get the road paved and win the 66 designation from Washington.

"It was kind of fence post to fence post in those days," Cutberth said. The idea was to put motorists on a road that bore a single number, a good road that they needn't leave.

An automotive supply house completely stocked will be opened Saturday in a North Kingshighway room formerly occupied by the Langley Motor Co. Leonard Cohen of Akron, Ohio, will manage the store.

A machine that gathers hay from windows and bales it as it moved over a field is being operated successfully on farms near here. Clint Kindred of McMullin made the machine by placing on an old Ely baler a pickup he had used on a combine last year. He assembled it one day while he was not working at the McMullin store and he now goes about with it to superintend its operation. On Theodore Hopper's farm, just north of town, the machine baled 1,500 bales of hay in a 35-acre field of red clover with almost no loss.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maggie Dillon, who died early Friday, were held at the family residence on East Gladys Saturday.

Malone Theatre, today, "Showboat" with Irene Dunne and Allan Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Baker moved into a home at 415 Matthews street Friday after members of the E. H. Smith family had moved to their new residence next door.

Sgt. Rodgers' wife Phyllis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyse Spahni of 9706 Dunraven, Cincinnati.

KILLEEN, Tex. — Army Staff Sgt. Henry Brown Jr. recently departed from Ft. Hood for Germany for six months of temporary duty, where he will train with other members of his unit under simulated combat conditions.

Following the training he will return to Ft. Hood, where he is regularly assigned as a scout section leader in Combat Support Company, 1st Battalion of the 1st Cavalry Division's 5th Cavalry.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilford, live on Sikeston, Mo., Route One.

His wife Ruth lives in Saint Roberts, Mo.

Sgt. Brown is a 1967 graduate of Sikeston High School.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

May 31, 1976

Dear Editor:

It was refreshing to learn there is still a spark of democracy in the operation of our New Madrid R-1 Enlarged School District. Through its recent response to local school (Portageville) parents and patrons our R-1 school board demonstrated that someone other than a handful of self-appointed politicians and administrators can have something to do with the operation of our school system.

The issue involved-- the board's renewing of a local teacher's contract after he had been rather arbitrarily dismissed by school administrators for what many consider to be trivial infractions of rather meaningless rules that have no bearing on teaching ability or performance -- while important to persons directly concerned was not of any major significance in itself. The really important consideration is the fact that at long last parents and patrons decided that they were going to have some input in local school opeations, and the board reacted in the only way a governing body of any public institution could be expected to react. Board members simply listened to the people who elected them, and acted accordingly. It would have been the height of arrogance and irresponsibility for the board to have done otherwise.

The dreary Watergate affair shows what happens when administrators and elected officials choose to make their own rules of conduct and ignore the rights of the people who elected them to office. Public office is a public trust. Unfortunately, we sometimes forget that 'public' means the people and not just some self-appointed politician. Any public official worthy of the name listens to the people who put him in office. If for some reason a person elected or named to public office is unwilling to listen to the people, the least he could do is resign and get out of the way.

Just as Watergate, as unpleasant as it has been, has opened up a new era of openness and responsiveness in our national government, the local school episode could bring the same long range benefits to our local school affairs. It could, for example, encourage parents and patrons to get involved. It could, in turn, encourage our administrators and school board to open up and actively encourage participation by parents and patrons. And, even more importantly it could encourage all of us to put aside personal bickering and to ignore the self-appointed politicians who continually try to dominate our school system, and concentrate on the rally important matter of quality education for our children.

Our school board has given us a chance to move forward in a positive way. We are indebted to the members who saw fit to do so.

Sincerely,
Hilton L. Bracey

DREAM

Darkness creeps over the country,
Quiet is the night,
Softly the wind blows thru the trees,
Slowly I close my eyes.

I find myself in a strange, strange land,
Where everything is bright,
I slowly take a young man's hand,
With him I feel no fright.

He leads me down a pathway,
Of roses and bright sunshine,
I turn to him and then I say,
"This is how the world should be.
Will there ever come a time?"

"Perhaps someday the wars will end,
And all will be right in the world,
But we'll have to keep working and dreaming until then,
Dream. Dream on little girl."

I awake in reality,
To this dreary, dark, cold world,
And these words keep haunting me,
Dream. Dream on little girl.

LIFE

You're born
Daddy's pride and joy
You love them
They love you
You strive tobelike them
In every way
This is life.

You become an outdoor nut
You and your parents really click
You have fun with them
They have fun with you
This is life.

You become a teen-ager
You like rock music
They like country
You try to communicate with them
They try to communicate with you
You hurt; you want and need to be loved
So do they
This is life.

You grow into an adult
Your parents see you
As nothing less than equal
You get married
And have children of your own
This is life
And the cycle of life
Begins once again.

Wives' tales about wine

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several of my friends insist they have read that a small glass of wine with meals will help lose weight as well as get more nutrition from your food intake. Is there any truth to this?

DEAR READER — None. This sounds like one of the innumerable reasons people who like wine or other alcoholic beverages offer to justify their habit.

I can't say your friends haven't read such a ridiculous statement. There are so many "untruths" and misinformation circulated that you can find fantastic statements in print: The fact that something is printed does not make it so. I only need remember the "drinking man's diet" to think of one of the many unsound ideas presented to the public.

Wine contains calories, mostly in accordance to the amount of alcohol it contains. The alcohol stimulates most people's appetite while decreasing their inhibitions or will power. The common result then is eating more calories than you need and you know what that leads to.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer, so you can have figures on alcohol and calorie contents and the effects of alcohol. Others who want this information can forward 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a mastectomy nine months ago. I am 62. What bothers me is my arm and hand swell so badly. They get sore from the swelling. My doctor said it is natural that this happens. But I don't think they should swell so much, almost twice the size. I thought if I got some information from someone else about it I would feel better. I was told the removal of the glands from under my arm caused it. Also would eating sweets cause it?

DEAR READER — Your doctor has told you the truth. Most people think of the circulation as the arteries and veins filled with blood but there is still another type of circulation, the lymphatic system.

The lymphatic system is widespread throughout the body and is connected to all those lymph glands called nodes. These are under the arm, in the neck (which swell when you have a sore throat), in the groin and inside the body.

There is a clear fluid material circulated inside the lymph vessels that connect the lymph glands. This fluid, called lymph, helps to drain fluid from your tissues. Finally, all of the lymph vessels connect to one large vessel that empties into one of the large veins leading to the heart.

When you have breast surgery and the surgeon must remove lymph glands under the arm the small lymph vessels are tied off and cannot drain normally. This causes the swelling.It is similar to blocking a vein and causing swelling. Because lymph contains no red blood cells this does not cause the same marked discoloration.

In time, as the blocked lymph vessels establish new drainage the swelling of the arm diminishes. The swelling has no relation to eating sweets.

What's the law?

The case of the hairy disguise

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Roscoe was suspected of supporting his local merchants by holding them up. By the time the district attorney got around to requiring him to appear in a lineup to see if the merchants could identify him as the abductor of their hard-earned cash, Roscoe had grown thick whiskers.

Perplexed, the district attorney sought a court order directing Roscoe to shave off his facial shrubbery before appearing in the lineup.

"I won't do it," protested Roscoe. "My whiskers are my pride and joy. I'd rather cut off my right arm."

"I don't blame him," responded the district attorney, "because, clean-shaven, I believe the merchants will identify him immediately. Under the circumstances, he shouldn't be allowed to foil an identification with his facial foliage."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require Roscoe to submit to a razor?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that, since Roscoe was only a suspect and had not been arrested, he could not be deprived of his constitutional right to determine his own facial appearance. To require him to shave off his whiskers, concluded the judge, would deny him the right to an immediate return to his former appearance after the lineup.

Nevada court says rural school needed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A small high school in the Nevada desert has been brought back to life by a court ruling which puts greater emphasis on the closeness between school and home than on budget figures.

A budget-minded school board closed Lund High School this school year, forcing its 30 students to ride a bus 80 miles a day to and from a high school in Ely.

But the Nevada Supreme Court unanimously ruled Monday that rural schools are worth saving. The court said the close relationship between a school and the home is "something very precious to American education, which has been deteriorating in large communities."

The court rejected the argument that students from Lund would get a better education in Ely. An 80-mile round-trip bus ride impairs a student's performance and participation in school events, the court said.

The ruling means the 50-year-old school will reopen next fall.

Residents of Lund greeted the decision enthusiastically.

Phil Carter, a resident of Lund and a member of the school board, called the decision "the greatest thing that has ever happened in the White River Valley."

Louise Reid, who helped organize a drive to reopen the school, said, "I'm so overwhelmed I don't know what to say. You'd have to quote the tears of happiness which were shed."

Karla McKenzie, 16, who made that 80-mile trip during the closure, said she's happy her upcoming senior year will be in her hometown of Lund.

"I didn't like Ely very well. Mostly I didn't like riding back and forth," she said. "And I think I learned more in Lund. I got the same grades in Ely but I didn't have to work as hard."

Washington Fringe Benefit

Ray's book to describe the sex scandal in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Ray's book, "The Washington Fringe Benefit," has begun rolling off the presses and should be on the bookstands this week. The main character is described as "the playmate of some of the country's most powerful men ..."

The Washington Star reported today that the fictionalized, first person account names some real names, but only innocuously, never in detailed descriptions of the main character's love affairs.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who has acknowledged having a personal relationship with Miss Ray, is included only as a House member who helps the books protagonist obtain a parking spot on Capitol Hill.

The Star said the first printing of the 172-page book from Dell Publishing Co. will run to 600,000 copies. The book jacket promises to "blow the cover off the steamy secrets of Washington's mightiest."

According to the Star, the book describes congressional employers who forced the main character to have sex with other men or lose her job.

She is also kept on a congressional payroll while attending acting school, allowed extended periods of doing no work, offered a Caribbean junket in retur for silence, asked to find other women willing to perform sexual favors and persuaded to sleep with a senator to guarantee his vote on a key offshore oil drilling bill.

"Not only was I the playmate of some of the country's most powerful men, but I often played a pivotal role in getting through some bills that are national monuments today," Miss Ray says through the book's principal character.

One major character is Sen. Otis Battle, described as "the most vengeful man in Washington," her "peppery, powerful nemesis," with whom she had the "most flamboyant love-hate affair in the scandalous annals of our nation's Capital."

Another character is Rep. Billy Bob Blank, who owns a limousine, a houseboat and a helicopter and has a dispute with columnist Jack Anderson.

Miss Ray once worked for former Rep. Ken Gray, D-Ill., who owns a houseboat and had a helicopter and a go-around with Anderson while in office.

A number of well-known Washington figures are listed as persons whom the main character once met. Among them are Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., former Sens. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and Joseph Tydings, D-Md., House members Thomas P. O'Neil, D-Mass. and Peter Rodino, D-N.J.; U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica and former White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler.

The narrative takes the principal character from her job in a hotel cocktail lounge where she meets a lobbyist named Elan Bright who offers her an $8,700 job. With that, she "joined the political life never dreaming that I would have the biggest impact on Capitol Hill since the British burned it down."

The book, which Miss Ray says she began long before her current notoriety, was ghost-written by Yvonne Dunleavy.

Bicentennial aids business at bell foundry

LONDON (AP) — The American Bicentennial is booming business at the 550-year-old Whitechapel Bell Foundry which cast the Liberty Bell in 1752.

"You couldn't say we're swamped," says Douglas Hughes, one of the partners in the foundry, "but orders have suddenly pepped up because of the Bicentennial. It will keep us going for part of this year anyway."

Besides the six-ton Bicentennial Bell delivered in Philadelphia last week as a gift from Britain, the foundry is turning out two dozen replicas of the Liberty Bell and thousands of scale models in various sizes.

It has completed 14 full-size, one-ton replicas and has 10 more on order for states, cities and organizations. Each takes two weeks to cast, finish and tune to the E above middle C, Hughes said.

Made of copper and tin with the original mould-making gauge, they are exact duplicates of the Liberty Bell "as it left here in 1752," Hughes said.

He stresses "as it left here" because, he says, the 18th century Yanks rather fouled up the original bell.

"People do not realize how brittle bell metal is," he said. "You can break a piece of it with a hammer in your hand because your hand prevents it from vibrating.

"There is no record of precisely what happened, but probably it was hung wrong because it cracked when it was struck."

It was recast, but "they didn't do a very good job. The two people who recast it were not bell founders; they were brass founders. They put too much brass into the new bell and it was too soft. It wouldn't ring."

A second recasting restored the proper brittleness, but still something wasn't just right. The bell cracked again in 1835.

The six-ton Bicentennial Bell booms a ponderous G below middle C.

Man behind the comics

Doodling lead to 'Funny Business'

By R. Terrance Roskin
(Second of Series)

If Roger Bollen believes the old saw about "laugh and the world laughs with you," he must be picking up titters all the way from Hong Kong. Roger has plenty to be happy about.

He's young, good looking and he owns a beautiful, tailormade home nestled in the woods at the outskirts of a sublime Cleveland suburb named Chagrin Falls. He is surrounded by playthings such as a billiards loft overhanging the living room and a piano overlooking the co-op tennis court which is a short jog from the private lake. It is at least consistent, if not a little unfair, that his wife and daughter are also lovely and charming. And, oh yes, he has three successful comic features.

That last fact should hit with the impact of having your weatherman be right three days in a row.

In the competitive world of comics, having three strips — or in Roger's case two strips and the NEA Funny Business panel — is a very rare and rewarding circumstance. In addition to Funny Business, Bollen's original cartoon feature, he also collaborates with writer Gary Peterman on Catfish and writes and draws Animal Crackers.

Roger Bollen

Q: When did cartooning enter your life?

A: I was one of those kids who couldn't leave a pencil alone. I think I was constantly doodling. But in high school I was a sleeper. A close friend of mine was considered the 'class cartoonist' which left no room for me, so I was a closet cartoonist through high school.

I did some cartooning in college. I once was given my own page in a campus magazine called The Obese Toad. It was supposed to be the campus humor magazine but it only came out once. In that one issue they ran my name in big letters — B-O-L-L-E-N- — over my cartoons. But they forgot to run the captions. I could see people reading my page on the day it came out. They'd look at the drawings without the gags and say "I don't get it." It was really embarrassing.

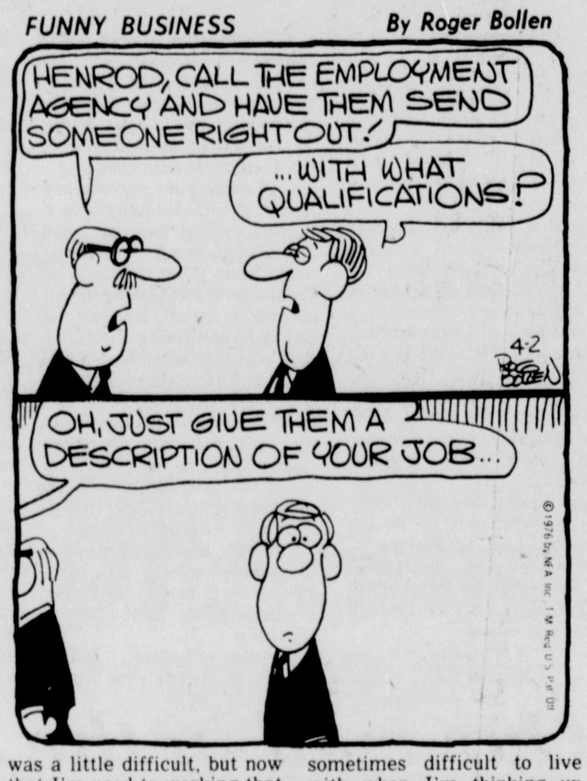

Q: What came between college and professional cartooning?

A: I was an illustrator, worked in advertising art and design. I still enjoy doing a little advertising art now and then. But all along, I think I knew I wanted to be a comic artist. Eventually I worked up a strip called Ripple Falls and submitted it to NEA. They, and everyone else I submitted it to, rejected it. But I got a lot of encouragement from quite a few different people.

Then one day I was called in by NEA — along with three or four other cartoonists — to take a crack at doing a business page comic. They told me they already had their title, Funny Business, and would select the best submission. I was a little ill at ease over the whole thing because I didn't know very much about business. I was afraid it would have to be a daily stock market joke. They calmed me down and told me it simply had to relate to business or a profession in some way. That's how it started out. Now it's expanded to where I can do a gag about nearly anything. The guy on the job can be an organ grinder or a balloon salesman or whatever. It's now more an entertainment strip than anything closely tied to business. I think I've done only three stock market jokes in the more than 10 years I've been doing it.

Q: In the old one-column, two-panel format and often in the new two-column Funny Business size, your cartoons have a straightman-punchline structure. Is that easier or harder than a typical humor strip?

A: At first the one-two shot was a little difficult, but now that I'm used to working that way I find it's a real clean way to deliver a gag. In a strip, there's often an element of the throwaway, a block that's really unnecessary in setting up the joke. With Funny Business you could analyze most of the cartoons this way: Here's the problem — bam! here's the answer. The 'bam!" may be a surprise ending or an abrupt thought, something to resolve the gag.

Q: How do you get your ideas?

A: I think most cartoonists have to draw inspiration for cartoons from people around them. I find that many times people will literally do my work for me unwittingly. They might as well have a cartoon speech balloon floating over their heads. When people talk about themselves and particularly about their jobs, they tend to exaggerate. They either make things worse than they are or better, with the exaggeration providing the humor. Unfortunately, though, that only covers some gags. Most of the ideas come from just plain straining.

Q: Is the drawing easier than the writing?

A: Definitely. I'm sometimes difficult to live with when I'm thinking up gags. But when I'm drawing, the house could fall in and I wouldn't notice. I've been known to be a problem while I'm writing — complaining to my wife that she's ironing too loud. But the writing is as important as it can be difficult, it makes or breaks a comic strip or panel. Of course, the drawing has to have some style to it, but it is more the inflection for the dialog.

Q: What are your feelings about being a comic artist?

A: I feel both proud and privileged to be a comic artist. With all the stark realities around today, too many people feel as though they have no voice, no chance to state their opinion. I feel fortunate to be in the position of having a certain amount on white space in quite a few newspapers to express ideas — my humor — on a daily basis. I'll never take that for granted.

Won't buy U.S. series

British TV refuses to return favor

NEW YORK (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. from time to time sells its prestige shows to American public TV. So what happens when it gets the chance to buy "The Adams Chronicles" and return the fiscal favor?

It has said no dice — at least, not now — according to Robert Kotlowitz, a program executive at New York's WNET, which produced the 13-part bicentennial drama series with a whopping $6.7 million budget.

Variety magazine, the showbiz bible, last week said the BBC had a "long-running option" to buy the series about the historic Adams family of Massachusetts, "but dropped out after viewing the product.

"The BBC rebuff was a blow to WNET production prestige," it added.

T'aint so, insists Kotlowitz. He says the BBC had no option to buy the series and "they haven't bought it for a number of reasons, none of them having to deal with the program itself.

"They have a very complicated set of problems over there," he explained, citing a severe budget crisis currently afflicting the BBC as one of three reasons the Adams series rang up a no-sale there.

"Number two is that there are severe problems in terms of English performing unions in terms of importing American-made production," he said.

He meant that the unions gripe to the BBC and the government that American-made, American-acted shows on British TV take away English jobs, a gripe American unions make about English shows on public TV here.

The third reason the BBC cited for a no-sale, he said, "is a quota system that allows the BBC to import only a very limited amount of American production" for showing on its airwaves.

The BBC here had no immediate estimate of what percentage of American programming is allowed on TV in Britain.

"The Adams Chronicles" originally was budgeted at $5.2 million. The money came from the Andrew Mellon Foundation, the Atlantic Richfield Co. and the National Endowment for the Humanities. But it went $1.5 million over budget, WNET says, because of a seven-week delay caused by a writers' strike and by script revisions made to insure historical accuracy.

Kotlowitz said he didn't know exactly how much the BBC was asked to pay for the series, but insisted "there was not an enormous amount of money involved.

No more foremen

Plant experiments with worker 'teams'

ADDY, Wash. (AP) — "I don't think I'll ever get to the point of hating to come to work in the morning," says Chuck Taylor, who works in a magnesium plant — one where there are no bosses breathing down workers' necks.

Taylor, who taught junior high school for 12 years, is one of 280 employes involved in an Aluminum Company of America experiment in worker self-government. The new Northwest Alloys, Inc., plant here has no foremen, no unions, and is run by worker "teams" who decide what has to be done and do it.

"My father-in-law worked at Kaiser. It was the same thing every day. Here, if you have any ability at all you can use it," Taylor said.

Social conscience was not necessarily what prompted the experiment, which is also being tried in a Pennsylvania coal mine, a Tennessee auto-parts plant and by West German companies.

"It's for the primary purpose of improving production," Carl Hudson, the Addy plant's personnel manager, said.

In its first five months of operation, the plant's turnover rate has been low and absenteeism is running a low 1 per cent. But it's too soon to tell if the experiment is working.

"I'd say three to five years is the shakedown period," Hudson said.

The plant's managers caution that the method might not work everywhere. Workers were hand-picked from about 5,000 applicants — only those willing to rotate assignments, doing both skilled and menial work, were hired.

"We were looking for people who would feel comfortable in an unstructured situation, in small groups," said Hudson. "We turned down highly skilled electricians, with 30 years' experience, who weren't interested in learning to be mechanics."

The 7-to 12-member teams hash out work assignments and deal with personality problems, right down to hiring and firing, all on company time.

Darla Ferry, whose seven male teammates elected her team coordinator, has been trained in group problem-solving.

"If there is a problem, you get it straightened out before it gets serious. So it's really relaxing," she said.

Perhaps the system is hardest on the bosses.

Bill Kelly, supervisor of mining and crushing operations, said it has taken him months to realize that worker teams make some decisions better than he would, some worse, but "on the balance the result is about the same."

Baker pledges aid to county prosecutors

FESTUS — State Rep. James G. Baker, Democratic candidate for attorney general, pledged Tuesday to give county prosecutors the full support and cooperation of his office in the handling of all criminal matters.

Speaking in Festus and Crystal City, Baker suggested that the attorney general "should provide local prosecutors with all the help that they need. There is no reason to see further convictions overturned in this state due to errors by police or prosecutors in the handling of criminal suspects. It is the responsibility of the attorney general to provide local authorities with the information necessary to avoid those errors."

Baker's speech was made during 16-day whistelstop tour of the state. Baker said the tour was a way of bringing his campaign directly to the people. The tour started from Baker's home district in Kansas City and will take the candidate and his wife through 57 counties and over 70 cities.

Baker proposed a specific program of assistance to prosecutors to help assure that criminal convictions will not be overturned due to procedural mistakes. "I believe the attorney general should send a periodic bulletin to county prosecutors analyzing the most recent court opinions and pointing out the pitfalls which must be avoided by local law enforcement officials. I also believe the attorney general should be active in sponsoring seminars and training programs for new prosecutors," Baker said.

Baker concluded by stressing that "local law enforcement officials are leading the fight against crime. The state of Missouri must do a better job of helping them."

Bond signs bill that excempts farm implements from sales taxes

JEFFRSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond signed into law today a bill exempting farm implements from local sales taxes.

The measure, passed during the recent session of the state legislature, will go into effect Aug. 13 and does not exempt farm machinery from the general 3 per cent state sales tax.

Backers of the proposal claimed the exemption is necessary to halt the exodus of farm implement sales outlets from municipalities in the rural parts of the state. They claimed such businesses have been moving outside city limits to avoid charging the local sales taxes.

Unemployment could still be above 7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment still could be above 7 per cent by the end of the year, despite the recent dramatic improvements in the economy, Ford administration economists say in their mid-year review.

They believe there is a good chance the jobless rate, which was 7.3 per cent last month, will dip below 7 per cent but they cite too many uncertainties to make an official prediction.

"We see very little pay-off in trying to reset the target," said one administration economist. The administration is sticking with its official forecast of a 7 to 7.5 per cent jobless rate by year's end.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Pesident's Council of Economic Advisers planned to present the administration's mid-year review of the economy to the congressional Joint Economic Committee today.

Greenspan was expected to forecast a slight improvement in the council's outlook for inflation and the Gross National Product. The council had said in January that consumer prices would increase 5.9 per cent and the GNP would rise 6.2 per cent this year.

The improvement in inflation, employment and economic output all have exceeded expectations so far this year. However, administration economists say the pace of improvement may not be sustained, and the improvement will not look so dramatic by the end of this year.

If they are correct, it could take away some of the advantage that President Ford has had in citing the improvement in the economy as a reason he should be nominated for the presidency.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments:

—The owners of two exclusive women's stores, I. Magnin and Saks Fifth Avenue, were fined $50,000 each after pleading no contest in federal court in San Francisco to charges of price fixing.

The two companies had been indicted for allegedly fixing prices on retail women's clothing from 1963 to 1974 and were charged with agreeing on retail price markups.

—The U.S. Labor Department rejected claims for special unemployment benefits filed in behalf of 68,000 General Motors workers in 10 states.

The department said the workers were not eligible for special assistance under the Trade Act of 1974 because imports of foreign-made autos were not a major cause of their layoffs.

—General Motors Corp. says that base prices on 1977 trucks may go up by an average of 6 per cent over current models. Auto executives have said there will be price boosts on cars and trucks this fall because of rising material costs and expected increases in labor costs but they have not said previously how much prices would rise.

—The 1976 U.S. winter wheat crop now being harvested is estimated at about 1.42 billion bushels, 14 per cent smaller than last year's record crop and 3 per cent less than forecast a month ago, the Agriculture Department said.

Despite the smaller crop, it will be the second largest on record and will provide ample wheat for American consumers and foreign buyers in the coming year, department officials said.

Announces May expenditures

EAST PRAIRIE — Expenditures by the Division of Family Services during May in Mississippi County totaled $111,725, according to figures released by Agnes Cunningham, county director.

Aid to dependent children totaled $105,496 in 754 cases, including 1,792 children. General relief to 95 cases amounted to $6,229.

Mississippi County has 641 supplemental security income and Missouri supplemental cases with total expenditures of $18,306. There were 387 supplemental security income only cases, for which medical benefits and social services were provided. Another 229 persons received medical assistance only.

The county has 122 recipients in professional nursing homes.

BELL CITY — Clarence Dave Gilles, 79, died at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Veterans Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

Born Oct. 20, 1896 in Blodgett, he was a son of the late Harper and Lillie Clark Gilles.

A retired Chrysler Corp. employe, he previously had taught school in the Bell City rural area and was a member of the General Baptist Church and Lakeville Masonic Lodge.

On Dec. 17, 1921 at Messler, he married Dorothy Lavancha Lackey, who died in 1966. One daughter also preceded him in death.

Survivors include: three daughters, Gwendolyn Cahill of Nori, Mich., Virginia Delp of Farmington, Mich., and Betty Price of Kansas City; two sons, Clarence D. Gilles Jr. of Baltimore and Harper Everett Gilles of Detroit; one brother, Monroe Gilles of House Springs; three sisters, Elsie Franklin, Lucille Gardner and Juanita Perry of Bell City; and several grandchildren.

Friends may call at Shetley Funeral Home.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday in the General Baptist Church with Louis Gardner, minister of the Church of Christ, and the Rev. Roger Henson, pastor of the United Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Bell City Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be his nephews, Aaron gilles, Herbert McCollom, Jack Gilles, Ward Gardner, Bob Perry and Art Perry.

Lula Mae Fisher

Mrs. Lula Mae Ivy Fisher, 62, of 228 Westgate St. died Tuesday at the Host House in Charleston, where she had lived for the past year.

Born Nov. 17, 1913 in Oxford, Miss., she was a daughter of the late James and Ollie Ivy.

Survivors include: one brother, Ulester Ivy of Oxford, and three sisters, Mrs. Magnola Ivy of Oxford and Mrs. Ludia Pegues and Mrs. Mildred Brown of Racine, Wis.

One brother, Jimmie Pegues, preceded her in death.

Friends may call Friday afternoon and night at Smith Funeral Home.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Saturday in West End Baptist Church with the Rev. William Hobson officiating.

Burial will be in Smith West End Cemetery.

Willard C. See

EAST ALTON, Ill. — Willard Charles See, 64, a retired security guard, died Wednesday at Alton Memorial Hospital.

He was born Oct. 14, 1911 at Zalma, Mo., to the late Mr. and Mrs. William See.

On Oct. 12, 1932 in Kinder, Mo., he married Mildred Crites, who died Feb. 17, 1972.

He retired three years ago from Owens Glass Co.

Survivors include: one son, Curtis See of East Alton; one daughter, Minnie Seehausen of East Alton; one sister, Myrtle Wiseman of Advance, Mo.; two stepsisters, Alma Eaker of Lutesville, Mo., and Goldie Taylor of Essex, Mo.; two brothers, Edgar See of Middlebrook, Ill., and Olus See of East Alton; one half brother, Garvel Admisston of Cottage Hill; three stepsons, Charles and Raymond Wiseman of Kinder, Mo., and Wilson Wiseman of Lutesville; and eight grandchildren.

Friends may call after 4 p.m. Friday at Morgan Funeral Home in Advance, Mo., where services are scheduled at 1:30 p.m. Saturday with the Rev. Eugene Payne officiating.

Burial will follow in Cato Cemetery near Arab, Mo.

Missouri has shortage of nurses

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri is experiencing a shortage of nurses with sufficient training to hold supervisory posts in hospitals and other health care facilities, the state Office of Comprehensive Health Planning reported Wednesday.

The agency's study said, however, that the needs of the state as far as general nursing care is concerned are being met and that with nearly 70 nursing schools in Missouri, the state is assured of a constant influx of new nurses.

To solve the shortage of nurses with supervisory qualifications, the study recommended development of a "career ladder" concept to provide already-licensed nurses an opportunity to further their education.

Nurse's aides to graduate

Nurse's Aide Class No. 59 will graduate eight students Friday from a Sikeston Public School eight-week training course. Graduates and instructors, from left, are Betty Bratcher; Willie Mae Ransom; Marilyn Monroe; Clare Eisenbach, supervisor of health occupations; Patty Harris; Murlee Mitchell; Maria Rapert, instructor; Irean Mitchell; Carolyn Randle; and Frankie Glaspie, all of Sikeston. The class was sponsored by Sikeston Public Schools, in cooperation with Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, Missouri Division of Employment Security, Missouri Delta Community Hospital and Sikeston Convalescent Center.

Humphrey's dream has vanished

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert Humphrey's presidential dream has all but vanished in the dust left by Jimmy Carter's speeding bandwagon.

As declared candidates and favorite sons were embracing Carter as the peoples' choice, the Happy Warrior conceded Wednesday that the grueling primary race for the Democratic nomination had brought Carter almost certain victory.

But Humphrey couldn't quite bring himself to abandon his quest for the presidency without some qualification.

In a statement Wednesday, Humphrey said Carter "is virtually certain to be our party's nominee. I, therefore, will not authorize any presidential activity on my behalf."

It was not likely to rank with General Sherman's declaration that he would not seek the nomination and if nominated would not run.

For 26 years, Humphrey has dreamed of becoming president. Twice he has been at the brink, as vice president for four years under Lyndon Johnson, and as his party's nominee after Johnson withdrew in 1968, when he lost by a narrow margin to Richard Nixon.

Even this year, when the 65-year-old Minnesota senator chose to sit out the five-month primary campaigns, he left no doubt about his desire to be president.

"I'm available," Humphrey would frequently admit, saying he was prepared to run if the Democratic convention turned to him. Humphrey pointedly omitted that rejoinder from Tuesday's statement.

Rather than bow out Sherman-style, Humphrey simply pointed out the reality of the situation.

"For many months I have said that I would wait the end of the primary election period before deciding whether I would enter the race or be available for the Democratic presidential nomination," Humphrey said.

"I have stated that I would seek the nomination only in the event that there was no clear front runner following the final three primaries in California New Jersey and Ohio.

"The primaries now are over and Gov. Carter has a commanding lead. He is virtually certain to be our party's nominee."

from which growth springs," Symington said. Sometimes it is cut because no one can see an immediate payoff, he said. That is the wrong attitude, he added, because we are denying ourselves something five or 10 years from now.

The congressman has been widely quoted as suggesting that free drugs be given to addicts, but he said his proposal is to establish a pilot program to find ways of treating addicts.

He said he would lure the addicts into the program by giving them the drug of their choice.

Today's drug programs are not working, he said. Drug-related crime in urban areas is overwhelming, he added.

An addict with a $70 habit must steal over $700 worth of goods a day to finance the habit. There are 600,000 addicts in the United States, he said.

The drug pushers should be given life imprisonment, but the users need treatment, he said.

He suggested an experiment be conducted in which 50 or 60 drug users are lured into the treatment center by giving them the drug of their choice.

The treatment center staff would be there to find ways of keeping them off their habit, Symington said. It would be better if they came for treatment every day instead of robbing a store every day.

But he said he would not be willing to go beyond the experiment until the results are known. Who should control the drug problems, the Mafia or the government? he asked.

Symington also said he will hold hearings in the House subcommittee on science, research and technology this month on how to reduce hazards from earthquakes.

Symington is chairman of the subcommittee. He said success in predicting earthquakes in other countries and a recent prediction by a California seismologist that a major earthquake will occur there in April 1977 make these hearings timely.

Southeast Missouri is on a fault which is considered a likely candidate for an earthquake. The potential for a quake causing heavy damage in this area is statistically good, he said.

Symington also said he has co-sponsored the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act, which is designed to eliminate the possibility of fraud and abuse in laboratory services in the Medicaid and Medicare programs.

"The stricter standards and changes in the criminal liability of this bill should go a long way to ensure the integrity of federal health care programs and the quality of clinical laboratory staffs," he said.

Postmaster general is under investigation for cut-rate dealing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating allegations that Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar got a cut-rate deal on rare stamps in return for awarding $7 million in postal contracts, according to an informed department official.

However, the staff director for a House subcommittee says he already has investigated the same allegations and found no evidence that they are true. The Justice Department official says he has not yet determined whether there is any truth to the allegations.

The investigation involves charges that Bailar purchased rare stamps at a fraction of their real value from Jack Taub, chairman of Scott Publishing Co., a New York-based firm which has sold $7 million worth of philatelic materials to the Postal Service.

In an interview Wednesday night, Taub flatly denied there was any payoff involved and offered to take a lie detector test to support his denial. Bailar was out of town, but a Postal Service spokesman said "this allegation was looked into in 1974 and nothing untoward was found."

Taub said he never sold any stamps to Bailar although he served as an adviser in helping the postal official build up a stamp collection worth an estimated $20,000.

Taub also acknowledged that in 1973, when Bailar was senior assistant postmaster general, he delivered a packet of stamps to Bailar's office. Bailar had bought the stamps from Taub's brother, Bertram, who runs a stamp store in New York, Taub said. He added that he had no financial interest in his brother's business, and had delivered the stamps to Bailar as a means of gaining an introduction.

George Gould, staff director for the House Post Office subcommittee which originally investigated the allegation, said he had been "unable to confirm any of the allegations" and found "no evidence that Taub and Bailar had made an exchange of any stamps."

Gould said the investigation was prompted by statements made by Conrad Trayhern, a former postal procurement official who "had an axe to grind" because he was fired from his job.

Houston beats Cardinals again, 5-2

Virdon gets birthday gift

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros helped Manager Bill Virdon celebrate his 45th birthday in style.

Riding the seven-hit pitching of J.R. Richard and Greg Gross' four-hit performance, the Astros clipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 Wednesday night for their seventh victory in the last eight games.

"It was a good win," said Virdon. "The pitching has been real good and we've been getting just enough runs."

The Cards took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off Richard on a walk, a stolen base and Lou Brock's double down the left field line.

Houston came back to score three times in the bottom of the inning against loser Lynn McGlothen, 5-5.

Rob Andrews' single, a walk to Cesar Cedeno and Jose Cruz' RBI single tied the score. After Ed Herrmann walked, Enos Cabell laced a two-run single to center, giving Houston a 3-1 advantage.

The Astros added a run in the second on a pair of singles, a walk and Bob Watson's double play ball. Cardinals reliefer Mike Wallace wild-pitched the final Astros run home in the eighth.

St. Louis scored its other run in the ninth on a double by Reggie Smith and Willie Crawford's single.

"We could have made it a lot easier," said Virdon, in reference to Houston's 13 men left on base. "Even though we're playing .500 ball I don't think you're ever satisfied."

Gross, who collected three singles and a triple in five times at bat, believes that pitching has been the key to Houston's recent surge.

"Good pitching makes winning an awful lot easier," Gross said. "You just can't argue with the success we've been having."

"The pitching has come on pretty good," echoed Richard, 7-5. "You can relax after you get a lead like that and that helps."

NBA names All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second straight year, forward Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors is the leading vote collector for the National Basketball Association All-Star team.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced today that Barry, who led the Warriors to the best regular-season record in the league, received 16.002 of a possible 18 points in the All-Star team voting by sports writers and broadcasters in each of the 18 franchise cities.

Joining Barry on the first team were forward George McGinnis of the Philadelphia 76ers, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers, and guards Nate Archibald of the Kansas City Kings and Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz.

Majors are goal for draftees

NEW YORK (AP) — The major leagues, the dream of every kid who ever took fantasy swings as a Willie Mays or made pretend pitches as a Sandy Koufax, is not really a realistic goal for the 721 players selected the past two days in baseball's summer free agent draft.

The draft was to end today with 11 teams still picking players.

On the average, 50 per cent of the players selected in the draft sign contracts. Then, as a rule of thumb, only 10-15 per cent of those who sign make it to the major leagues for one game.

The percentage for those who will stick in the majors leagues is less, and much less for those who will reach stardom.

The major leagues are glamorous, full of national exposure, deluxe hotels and first-class airfare, but there is no glory in the long, hard road up to the majors.

That cracked pavement is filled with bus rides, too many meals in hamburger joints and too many games when the players on the field outnumber the fans in the stands.

It's great to be a major leaguer, earn an average salary of $46,000 and play in New York, Los Angeles or Montreal.

Gary Roenicke just beat the odds and made it to the Montreal Expos in his fourth year of professional baseball. He played Tuesday night in his first big-league game, against the Giants in San Francisco. He was hitless in five at bats, but it was an achievement, nevertheless.

If he never plays again for the Expos, Roenicke will know he was one of the best baseball players in the world. For one day. Of the 600 active major leaguers Tuesday, he was one of them.

Only Roenicke can decide whether it was worth the three-plus years he spent in the minors.

"Gary told me it was pretty rough in the minors," said his brother, Ron, who was drafted by the Atlanta Braves Wednesday on the second round of the secondary phase of the summer free agent draft.

"I know he didn't like Jamestown (N.Y — his first minor league club), "but then he went to West Palm Beach (Fla.) and he liked the minors a lot more."

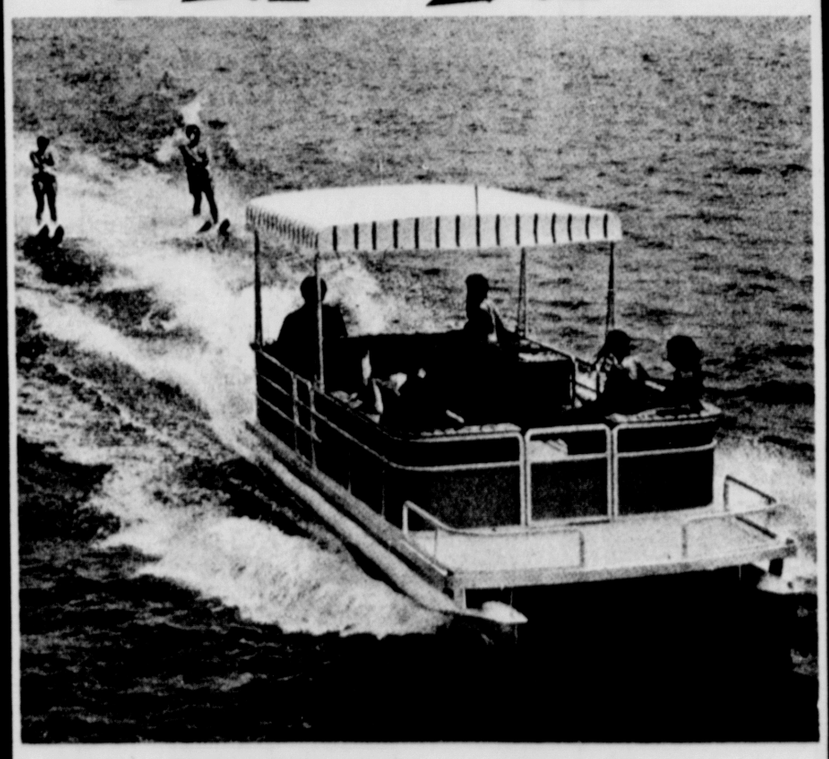

In 1974, Gary Roenicke, an outfielder, was elevated to the club's top farm club, Quebec. He played there in 1975 and even sat on the Montreal bench — but did not play — in the month of September.

"I spoke to him three days ago," said Ron, a switch-hitting center fielder, who batted .356 as a sophomore at Mt. San Antonio Junior College this season. "He was really happy, but he was a little down because he said he wasn't hitting real well."

Ron, who is 19, was drafted three times before — the last time by Detroit last January — but never signed. "I really didn't think they offered me much," he said. "I've thought about going to UCLA" (where he's signed a letter of intent.)

"If I sign, I hope to make it in 2 or 3 years. I really don't know. I just want to make it up there."

Vanduser takes over first place in SFPSL

The Vanduser Comets took over first place in the Southeast Missouri Fast Pitch Softball League for the first time since the league's beginning last night as they swept a doubleheader from previously undefeated Scott City. Vanduser won the first contest 9-3, then came back to take the nightcap 12-5.

Gary Owens pitched Vanduser to victory in the first game. Wayne Limbaugh had three hits for the winners, while teammate Les Schatzley clubbed a two-run homer in the second inning.

In the second game, Scott City had taken an early 5-2 lead, but Vanduser struck back for four runs in the fifth and four more in the seventh. Bob Blair got the win for the Comets. The loss dropped Scott City's league record to 6-2, while Vanduser is now 8-1.

Oran, which had been near the top of the league standings, lost to Kelly Transport of Cape 6-4 in eight innings. Kelly scored twice in the top of the eighth to get the win. Wayne Smith was the winning hurler, with Jerry Tenkhoff being the Oran loser. Don Metz smacked three hits for Oran, and Jerry Hahn had a homer in the first.

Oran had lost to Kelso 4-3 Monday night in the championship game of the Oran Fast Pitch Tournament. Kelso's Kenny Russell was the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Cal-Poly wins NCAA Division II Series

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The new NCAA Division II baseball champion is California Poly of Pomona, which beat Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville 17 to 3 late Wednesday.

Until a loss to California Poly Tuesday night, SIU-E had been undefeated in the double-elimination tournament.

Cal Poly scored nine runs against four Cougar pitchers in the seventh inning. Two of the runs were made by Cal Poly's Dennis Sarow. Sarow opened the inning with a triple, scored on an infield error, followed the batting order around, singled and scored again on a home run by Clay Harris.

The nine-run inning set an NCAA Division II single-inning record.

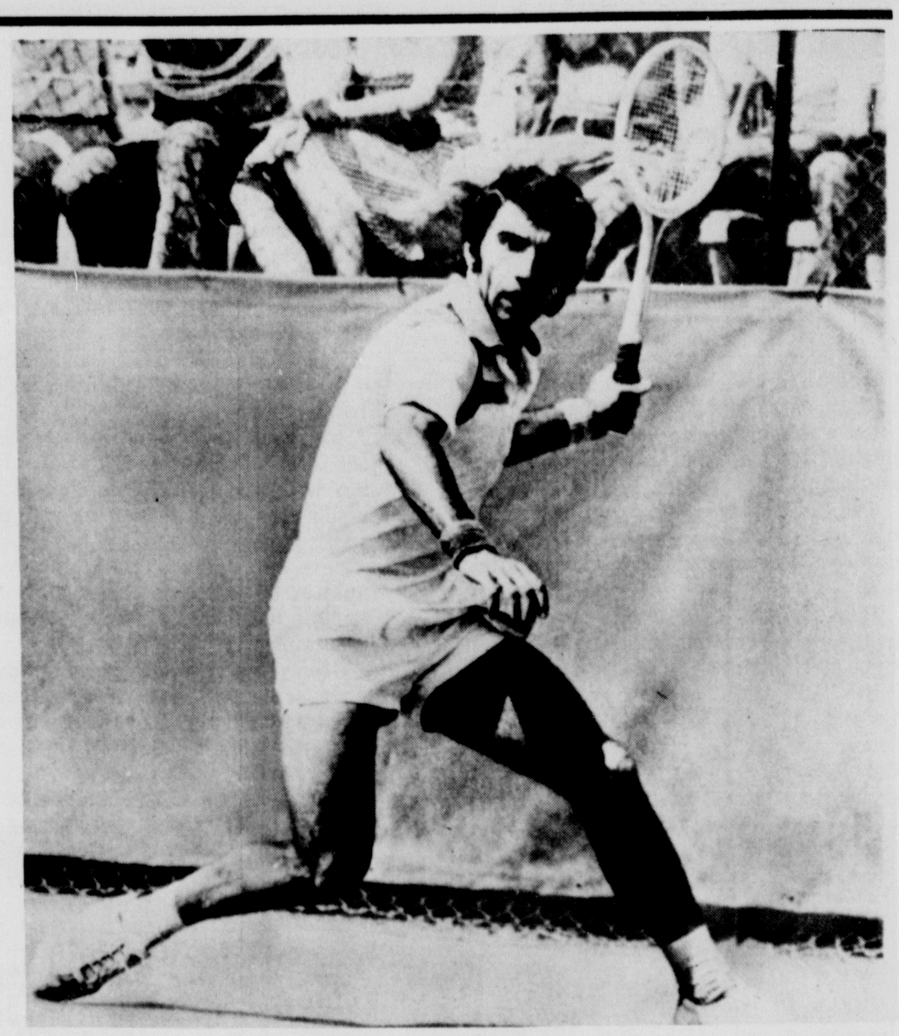

The game also marked the first time that a team—California Poly—has lost its first game in tournament play and come back to win the championship.

Sarow, a second-round draft choice Wednesday for the Montreal Expos, set a Division II tournament record for the most hits in a game with a double, a triple and four singles.

Mike Regus, who pitched the first eight innings, gave up only two hits and one run before being replaced in the ninth by Tom Rosenstein, who gave up two runs, one of them a homer off the bat of SIU-E player Bill Lee, son of SIU-E coach Roy Lee.

Most valuable player in the tournament was Cal-Poly's Ken Hellyer.

Black Hawks take gamble in signing weak-kneed Orr

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Orr's on-ice future is in the hands of his doctors once again. His all-but-signed unconditional contract is in the hands of the Chicago Black Hawks.

"Bobby Orr has agreed to terms with the Chicago Black Hawks," said attorney Alan Eagleson Wednesday after completing a frenzied week of negotiations for his client, who became a free agent from the Boston Bruins on June 1. "It's for several years, and there's no deferred compensation. It's cash on the barrelhead."

Eagleson wouldn't say how much cash, though published reports have placed the offer at $3 million for five years of work from the star rearguard whose battered left knee may have to submit to surgery for the sixth time since Aug. 21, 1967.

"We're gambling on his playing," said Chicago General Manager Tommy Ivan. "If he doesn't play, we still pay — and we lose. We are committed all the way as far as I'm concered."

That the Hawks have spent their money on damaged goods is certain; whether Orr ever will play again is not. The 28-year-old defenseman, called by many the greatest ever to play the game, entered Toronto General Hospital Wednesday for tests that will decide if the sixth operation is needed.

Eagleson said he expected a report from Dr. John Palmer "Friday or early next week," and that the contract would be signed within two weeks. But the decision on what compensation the Hawks will have to pay the Bruins may not be certain for some months to come.

SNB defeats 76'ers

Security National Bank stopped the 76'ers 11-6 last night in the only Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball League game played.

Security National rallied for five runs in the sixth to come from behind and take the victory. Sonny Heacox outhurled Tom Stinnett for the victory. Kenny Spittler homered for the winners.

Home runs mark Little League play Wednesday night

Home runs highlighted an evening of high- scoring games in all three Sikeston Little Leagues Wednesday night at the Sikeston Recreational Complex. Four round-trippers were hit in all as pitchers took their lumps all over the circuit.

MUSIAL LEAGUE

Scott Carmody ripped four of his team's five hits, including two triples and a home run, as Harts Bread blasted Flower Basket 21-4. Carmody has a leadoff homer to begin the game as his team struck for four, four, five and eight runs in the first four innings. Jimmie Cowell was the winner on the mound, while Chuck Simpson absorbed the loss.

In the other game, Kingsway Plaza downed Rotary 12-6. Michael Price had three basehits, including a double, to pace a fourteen- hit attack. Mullin was the winning pitcher, while Stan Templeton was the loser.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

One-run games were the rule in the American League Wednesday evening as Ryan downed Bridger 9-8 and First National nipped Nunnelee 15-14. Marty Allen outpitched Robert Merrill for the victory. Chris Steward had a pair of doubles to pace the Ryan attack.

Lloyd Brewer was the winning hurler in the second contest and had two doubles to spark First National's attack. Kenneth Deal had a pair of two-baggers for the losers.

Because of incorrect scorebooks, American League box scores are not available.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Nick Garner fired a two-hitter for Kiwanis as they downed Security National 11-1. Garner also had three hits, including a fifth- inning homerun that ended the game by the ten-run rule. Gary Wolferding had two hits for Security National.

A & B Leasing trounced the Jaycees 18-5 in the second game. A big nine-run second inning was the big frame for A & B and was highlighted by Todd Griffen's homer. Jeff Brashears smacked one over the fence in the third. Mike Kirchoffer got credit for the victory, while Tom Chasteen was the loser.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan basketball team, runner-up in 1976 National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney, will take on three defending conference titlists in the first six weeks of its 1976-77 season.

The Wolverines' 27-game schedule, released this week, opens Nov. 27 with Western Kentucky, last season's winner of the Ohio Valley Conference championship. On Dec. 11, Michigan hosts Mid-American Conference kingpin Western Michigan.

Then on Jan. 2, the Wolverines entertain Big Ten and NCAA champion Indiana in the first of two regular season meetings.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Elbert Williams, 19, leading rusher for the Wichita State football team, was bound over Wednesday for trial on charges of burglay and theft.

Williams was ordered to appear June 23 in Sedgwick County District Court on the charges stemming from a March 25 incident at a liquor store near the WSU campus.

Two other Wichita State athletes, basketball star Robert Elmore and defensive back Carlos "Rocky" Garza, are scheduled for trial on similar charges June 28.

They are accused of smashing a liquor store window and stealing a case of beer. All three are free on bond.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Robert D. Brown was ousted Wednesday as president of the Richfield Coliseum, just one day after the announcement his longtime associate Nick Mileti had sold his interest in the $32 million building.

Neither Brown nor new Coliseum owner Sanford D. Greenberg of Washington could be reached for confirmation, but the Coliseum switchboard operator replied to callers: "Bob Brown is no longer with the company."

Brown, a former Ohio Bell public relations man, joined Mileti about 10 years ago when Mileti bought the Cleveland Barons minor league hockey team and the downtown Cleveland Arena.

Brown was reportedly earning $65,000 a year as chief of the huge building located midway between Cleveland and Akron.

Kiwanis rallies in 7th to win

Kiwanis held off a four-run, bottom of the seventh rally to beat Mid-Delta 14-12 in a Major Division Girl's Softball game at Puckett Field. First National Bank raced to a 21-7 decision in a Major Division game at Farris Field.

The lead had changed hands several times during Kiwanis' win, with the civic club finally building a 14-6 margin in the fifth. Four runs on three hits by Mid-Delta may have caused Kiwanis some concern, but the rally fell short. Janet Grant had a double and a triple for the losers. Paula Northern rapped two doubles. Kerri Rickenbrode and Charla McGill had doubles for the winners.

First National rapped 20 hits while winning the 21-7 decision that was shortened by the ten-run rule. Cindy Chappell hit a double for Sikeston IGA.

Two runaways high-lighted Senior Division action. Clinton Construction belted the Eagles 47-5 and Citizens Bank of Cairo did the same to First National 30-8. The scorebooks on both games were too messed up to use in the paper.

Home Materials & Harts post wins

A five-run sixth inning paved the way for an 8-2 Home Materials' win over IBEW in Jr. Babe Ruth action. Three walks and three hits, one a double by Kevin Roberts, accounteu for the winners' markers. Then, in the nightcap, Hart's Bread beat Elliott-Newton 12-8 in a game halted by the time-limit. Elliott had tied Hart's in the fourth with a five-run rally, but the winning squad pushed across two in the fifth and two more in the sixth before play was halted.

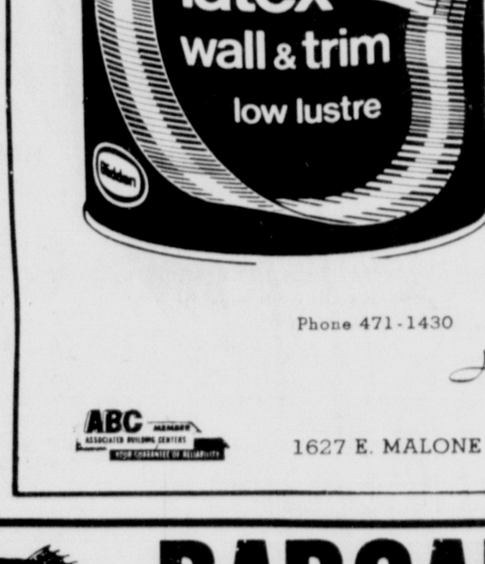

Kevin Self was the first-game winner for Home Materials. Catcher David Griffin was 3-for-5 with a double and five runs batted in. Allen Barborek ripped two triples for IBEW.

Winning pitcher Paul Murphy whanged a triple and Wade Nance had a double in the night-cap. Losing hurler Marc Alberts and shortstop Terry Lambert had two-base hits for Elliott-Newton.

SeMo U completes feasibility study

CAPE GIRARDEAU— Architect David Pearce of St. Louis will complete a feasibility study on a physical education complex for Southeast Missouri State University and present it to the university's Board of Regents in July.

Pearce gave a preliminary report on his work to date to the board on May 27.

Emphasizing that no decisions have been made, he said it appears that the "best basic expansion of the campus is to the north," in the area previously occupied by the University Farm. Farm operations are being moved to newly acquired land north of Cape Girardeau.

The architect also showed the regents two color-coded maps, each of which was labeled Land Use Circulation Plan.

The maps suggeted that most of the former farm be utilized for physical education purposes, student housing and parking. There would also be large undeveloped areas.

One of the maps included four circles identified as "possible sites" for a physical education comples. The sites are:

-- Immeiately west of Parker Physical Education Building on the main campus.

-- The area currently taken up by intramural fields and tennis courts on the northwest edge of the main campus.

-- The intersection of Sprigg and Bertling at the extreme northeast edge of the campus.

-- On Sprigg Street on the east boundary of the campus just north of New Madrid Street.

Pearce said the cost of a physical education complex currently ranges from $2 million to $8 million, depending upon what is included in the facility. He spoke highly of structures with air-support roofs as a means of holding costs down. He also noted that physical education complexes are often planned to be developed in phases, because the undertakings are so enormous.

Pearce's July report to the board will include a schematic drawing of the character of the complex which he envisions, suggest the facilities which he thinks ought to be included in the building, provide some cost estimates and suggest some ideas for financing the structure.

Dr. Robert Leestamper, Southeast Missouri State president, told the regents that the state might be willing to finance one part of the complex.

Southeast Missouri State has needed additional physical education facilities for more than a decade. Written records on what was then termed a multipurpose building go back to 1968, Dr. Leestamper said.

The Board of Regents recently authorized the university to purchase an air-supported structure which will be erected this summer as a partial temporary solution to the need for more physical education facilities. The site of the "bubble" has not been selected.

Orientation is set at Arkansas State

JONESBORO, Ark. — Five dates have been scheduled for orientation and registration for incoming freshmen at Arkansas State University, according to Dr. Jim McCluskey, vice president for student affairs.

The dates are June 21 and 28, July 15 and 22 and Aug. 9. "We urge incoming freshmen to select one of these dates to visit the campus. There will be an orientation session each morning at 8 a.m. in the ballroom of the Reng Center, and the students will register for fall classes in the afternoon," McCluskey said.

Students who do not attend an early session should report to Wilson Hall Aug. 24 at 8 a.m.

Freshmen who pre-register will return to campus either Aug. 23, 24 or 25 to activate registration packets, pick up housing cards and have yearbook pictures made. Classes begin Aug. 26.

HOSPITAL COSTS

NEW YORK (AP) — The average cost to the hospital per patient-day rose to more than $134 during the first nine months of 1975, says the Health Insurance Institute.

It says this was an increase of 17 per cent for the same period a year earlier.

Spirit Of 76

200 years we've come a long way
We've gained our freedom all the way
Many brave men have fought and died
Lets keep America free they all cried.
We've gone from slavery to E R A
We've even had some watergate.
We fly our flag with love and pride
We take our taxes in our stride.
We pray to God, we work, we play
200 years we've come a long way.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, June 10, the 162nd day of 1976. There are 204 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1610, the first Dutch settlers in America landed on Manhattan Island.

On this date:

In 1719, the Holy Roman Emperor, Charles the Sixth, expelled all Spaniards from the island of Sicily.

In 1898, U-S Marines invaded Cuba in the Spanish-American War.

In 1942, the Nazi Gestapo killed the 173 male residents of Lidice, Czechoslovakia to retaliate for the assassination of a German official.

In 1945, General Dwight Eisenhwoer received the Soviet Union's highest award, the Order of Victory.

In 1964, the U-Senate invoked cloture and choked off a 75-day filibuster against a civil rights bill.

In 1967, Israel was holding conquered territory four times its own size after agreeing to a U.N. cease-fire in the Six-Day War with Egypt.

Ten years ago: The U.S. refused to let a Cuban ship dock at San Juan, Puerto Rico for the Central American Games but said Cuban athletes could disembark in small boats.

Five years ago: The United States lifed a 21-year embargo on trade with mainland China.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives failed to override a veto by President Ford of a bill to control strip mining of coal.

Today's birthdays: Prince Philip Britain is 55 years old. Former astronaut James McDivitt is 47.

RESOLUTION

A RESOLUTION DECLARING THE NECESSITY FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF ONE AND ONE-HALF INCH HOTMIX ASPHALTIC PAVEMENT ON SIX INCH SOIL CEMENT BASE OR FOUR INCH COMPACTED GRANULAR BASE MEETING STATE HIGHWAY SPECIFICATIONS WITH CONCRETE CURB AND GUTTERS ON FUCHS STREET FROM THE NORTH SIDE OF OSAGE STREET TO THE SOUTH SIDE OF NORTH STREET IN THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI; STATING THE NATURE OF THE IMPROVEMENT; THE ESTIMATED COST AND PROVIDING THAT PAYMENT FOR ALL OF THE IMPROVEMENT SHALL BE MADE BY SPECIAL TAX BILLS LEVIED AND ASSESSED AGAINST THE ABUTTING PROPERTY.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIKESTON, STATE OF MISSOURI AS FOLLOWS—

Section 1—That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said improvement, in accordance with plans and specifications necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston.

Section 2—That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials, and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement.

Section 3—That the estimated cost of the improvement is $8.00 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement.

Section 4—That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the Statutes of the State of Missouri and the Ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council, the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement.

Section 5—That any work performed on constructionof the improvement shallbe in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri.

Section 6—That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 7th day of June, 1976.

Regina Eason is placed on presidents list

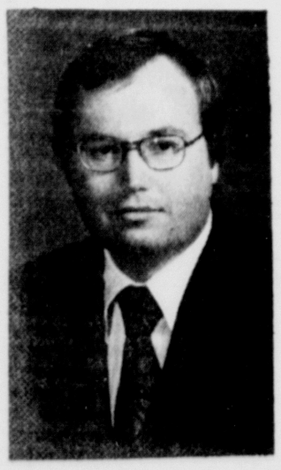

HENDERSON, Tenn. — Regina Kay Eason, daughter of Edward Elmo Eason of 307 Helen St., Sikeston, Mo., has been placed on the president's list at Freed-Hardeman College for the spring semester.

In order to become eligible for the president's list, a student must earn a 3.3 or above grade point average (based on the 4.0 scale).

Eason, a graduate of Sikeston High School, is majoring in education.

Freed-Hardeman College and its predecessors date back to 1884. Freed-Hardeman completed its transition from a junior to senior college by graduating its first senior class this year.

Receives doctrate of medicine

Dr. Richard Sargent

COLUMBIA — Richard Alden Sargent, son of Dr. and Mrs. Alden P. Sargent of 915 Taylor St., Sikeston, received this doctor of medicine degree from the University of Missouri-Columbia on May 8.

Dr. Sargent graduated from Sikeston High School and received his bachelor of science degree from Southeast Missouri University at Cape Girardeau.

He will begin serving his residency at Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., on July 1.

Chapman receives doctorate

NEW HAVEN, Conn.— Richard Norman Chapman, a former Sikeston, Mo., resident, received a doctor of philosophy degree in history during the 275th commencement May 17 at Yale University.

Chapman, a graduate of Sikeston High School, graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Washington University in St. Louis and was the recipient of a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. He received his master of arts degree from Yale University.

He has taught at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, Mo., Meramec Community College at St. Louis and Yale University. While teaching at Yale he was awarded a prize fellowship for excellence in teaching.

Chapman is assistant professor in the history department at Wells College in Aurora, N.Y. He is married to the former Marilyn Conrad of Sikeston, who teaches in the Southern Cayuga School District.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leon Chapman of 800 Courtney Drive, Sikeston.

OUR BOYS WITH THE COLORS

FT. BELVOIR, Va. — Army First Lieutenant Michael E. Gunther, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan J. Gunther, Lilbourn, Mo., completed on April 20 a 32-week engineer officer advanced course at the U.S. Army Engineer School, Ft. Belvior, Va.

The course prepares engineer officers for command and staff duties at battalion through brigade levels, with emphasis on command at battalion level. Training includes instruction in wholesale and producer logistics, personnel management, maintenance techniques and command responsibilities, and advanced military engineering subjects.

Lt. Gunther entered the Army in April 1971. He received his commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program at the University of Missouri, Columbia, where he received his B.S. degree in 1971.

He is a 1965 graduate of New Madrid (Mo.) High School.

INSTRUCTION FOR IRON-ON:

1. For best results use permanent press materials of 50 per cent cotton, 50 per cent polyester. All (100 per cent) cotton materials do not hold color after several washings.
2. To protect your ironing board and items to be ironed from staining, place a cover of plain paper over the board. Notebook or bond typing paper is good. Do not use porous paper, such as paper towels or tissue, as they will allow ink to leak thru.
3. Slip your T-Shirt over the end of the ironing board so that the side you wish to print is directly over the protective paper.
4. Cut decal pattern along the dotted lines and place the design face down on the area you wish to decorate. Pin pattern securely to shirt along the top and bottom dotted lines so it can't slide as you iron. Place another piece of protective paper over the design to protect the iron--do not use heavy brown paper.
5. Set your iron on "cotton" (350 F.) and allow to heat to the proper temperature. Be sure to use a dry iron. When iron is hot, press along the design with firm even pressure for one minute. Be sure to cover the design area. Let T-shirt cool at least one minute before removing paper.

Caution: If you have never used an iron before, have an adult member of your family apply the heat transfer for you to be sure your T-shirt comes out just right.

Note on laundering:
Wash and dry with other permanent press clothes using proper settings and temperatures. Do not use chlorine bleach on any permanent press. Cotton will soften and fade slightly.
